

MOUTHS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

milestone behind her?

I do.

And the other day I caught sight of an exceptionally fine example of this rare species—or rather I thought I had.

She was sitting across from me in the trolley car, and at first I caught only fugitive glimpses of her between strap-hangers. She wore the trimmest of tailored suits and a simple, a thoroughly stylish hat was placed at the right angle on her charmingly styled gray hair. And then, just as I was saying to myself, "well that woman's husband and children must be proud of her," a group of strap-hangers moved on and gave me a full face view.

Whereupon I changed my mind.

For the woman's face was completely marred by a very ugly mouth.

It was one of those tight, hard mouths that spoil the prettiest faces. It wasn't of an essentially ugly shape, —in fact, it was probably very pretty once upon a time,—but it had evidently been distorted into its present condition by the temperament of its owner.

—And truly, that hard, repellent line across her face completely marred her face and indeed the whole effect of her otherwise charming appearance.

If you are any student of faces at all, you must surely have noticed how many of the faces you see in the trolley cars, in the streets, in the shops, in short, everywhere you go, are marred by ugly mouths.

I don't mean intrinsically homely mouths, but mouths made ugly by the character, habits and temperaments of their owners.

How many tight mouths, how many sensuous mouths, how many discontented mouths, how many haughty mouths we see everywhere. When once in a while we catch a glimpse of a sweet, sensitive, beautiful mouth, it is like finding a wild flower growing in the cracks of a city pavement.

Have you noticed, too, how rare is a mouth with the corners turned up? There are at least ten straight, even mouths and ten others with mournfully drooping corners, to one with the perky, upward curve which means that the owner of that mouth has the priceless gift of happiness.

We make our mouths more than any other feature of our faces. Our lives write themselves out in the shape of the mouth and the lines about it with striking clearness. It doesn't seem as if even a child could fail to see the hardness of some mouths. Mouths advertise a man or woman's character as blazingly and blatantly as an electric sign.

What is your mouth saying about you?

Is it a charm or a deformity, an advertisement or a warning?

Look in the glass and see.

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes Mrs. LYDIA McDONALD, of Macosta, Mich., Route 1. "I had nervous chills and numb spells and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a floating kidney. I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would never have an operation. Then I tried taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than for years."

"My daughter is now taking the 'Prescription' and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery also the 'Pillars' for nervousness and weakness. These remedies have helped her ever so much in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement.

Household Notes.

Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved.

A weak solution of carbolic acid applied carefully to ink stains on carpets will remove them. If this changes the color, it may be restored by ammonia water.

To keep the table salt dry and soft, dry it, then crush it under a rolling pin till perfectly free from lumps; and sift into it a tablespoonful of cornstarch.

A recipe for axle grease is a pound of tallow, half a pound of castor oil, quarter of a pound of black lead. Melt the tallow and rub the whole together.

Vaseline stains may be removed from wash goods by soaking in wood alcohol and rubbing with the hands, then wash in hot soapsuds. Keep the alcohol away from fire.

A good play dress for a child can be made from a man's worn shirt. Cut it Dorothy style, and the work is very little, not to mention the saving in the youngster's clothes.

Before putting away spare silver clean it thoroughly, then wrap it in dark blue paper with camphor balls in the parcel, and it will be found bright even months afterward.

RELIEVED HER RHEUMATISM

She's Glad She Picked Up a Sample Bottle of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

Mrs. R. Mead, Sr., an Auburn, Ont. lady, tells this interesting story of how she conquered her ancient enemy, Rheumatism.

"I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for a great many years. I have used different medicines but they have never done me much good."

"We picked up a sample bottle of your Liniment at our gate and I used it, and to my surprise it relieved me wonderfully. We secured two bottles from our store-keeper and I must tell you it relieved the pain, and I would not be without it now."

It is hard to understand how Douglas' Egyptian Liniment can so quickly and so surely relieve the most torturing pains of man or beast. But it can and does do it, where other remedies utterly fail.

is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and taken a rich brown color the heat should be lessened to what cooks call a "soaking heat" and the cake should be kept in this moderate heat until a pointed knife or a skewer stuck in the middle of the cake without uncooked paste sticking to it.

Milk

BY H. L. RANN.

Milk is a pale blue beverage which is coaxed from the lowing kine with the bare hands, allowed to ferment and then sold to the ultimate consumer by the half pint. Nearly all of the milk which is sold to strangers has to be diluted with a good quality of cistern water, in the ratio of about 16 to 1, in order to prevent the purchaser from becoming inebriated.

