DRILL PAY FOR CITY CORPS

| Month | Description | Descript non dollars the city battainons would suffer. As a result of the very strong representations which were made this alternoon, it is almost certain that the drill pay for the city regiments will be forthcoming. Mr. Foster's speech evinced a warm interest in the welfare of the militia, and his expression of opinion that he would like to see all the volunteers drilled annually and less spent on the permanent corps evoked tremendous applause.

The deputation was introduced by The deputation was introduced by Major Royal Those who spoke were:

SITUATIONS WANTED

The deputation was introduced by Major Royals Those who spoke were:

Col. Tisdale, Hon. J. M. Gibson, Col. Massey, Major Ibbotson, Col. Prior, M.P., Col. Henshaw, Major Delamere, Col. Starke, Mr. Kenny, M.P., Major Bruce, Royal Grenadiers, Toronto; Major Markham, St. John; Major Sutherland, M.P., Col. Burland and others.

Where the Drill Money Goes. The deputation strongly urged that ity battalions be drilled this year and city battalions be drilled this year and mentioned among the reasons therefor the following points: That the city corps fund their drill for the purpose of providing for an annual review, also to purchase heimets, leggings, pay drill instructors, support regimental bands, pay an adjutant, fitting of uniforms, cost of armories, purchase of uniforms for men over the authorized number and other expenses of a purely military character. For this year these expenses have already been largely incurred and it was claimed that it would be a serious blow to the efficiency of the force under der these circumstances to have the ander these circumstances to have the ander these circumstances to have the annual drill pay withheld. It was pointed out also that in addition to the amount derived from the annual pay the officers and men contribute largely out of their own pockets towards the objects named. Foo Much Spent on the Permanent Corps Hon. Mr. Poster, in reply, said that no one sympathised more than he with the active militia. He did not pretend to know anything pertaining to the mysteries of the force, but he had given some attention to the subject generally, and had come to the conclusion that the larger part of the money which Canada could bestow on her military force should be on the active militia. He had conceived the idea that too much altogether was being spent on the per-nament corps, while the active militia

Mr. Foster: Continuing, said that with eference to the rural militia, hey were to be drilled this year. The overnment never had any other idea that point, and a supplementary vote would be brought down to provide for them. (Applause.) With regard to the reduction in the militia appropriation for next year, he thought it was impossible on make the vote any larger than it is, but it might be possible to effect some economies in other parts of the militia economies in other parts of the militial service whereby a portion of the appropriation could be devoted to paying the city corps. (Hear, hear.) For his part, he sympathized very much with all that the gentleman had said as to the force in Canada. Anything he could do, in conjunction with Mr. Dickey, to make matters smooth for the militia, he would be glad to do it. (Applesse) be glad to do it. (Applause.) Will Be Able to Fix It. Col. Denison called attention to the fact that there was an unexpended amount voted for the purchase of new rifles, which might be devoted to paying the city corps.

Col. Tisdale said that if the Govern-ent carried out that suggestion, they ould count upon the party support of the House.

Mr. Foster remarked that he would like to see the rural corps drilled every year. (Loud applause.)

Hon. Mr. Dickey said he had listened to the representations which had been made with a great deal of pleasure, and made with a great deal of pleasure, and as far as lay in his power he was willing is in the fact that he meets people in every way. (Cheers.)

Reopening Minico Riffe Ranges.

The Toronto military men in town today, Majors Bruce, Delamere and MacDonald, accompanied by Cols. Denison, Bacon, Gibson and Major Hughes, waited upon Hon. Mr. Dickey and urged that steps be taken to immediately reopen the 200-yards' range at Mimico, which has been closed for over a year owing to alleged danger to an adjoining farm. The deputation pointed out the great disadvantage under which the force were by this range being closed. The minister rereceived the request favorably. The deputation also spoke about the management of the range, the department to bear the financial burden, which now devolved upon corps using the range.

I know the country so well. The dread monotony robs it of novelty or interest. I have been over the ground so often that I believe I know every forest, every cotton patch and every crossroad on the cotton patch and every crossroad on the entire circuit. > How is it about gossip? Is there a justification for it? Does it serve any purpose useful enough to warrant its existence? Does a person who refuses to take part in it show himself superior to his fellows, or does he shirk an obliga-tion that he owes to society? When Jack Hairbrain's attentions to young around and discusses them, is the community engaged in a valuable work that demands to be done; or is it merely giv-ing evidence of its malicious dispositions and the empliness of its mind? If we should see Jake Hardman running should see Jake Hardman running away with Charles McFliget's pocket-book, we should think ill of ourselves if we did not cry, "stop thief," and join in the chase after the rascal. But suppose we think we see Jack Hairbrain in the act of robbing McFliget of the affections of his wife. Are we really entitled to think better of ourselves for holding our tongues and overlooking this apparent larceny, than overlooking this apparent larceny, than if we expressed our sentiments freely one to another? If there is enough talk, Flora McFliget's ears will be closestopped indeed if some of it does not find its way into them. Is it a kindness to her or to Jack to let their behavior page unpoticed? pass unnoticed? When there is a bridge down on the railroad and a train is coming, it may be disconcerting to the engineer to halloo and wave a red flag at him, but after all it is kinder to jar his nerves a little while there is still time to pull up, than out of an extreme politeness to let him go to destruction. If Jack Hairbrain and Mrs. McFliget actually elope, newspapers will attend to their case down to its remotest de-tails; but so long as their dispositions are susceptible of cure, a worse thing may happen than for the gossip's court to take note of their case and try to laugh them back to good behavior.—

Use of Tobacco in Illness. If tobacco has been violently de nounced it has had ardent defenders The most recent of them, however, Dr. Ludwig Jankau, of Munich, drops the apologetic tone and stoutly maintains that tobacco is not merely permissible, but is actually indicated in the case of the sick and convalescent under cer-tain conditions. After surgical opera-tions, for instance—except those on the abdomen or bladder—smoking is bene-ficial if the patient feels the desire for it. In diseases of the eyes and mouth tobacco should be forbidden, but in such cases the patient is not likely to wish to smoke. In peritonitis, typhlitis, and perityphlitis smoking is also likely to be harmful. In organic diseases of the harmful. In organic diseases of the heart mild tobacco may be allowed in moderation to patients who have been moderation to patients who have been smokers from early life. In the early stages of phthisis smoking is often useful, owing to its undoubted bactericidal power. Dr. Jankau thinks it retards the development of the disease. He thinks the disinfectant properties of tobacco also make it of service in affections of the mouth, but the quality, of course, should be of the mildest.—British Medical Journal.
