res by Big Batsmen in the Maritime—International Match.

The cricketers almost completed an innings on the lawn yesterday in the match. Canada's International v. Maritime Provinces, nothwithstanding the rain. Beginning at 3 o'clock, Henry decided to bat. All were out for 68, MacIntosh and the Bluenose captain batting well for their runs. The Dominion eleven had just 67 to their credit when time was up and eight wickets down. Terry, Lex Martin and Wadsworth did best with the willow. McGiverin took six wickets for 33 runs, Wadsworth two for seven and Laing two for 22. Play will be resumed this morning. The score:

Rumor has it that the Sioux City A.C. Rumor has been allowed to have terms of the rum of the last years. The debt to China has eaten up a great part of the revenue, and Min Yung Jun has supplied the deficit by cutting down the terms for which the magistrates are appointed. At the same cutting down the terms for which the magistrates are appointed. At the same time he has not decreased the price of their offices, and they have had to squeeze all the money they could possibly get out of the people in order to come out even at the end of nine months instead of three years. The result is instead of three years. The result is that in some parts of Corea starvation practically stares the people in the face, and this was the cause of the rebellion The rebellion was not against the king, but against his officials, and had the king not foolishly sent his troops against the rebels he might have escaped his present troubles and the war between China and Laren defeared.

been selling certificates to men about Seoul stating that they had received from one thousand to twenty thousand cash apiece for these. Each of the foreign legations has a number of these keso soldiers, which are detailed to it from the service of the king, and my soldiers were of this character. An outrageous instance of squeezing occurred not long ago in connection with the Russian legation, and it was carried on reous instance or connection with the telegraph ago in connection with the assian legation, and it was carried on long time before the Russian minister and it out. These kesos went out into were in a long time before the Russian minister found it out. These kesos went out into the country and found men who were in debt to people in Seoul. They told them that the Russian minister had bought the claims against them, and that they must be paid with high interest. They put them in chains and brought them right to the legation and kept them in the outhouses, which are reserved for the kesos, and which surround every large Corean establishment. Here they whipped them from time to time with paddles. They would strip them half naked, suspend them by their elbows, and torture them by touching their bare legs with red-hot pokers. Now and then they would let them out in the yard, and if the minister came in sight, would warn them that they had better be quiet, for he was a dangerous man, and was already inclined to cut their heads off for their non-payment of the money. Think of such a thing actually going on for weeks without the minister knowing it, and I am told that a somewhat similar state of affairs prevailed for a short time in connection with the quarters of one of the missionaries.

The greatest squeezers in Corea are the missionaries.

The greatest squeezers in Corea are the Chinese, and the Chinese Minister, Yuan, is supposed to make a great deal of money in this way. The Chinese counsel at Chemulpo made something like $5,000 out of a squeeze, which he manipulated in some way, on the shipments of rice from Corea just before the present trouble, and the whole of the social and governmental structure of Corea and of China seems to me to be honeycombed with corruption and bribery.

In horievry.

There is nowhere in the world that the almighty dollar is worth more to a man than it is in Corea. He can often save his skin by plating the palm of his enemy with silver, and persons sentenced to flogging can ransom their punishment with money. They have, in fact, a fixed rate for this in Corea. Ten blows of the bamboo will be omitted on the payment of about $5: twenty blows for $10, and so on upward. There are few men who would not give all they have rather than have their thighs reduced to a jelly, and the bamboo is a great persuader. At the same time officials are sometimes punished for their cruelty, and those who cause the death of persons by torture, receive 100

Still, the punishments are bad enough. They are far worse than anything known outside of China, and the wives and family of rebels and criminals, even to the third and fourth generation, are included in the sentences of their husbands and fathers. Here is a curious method, which I am told, prevails in Seoul of executing the fathers of rebels. It is almost necessary to understand the method, which I am told, prevails in Seoul of executing the fathers of rebels. The rooms are heated by fires is which run through flues, covering every part of the floors of the rooms. These floors are of brick or mortar, and they are covered with a thick, white paper, well oiled. With a good fire, they turn the rooms into ovens, and a small room soon becomes a furnace if a big fire is built under it. Among the lowest classes in Corea are the butchers, and it is in a butcher's house outside the west gate of Seoul that the fathers of rebels are sometimes poisoned. The poison is mixed with rice water, which has been left over night in order that its taste may be bitter. The officer of the law takes the man to this house. He wears wooden clogs, and thus keeps his feet from the red hot floor, upon which he puts the man, and where he forces him to drink the poisoned water.