Milk is manufactured in large quantities by the domestic cow, which stores it up during the day time and lets go of it hurriedly in the hush of twilight, at the request of the hired man. Whenever the hired man meets a cow which is reluctant to perform this simple household duty, he appeals to her finer nature by striking her heavily with both feet. Sometimes this renders the cow dissatisfied, and she retaliates by running one leg through the milk pail.

When milk has stood around in comparative idleness for several hours, without being tampered with by the cat, it grows a rich yellow roofing, called cream, which is skimmed off several inches below the surface. What is left is then bottled and sold to people whose stomachs are perfectly fearless. No cream is allowed to enter a milk bottle unless the proprietor of the dairy is afflicted with attacks of intermittent blindness.

Milk never turns sour until it is time to spray it into the morning coffee, when it has to be revived with soda. If it has gone so far that a putorator can't reach it, it is used as a substitute for lemon extract in making pies, pancakes and dyspeptics.

Condensed milk is a pre-shrunken product which is considered a great delicacy by people who have never seen any kind of cream except the complexion bleach. It will keep indefinitely in the house of a man who has once lived on a farm.

Buttermilk is a salubrious by-product which can be enjoyed by anybody with a cultivated taste and a cast-iron will. It is harder to cultivate a deep thirst for buttermilk than it is to read Browning without.

The Late Mr. Thos. C. Duder

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Since my departure from St. John's, now twenty years ago, welcome bundles of your brightly edited paper have reached me at irregular intervals, but it is many months since I saw a copy until this morning. This has obviously been sent to draw my attention to the death of a greatly cherished friend, Mr. Thos. C. Duder, late Stipendiary Magistrate of Bonne Bay.

May I be permitted to pay brief tribute to one of the blithest and kindest souls I have met in a ministry of 30 years? Since I returned to England the ranks of my Newfoundland friends have been cruelly thinned and the tidings of their loss has given me great grief; but between myself and "Tom" Duder there was special intimacy. I knew him first during a happy sojourn in your northern capital. In charge of the branch establishment of E. Duder & Co. at Fogo, he was not very accessible nor was he altogether remote.

At least twice during the rigorous winter of 1882 and 1883 he came to preside over certain functions at Twillingate, his fine roan horse Charlie drawing his sleigh over the glistering highway of the frozen sea. Mr. Duder's well-set-up form and merry, open, health-tanned face, his underlying spirituality, his cheery speech, made him a favourite visitor with our congregations in the north.

During my stay in Bonnavista I saw less of my friend, but on my marriage and removal to Musgrave Harbor he and his became important factors in our lives.

My wife, a Londoner, will never to her dying day forget the solicitude of her Fogo friends from the moment she landed at the stage, on the sheltered side of the island, on a night too wild to admit of the s.s. Plover entering the harbor. We were entertained at Mr. Duder's hospitable home, finding true English comfort there, until conditions favored our passage down the coast to Musgrave Harbor.

Midway through the year, my wife had a somewhat serious illness and the Duders insisted that she should come to Fogo to be near medical aid, and to enjoy certain amenities that were impossible in an unfinished Manse. The tender ministrations of those days left an ineffable impression, and my wife was overcome with emotion as she read her friend's obituary this morning.

The happiness of my pastorate at Cochrane Street, St. John's, was much enhanced by the fact that Mr. Duder had removed from the north and joined the membership of that Church. Of his help to me in my work there, I will simply say this: Amongst many loyal friends, there was none whose backing I valued more.

Thomas C. Duder was a Methodist by training, by conviction, and by choice. He had the gift of utterance, and in public prayer, in the days when I knew him, he had exceptional power. He had strong English sympathies, and his last visit to the Old Country was a haunting joy for long afterwards. My English friends who saw much of him and Mrs. Duder, were captivated by them both, and on the hypothesis that these were sample colonialists heartily congratulated us on our surroundings.

I find it hard to realize that this firm friend of 30 years will not be there to meet me when I pay a long-contemplated return visit to your rugged, but always, to me and mine, enchanting shores. I hope for Newfoundland's sake that Christians of his manly type are being multiplied.

May I respectfully give, through your hospitable columns, assurance of our very deep sympathy with the widow and family and friends of my beloved associate of a day, distant according to the counting of the years, but brought into strong relief by his passing.

Very faithfully yours, FREDERICK R. DUFFILL, (Wesleyan Minister).

"LET US GO IN HERE"

Said she,—No, No, No! That's four times you tried to put me off the right track this evening and upset my plans for buying. I have made up my mind before leaving the house to go in now where only DEVINE'S, where the Genuine Sale is. I know what I am doing, or least I ought after buying for forty years. I tell you again, when DEVINE'S have a Sale it is a Sale, and while the chance is here now I am going to buy up a few things and lay them aside, because it will be a long time before these things will be so cheap again.

Only six more days, ladies and gentlemen. Make good use of the time.
