Many old-timers found themselves disfranchised. Elijah Westman, who has been votating on the same property for 20 years, found he had no vote. Peter Ryan tendered his vote and was refused. William Crocker, a young but experienced voter, found he wasn't in it, and many others could be mentioned. So many complaints of the omission of the names of old residents came in that Clerk Bleving at length conceived a horrible suspicion that be might be left off himself. He was overjoyed when he consulted the St. David's Ward book to find that he had escaped the decimation.
Quite a number did not vote for this reason. They left their residences before the opening of the booths, and as they could not vote at any boot both was that assigned for their residences they refused to journey back again to exercise their franchise. Expensive Voting.The vote at many of the booths was very light—lighter than ever known before. In deed it is said that at one booth, No. 4 St; George's, there was but one voter on the list and he voted. It cost about $15 or $17 to register that man's vote—that is $6 for the man who asked him bis name, $2 for the ore that wrote it dollars for the rent of the safes.
