

CEYLON AND INDIA TEA

Green or Black.

To get clean GREEN tea use the machine-made tea of Ceylon and India. It contains no adulterants, no sticks, no willow leaves—it's all tea.

The same is true of BLACK.

THREE DRAY LOADS

Three large dray loads of Wall Paper were delivered by the M. C. R. dray to us week before last, about 6 tons all told, and we expect another dray load on Feb. 10. This will be by far the largest stock ever carried by any dealer in Aylmer, being in round numbers 30,000 rolls, with some 174 different patterns outside of the Ingrains of which we have 14 different shades. This too is the largest assortment ever shown in this town and we doubt if it is equalled in any town of this size in Ontario.

The patterns were carefully selected by us from the two largest Canadian manufacturers and one of the largest American manufacturers, each giving us control of their papers for Aylmer and district.

Buying as we did in large quantities we were able to secure prizes from 10 to 15 per cent. lower than regular manufacturer's prices and we are giving our customers advantage of this reduction.

More later about our Wall Paper styles, colorings, quality, prices, etc.

Our stock is now in shipshape and ready for selling.

Paper early before the paper hangers get rushed.

The Meaning Of It.

A trade mark is a protection to the honest—a menace to the dishonest manufacturer.

While a purchaser must depend more or less on his own judgment, a trade mark on the goods confirms that judgment and keeps him in the right path.

Imitation is the invader of almost every business today, but no other shoe manufacturer can use the Slater frame trade mark with which every "Slater Shoe" is branded.

Every pair Goodyear Welted, the same as hand made but the work is perfectly uniform.

Price $5.00 or $3.50.

GREEN BAG STORIES.

SOME QUEER FEES THAT HAVE BEEN OFFERED TO ATTORNEYS.

Country Produce, a Souvenir Spoon, Service as a Washerwoman and Other Things Tendered as Payment For Advice in Legal Matters.

Sometimes there are fabulously large fees paid to attorneys for services which seem trifling in comparison, but it is only sometimes, not always, that such fees are paid. The boy who is educated for the law who thinks that within a year after he "hangs out his shingle" he will have a practice which will insure him a competence will find that he is "up against" an entirely different proposition when he enters on his chosen career. Even the old lawyers do not always get cash fees, and the stories of queer fees that have been paid to Milwaukee lawyers alone would fill a volume. Burglars' loot, farm produce, labor of all descriptions, almost everything imaginable, would appear on the list.

The story of a fee told by one young lawyer is one of the kind where a lawyer does not like to have his name mentioned, but it probably wasn't his fault. A visitor was in the bachelor's den of the young lawyer when he noticed an engraved spoon hanging by a ribbon among some photographs, as though it might be a relic of some sentimental collegian's love affair.

"That spoon is my fee for clearing a client one time," said the owner of the decoration. "I had that given to me after I defended old Bill Bradley, the burglar." "When I was practicing up north," said Judge W. H. Halsey, "I had a fee in kind that I appreciated as much as I have $500 fees at other times. I had defended an old farmer in a small suit, though I did not expect to get any pay from him. The suit was decided in our favor, and the old farmer and his wife went home. Some months afterward the two came in to my office with a package and a bundle tied up in a handkerchief. The package was a roll of butter, the handkerchief bundle was hazelnuts, and from the old farmer's pockets came two big rosy checked apples. That butter, apples and nuts fee was as satisfactory to me as any I ever received."

"For ten years I have never paid to have an umbrella mended," said one lawyer.

"The rich landlord of the story book style wanted the store the old crippled umbrella man was using for a shop and started to follow the old fellow out. I fixed him so that he was allowed to stay, and ever since that I have taken my rain shields to him for fee mending. That was all the fee I received for that case too."

"I had the secrets of my own lodge offered to me as payment for a service," said one attorney who belongs to several secret orders. "I was sitting in my office one day when a well dressed woman came in and wanted advice. Her husband, to whom she was but recently married, was a member of a secret society."

"I think it's perfectly horrid of him, too," she said, "to have secrets and not to tell them to me. When he married me, he said he would share everything with me, and the first thing I ask almost he won't do. Can't you make him?"

"I asked her to what lodge he belonged, and she told me the name of an order of which I myself was a member. Then she went on:

"I tell you what, if you will make him tell them to me I will tell them to you to pay you for making him do what I want. That's fair, isn't it? I should think you would like to know such things—need them in your business, you know."

"I didn't accept that fee."

"I had a good offer from one woman that I did accept," continued the attorney, "for it was too good to refuse, although it was not in cash. I had represented her in an action for divorce, and after the suit had been won she wanted me to accept part payment in hand made lace. The samples of lace she showed me were exquisite, so I told her it would be all right. She gave me about 10 yards of the lace, and it was worth every cent of what was credited her for it."

"I was paid in washing for a divorce I secured," said J. H. Phil. "A woman came to me one time with a tale of woe about her husband and wanted me to get a divorce for her. She said that she didn't want any work done for her for nothing, but that she was not able to pay money. She would do my washing for 25 weeks, though, if I would free her from her husband. She refused to let me act in charity for her, and as she wanted a divorce so she could marry another man I accepted her offer, and she washed away literally her marriage ties."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

He Was Too Confident.

"When I hear of victims of overconfidence, I always think of young Mr. Spiffins," remarked Mr. Penn to Mr. Pitt.

"What about Spiffins?"

"Well, he was confident that if he could marry the wealthy Miss Rocks he would always have plenty of money."

"Well?"

"Well, he married her, but he finds that he was overconfident."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Produced Results.

"Please, lady, gimme a penny," pleaded the ragged little beggar.

"Good gracious, child!" exclaimed the kind hearted lady, giving him a nickel, "are those the best shoes you've got?"

"Yes, indeed," he replied, his eye kindling with professional pride. "I couldn't get no better for my business. They don't do a thing but bring de nickels out."—New York World.

An Expensive Treat.

Dykerheights—Well, I don't take a girl to any more of those plays with their scenes laid on the ocean.

Bensonhurst—No?

Dykerheights—No, sir! After we were at the play "Sag Harbor" last night Miss Plumper said it made her feel as hungry as though she had been to the seashore, and our lunch cost me $10.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Poetry.

The night wind stirs uneasily, "Why do you croon?" asked owl in fretful cadence.

"Well, I have to do something that rhymes with moon, of course!" sighs the night wind.

There is poetry in nature.—Detroit Journal.

The Dialect Terror.

"Vere will I find some definitions of canal?"

"In dot ditchenary, of course."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
