WHY HE COULD NOT KEEP HIS EMPLOYEES.

He adopted slave-driving methods. He took no interest in their welfare. He was arbitrary, capricious and unjust. He always appealed to the worst in them instead of the best. He considered that their entire salaries were in their pay envelopes. His policy was to get the most work out of them for the least wages. He regarded them merely as a part of the machinery of his business. He resented the idea that his employees should share in his prosperity. He used them as the safety-valves to vent the spleen of his dyspeptic moods. He humiliated his employees by rebuking them in the presence of others. He never trusted them, but always held suspicious thoughts toward them. He killed their enthusiasm by finding fault and never praising or appreciating them. He tried to make them feel that neither he nor his business owed anything to them. He regarded suggestions from them for improvements in his business as impertinences. He stifled ambition by treating the painstaking and the conscientious, the careful and the shifty alike. He never asked himself—"What is the matter with me?" but, "What is the matter with my help?" He constantly made them work overtime without remuneration, but if they were a minute late they were fined.—Ex.

TATTOOING IN NEW GUINEA.

One special feature of many of the tribes inhabiting New Guinea is the unwritten law of copyright in the designs with which they tattoo their bodies. Each tribe has its own particular system of ornamenting the body, and should a member of any other tribe imitate the pattern, it is regarded as quite a sufficient reason for a declaration of war between the two tribes. A traveller who has lately given to the world his impressions of this part of the globe, confirms this statement, and emphasizes it by mentioning an instance in which war actually broke out owing to an infringement of this human copyright. A young warrior fell in love with a girl of a neighboring tribe; the girl favored his suit, but there was a rival in her own tribe. This rival wished to know why the girl did not look upon him with equal favor, and why she went outside the tribe for a husband. The girl hesitated, and then replied—either as a subterfuge or as a statement of actual fact, but probably the former—that the rival was not so well ornamented as was the suitor from the neighboring tribe. The home rival watched for the successful suitor, took note of the pattern, and copied it. The other tribe declared war, in the course of which both suitors were killed.

BRITAIN'S WEALTHIEST DUKE.

The Duke of Westminster is thought by some people—but these secrets are jealously guarded—to be Britain's wealthiest Duke, his wealth being derived, of course, from his extraordinary valuable London property, which comprises the cream of the fashionable quarter of town. As yet very little is really known of the young Duke; in any case he is neither in physical appearance nor in character like his grandfather, the noted philanthropist statesman. Still, the Duke, young as he is, has had plenty of opportunities of seeing the world. While still a boy he was placed under the charge of Lord Milner at the Cape, and when war broke out he lost no time in hurrying to the front. It was while there that he received the news of his accession to the dukedom. Even a duke may be pitted for having been left fatherless at an early age; but the young master of Eaton Hall and Grosvenor House was fortunate in his stepfather, the kindly and brilliant Mr. George Wyndham.

THE SUBJECT WAS HARDLY APPROPRIATE.

The boy was nearing the time of his graduation from the high school. He was a favorite in the school, says the Lewiston Journal, but he had taken higher rank on the baseball and football fields than he had in the class room, and this was when he began to be sorry. The "exercises" of graduation day loomed large before him. He was down for an essay. It looked more formidable than any obstacle he had ever encountered on the athletic field, and the nearer the day came the larger it looked. There was a Harvard man staying in the village at the time, and to him, finally, the young athlete went and besought his help in the writing of the essay. The university man was amused, but he concealed his emotions.

"Well," he said, "a graduation essay is a fussy piece of work. I haven't done much writing lately, and I hardly feel like tackling such a job." The boy's face fell.

"Still," the Harvard man added, "I don't know—perhaps I suppose you've picked out the subject you want to write about?"

TRAVELER AND NATIVE.

