SAILORS AT SEA GET NEWS SERVICE

Radio Operators on Battleships Operate Fat Wireless Bulletins Daily

Each night the Navy Department sends out from Washington a wireless news service. "The Navy Press," to all ships and coast radio stations. The message ranges from eight hundred to one thousand six hundred words in length and contains items of general and particular interest to officers and seamen in every branch of the naval service. Each day the budget of news is carefully sorted and the more important events are put into concise English. During the night, the words are flashed out by the government radio operators and next morning there appears upon the ship's bulletin boards a resume of all the previous day's happenings, both abroad and at home.

A very clever machine has been devised to make easier this distribution of the cream of the current news. It is somewhat like a typewriter and somewhat like a stock ticker. Instead of printing words it punches holes in a long ribbon of white paper. The ribbon is inserted in the wireless sending machines, the message clicked off automatically. Once released, it is caught by all of the radio stations along the coast and they relay it farther to other stations and the ships.

Vessels plying along the coast and many at sea catch the initial message sent from Arlington. For those far out in the Atlantic the relay message is necessary.

No cipher is used and the process is known as "broadcasting." It goes out to any and every vessel, battleship or merchantman, whose radio instrument is tuned to receive it.

On Many Bulletin Boards.

On small ships one bulletin board is usually enough to contain the news for those aboard. On a large man-of-war there may be ten or even more. Several bulletin boards for the crew are located in convenient gathering places about the ship. Besides the bulletin board, a copy of the news letter is given to the ship's commander and if there chances to be an admiral on board, a special copy is prepared for him also.

The news needs of men aboard a battle ship are as various as their tastes and dispositions. All are interested in war developments, but each seaman also has his particular hobby. One is eager to know what is happening in the theatrical world, another is chiefly concerned with the fluctuations of the stock market. The United States Navy Press Service recognizes this divergence of interests and caters to the different wants.

Closely related to the interest in market reports is the desire of the sailors to know about the financial standing of the government bonds. A great many of them own Liberty bonds. Although they feel sure of the security of their investment, they like occasionally to be reassured. Among the paragraphs which were sent out recently the following appears:

New York—The market closed strong to-day. During late dealings many new high records for the day. The Atlantic Gulf and W. I. sold up to 112 1/2, an advance of 3 1/2 points, and steel common to 91 3/4. Corn products moved up to 27 3/8 and Maritime preferred advanced over two points to 94. Government bonds steady. Railroad and other bonds strong.

Get Baseball News, Too.

Baseball, the national sport, is constantly on the minds of the boys at sea. Although they are unable to play it themselves for the deck of a ship is a poor place to knock flies and run one's bases, they flock eagerly to the bulletin board to read notices of the games of the day. With the big league open reports of all the important games become regular features of the service. When a world's record is on, or a decisive game is being played near the end of the season, the wireless messages are read and the boys pick up to be sent out for the information of the jack tars.

It is not only the regular navy which benefits by the radio service. Steamships of the merchant auxiliary and every sort of craft connected with the navy can pick up to be sent out for the information of the news which goes by wireless.

BRAYLESS MULES WANTED FOR ARMY

State Veterinarian Says the Bray could be Removed by Minor Operation

Lansing, Mich., June 11.—Brayless mules are the latest thing in warfare, and the veterinarians all over the Allied world are trying to fix the good old American army mule so that he will do just as much work as ever and less braying. No braying, at all is what the vets are seeking for. The animal surgeons disagree considerably as to how to go about the operation, but Dr. George W. Dunphy, state veterinarian, insists a mule can easily be made brayless by the removal of his vocal chords in the larynx.

In his opinion Dr. Dunphy is backed up by Dr. B. Frank Stoneman, one of the big veterinarian anatomists at the University of Pennsylvania. Others in the same profession, however, suggest different plans, one an Oregon vet insisting that the proper procedure is to cut certain nerves in the tail, claiming that the seat of the braying power is located there. To this suggestion Dr. Dunphy will not subscribe.

