The Premier then referred to the bill. The principle, as far as municipal taxation was concerned, he said, was on the statute book. The nev feature provided for an appraisement by a board of assessors. He thought we had nearly reached the time when the railways should bear their burdens of taxation. A question was, were our railways sufficiently productive? He thought that the railways could bear their share of taxation, and to what extent should be thoroughly considered Mr. Ross recommended that the bill be referred to the select committee mentioned yesterday to consider the assessment act.

Mr. Whitney agreed with the Premier that the general assessment act could not be considered separately from this bill. He said that an attempt was made at one time by the member for West Torento to call to the aid of the farmers and producers, the influence and power of the Dominion Government in order to relieve the farmers of $500,000 Continued on page 4.)