The train had stopped for coal and water. "Neat little town you've got here," remarked the traveler in the check suit, who had stepped out on the station platform for a breath of air. "You haint got no copyright on that," replied the native who was sitting on the dry goods box. "So far as I can see," rejoined the passenger, slightly nettled that his overture had been received so coldly, "the town looks a good deal better than its inhabitants." "You can't tell anything about a town by the folks you see hangin' around the depot, any more'n I can tell what kind o' cattle are in a train by hearin' one o' the steers bawl when it gets prodded a bit," said the other, immediately. "Got any schools here?" "I wouldn't have suspected it." "Oh, yes; we turn 'em out o' v' ejaculatory foot every year, same as they do where you come from." "I see—and some uneducated fools." "Yes, sir; but we make travelin' men out o' 'em." "Got a few hopeless idiots, too, haven't you?" "Quite a sprinklin' o' 'em. Was you 'thinkin' of settlin' down here an' jinn' 'em?" "Not at all. I don't like the specimens, so far as I've seen them." "You'd be lonesome among 'em, anyway. They're not talkin' jits." "Well, I'll be frank enough to say you're not one o' them. You're pretty smart. Pardon me, but have you got a chew of tobacco about you?" "Sure." "Then will you oblige me by closing your mouth with it? Good-by."

TAKING COLD.

Of all causes of 'cold,' says 'Health,' probably fatigue is one of the most common. A jaded man coming home at night from a long day's work, a growing youth losing some hours' sleep over evening parties two or three times a week, or young children over-fed and with short allowance of sleep, are common instances of one victim of cold. Luxury is favorable to chill-taking. Very hot rooms, feather beds, and soft chairs create a sensitiveness that leads to catarrhs. Probably many chills are contracted at night or at the far end of the day, when tired people get the equilibrium of their circulation distributed by either over-heated sitting-rooms or under-heated bedrooms and beds. This is especially the case with elderly people. In such cases the mischief is not always done simultaneously, or in a single night. It often takes place in broad day, extending over days or even weeks.

TOO INQUISITIVE.

The person who equivocates in order to pay a compliment is likely to have his discretion betrayed if the complimented person questions him at all sharply. The author of a certain book which had made extremely little impression, meeting one of his literary friends, insisted upon talking with him a long time about the volume. "Come, now," said the author, "tell me what you hear about the book?" "I assure you," answered the other, "that I have heard nothing but the most favorable and enthusiastic opinions of it." "Oh, that's good. Well, tell me who has talked to you about it?" "Um—well, I can't tell you exactly." "Yes, you can, I insist." "Well, then, since you insist, you're the only one that I've heard say a word about it."

THE SUAVE JAPANESE.

The newspaper correspondents who have been cooling their heels in Tokio while polite Japanese officials have gently thwarted all their endeavors to get to the seat of war are probably in a frame of mind to appreciate an incident related by Mrs. Archibald Little.

In 1873 trouble arose between China and Japan over Formosa. A Japanese ship had been cast away on the island and its crew murdered. Japan protested. China unwisely replied that it could not restrain the bandits of that uncivilized land. Japan, without delay, landed an armed force and displaced the offenders. A minister was then appointed to go to China and explain the affair.

Li Hung-Chang openly boasted that this minister would never be allowed to go to Peking. In order to prevent it he went to meet him at Tien Sien, to head him off. The wily Japanese Soshiro called upon him, informed him that he had been appointed minister to Peking and told him how he was looking forward to seeing that wonderful city. Of Formosa he said not a word.

Li promptly introduced the diplomat to tea, and spoke at great length against the encroachment of Japan on China's territory. Soshiro listened with the utmost politeness and gravity. When Li had exhausted himself in eloquence the Japanese rose and made the exasperating remark: "I bow to your wisdom and rank." He would respectfully take his leave, he said. It was an honor to have heard Li speak. However, he had called only to pay his respects, not to discuss international affairs. He had been accredited to the Chinese government at Peking, and was then on his way thither.

With another impressive bow he left the room and Li, the Chinese statesman, who had probably already regretted the foolish boast, found it advisable to be suddenly "indisposed," and did not return. The call so that "Pai," who, secretly on his mission to Peking, where, instead of giving an indemnity, he persuaded the Chinese government to pay the expenses of the Japanese invasion of Formosa, which were settled at half a million taels.

KEPT THE STRAIGHT AND NARROW PATH.

There are parts of Kentucky where some of the mountaineers have never seen a locomotive. One of these mountaineers who drifted into civilization encountered a railroad train, and took to flight down the track. The engineer stopped the train and captured what he supposed was a crazy man. Finding him sane, though breathless, the engineer in anger asked him why he did not get off the track. "Go off the track!" roared the mountaineer, "if I'd ever took to plowed land the thing would have caught me for sure."