"Debraying a mule can be done," says Dr. Dunphy, "and it would not be much of an operation for a good animal surgeon, but cutting out the vocal chords would be easily done, would remove the power of the mule to bray, and I do not think it would interfere with his work, or with his disposition."

The last remark was occasioned by reports that the French vets who have been experimenting on debraying mules have reported that the loss of the bray has almost uniformly been accompanied by an increase in viciousness.

A brayless mule would prove a boon for General Pershing and his men. The average mule, on a quiet night, has a voice that will carry over a mile. Under many circumstances this unquestionably gives aid and comfort to the enemy. The braying mules on two occasions in the Toul sector in France seriously hampered plans laid by the American soldiers for night attacks and raids. The mules gave the enemy exact information and as the Germans were close enough to guess the presence of the mules meant more ammunition being brought up, the Hunns were ready for our boys when they went over.

But the American army mule is still an asset in the rear of the battlefront. There are many places where auto trucks and other new-fangled conveyances cannot go, and it takes the mules to get the stuff in place and they do not seem to be afraid of the firing as are the horses.

VETERAN TRIED SUICIDE

By Courier Leased Wire

Montreal, June 11.—Jack Madden, a returned soldier, who has been three years at the front and fought at the first battle of Ypres, was arrested by the police, charged with attempting to take his life, after slashing his throat with a razor after driving his wife from the house. She had only been in Canada a week, having joined him here from England.

HELD UP BY MASKED MEN

By Courier Leased Wire

Melbourne, Australia, June 11.—Two treasury clerks conveying £14,000 sterling to the government printing office last night, were held up by masked men with revolvers. The robbers escaped with the booty, but dropped a bag containing £2,000 in the course of her pursuit. The acting officer in charge of the Victorian Railway Union, has been arrested in connection with the robbery.

POLICE COURT

Amos Black, Roy McCurtis and Jane McCoy appeared in the police court this morning charged with disorderly conduct. The witnesses claimed that on Thursday evening last they were playing football on Brock Lane. This was denied by the police, who claim the three had been found fighting on that night. They were allowed to go. Alex. Mollette, who was also engaged in the fracas, was charged with distributing the peace. He also was dismissed. Four motorists, Andrew Castrucci, E. F. Williams, Russell Miller and Wm. Rowe, were fined $5 and costs each for speeding on that night. Plaintiff Harry Taylor of speaking was adjourned till Friday. Joe Saggese, an Italian, was charged by Geo. Stinchcombe with using threatening language. It appears that Saggese, who is Stinchcombe's landlady, was a little previous in attempting to collect his rent bill. Stinchcombe refused to pay the bill, as he was not yet due, with the result that the apprehensive Italian threatened dire things, mainly to kill Stinchcombe. Saggese was fined $5 and costs. Edward Butler, charged by Mrs. Mary Donohue with assault, was fined $1 and costs. On a charge of insulting language, Butler was dismissed. The charge against George H.H. of non-support, was adjourned till Friday. George Shay, on a charge of cruelty to animals, was remanded till Thursday.

HOOVER GOING TO VISIT ENGLAND

By Courier Leased Wire.

London, June 10.—The newspapers here are devoting considerable attention to the approaching visit of Herbert Hoover, American food administrator, which is expected to result in important progress toward unity of food command. The Manchester Guardian says: "A good deal has been done in this direction already and the establishment of an Inter-Allied Purchasing Commission has put an end to the wasteful competitive food buying by the Allies."

The British Government are making efforts to increase efficiency and economy in the use of labor on war work at home. As a step in this direction a survey of labor now engaged on essential work is to be made.

The government has just issued an appeal to all skilled workers eligible to become war munitions volunteers to enroll and place their services at the disposal of the government for transfer as the national interest dictates.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Can Tell You're Old.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, the face looks old, streaked and just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it softens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell it is darkened so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking only a small amount at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you look years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