CHURCH BUILT OUT OF ONE TREE.

There is a Baptist church in Santa Rosa, Cal., holding 200 persons, which is built entirely of timber, saved out of a single redwood tree. Timbers, weather board and inner lining are all of wood, there being no plaster, bricks or mortar about it. The roofing, too, is made of shingles sawed from the same tree, and after it was all finished there were 60,000 shingles left. A sister tree in the above furnish employment for two years to two hard-working men, who reduced it to shingles.

LIFT OF THE HEART.
When we stand with the woods around us
And the great boughs overhead;
When the wind blows cool on our foreheads
And the breath of the pines is shed;
When the song of the thrush is ringing
Between the sound and the silence
Comes a sudden lift of the heart.
When we seek with the clearer vision
That grief, the revealer brings
For the threads that are shot together
In the close-wrought web of things,
And find that pain is woven
Into love and joy and art—
Between the search and the solace
Comes a sudden lift of the heart.
And when life's farthing candle
Gutters and flares and sinks;
When the eye no longer wanders
And the brain no longer thinks;
When only the hand plucks idly
At the sheet till the spirit parting
Does there come between living and dying
A sudden lift of the heart.

NOT GUILTY.

"Look here," said the irate man, who had purchased a lot, sight unseen, in Frogmore, the newest residential suburb. "I've been swindled and I'll have the law on you." "What now?" asked the imperturbable boomer. "There isn't a house within a mile of the lot I bought!" "Well, who said there was?" "You, sir—you did!" "Why, my dear sir, you must be dreaming. I said nothing of the sort." "Didn't I ask you if there were any residences close by?" "I believe you did." "And didn't you answer, 'Just lots'?" "Yes." "Well, don't you call that a misrepresentation?" "Certainly not. Isn't that what you found around there—'just lots'?"

DODGE TAG IS A GOOD GAME.

All boys who have played "tag" will learn very easily how to play "dodge tag," and will like this variation of the old favorite. The most important thing to remember is that you must not run in a straight line further than any given distance, or any distance equal to the length between so and so; whatever you desire it to be. As the one who is "it" comes to "tag" you, you must dodge him. After you have played for a little while you find yourself as supple as an eel. Just as you are going to be "tagged," and the one who is "it" is quite sure he has you this time, with a turn of the heel or toe and a twist of the body, away you go and he is quite disappointed. There are only two other rules to remember. No player can run "home" while he is being chased, and the player who is "it" must not tag the same person twice in succession.

THE BOY RECOGNIZED THE JUSTICE'S FACE.

Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court, is from Kansas, and his state is justly proud of him. Soon after his elevation to the supreme bench, says the Kansas City Journal, a cigar manufacturer in Topeka dedicated a ten-cent domestic cigar to the jurist, named it "Our Justice," and on the cover of each box pasted a portrait of Mr. Brewer. A few years ago the justice was in Topeka on a business trip. The hotel clerk recognized him, and the negro bell-boy, although he had no idea who the newcomer was, knew from the way he was ordered about that the patron was of some consequence. Going up in the elevator, the negro stared constantly at the tall, dignified man. Suddenly the black face was wreathed in smiles, and the boy said— "Seuss me, boss, but aint you the gemmen dat invented dem 'Ouah Justice' cigars." This reminds one of the man who was calling famous persons who "parted their names in the middle." "And then," he said, "there is 'E Pluribus Unum,' the man that makes the bass drums."

The Best

The Chatham Business College

CHATHAM, ONT.
It is unquestionably Canada's greatest business school. No other school gets such RESULTS. It is now current talk throughout the country that the student who wants the best training and a good position when graduated must attend this school. 250 students placed in year 1900 1901 1902 1903

If these were placed in picturesque positions worth $3 or $4 per week, the showing would not be worth the space in this paper that it takes to tell it. But when the salary averaged 5000 per annum, a few of them over $10,000, the public should know that no other business school in Canada publishes such lists and gets such RESULTS. Many of our former graduates are now commanding salaries from $3500 to $10000 annually. WHY SHOULD IT NOT BE YOU? We pay your rail way fare up to $5.00. God's word is Chatham, 2-20 to $2.75. For the handsome catalogue published by any business school in Canada write D. McLAUGHLIN & Co., Chatham, Ont.
