Miss Mabel Dewar returned to Toronto on Monday to resume her duties at nurse-in-training at Grace Hospital.

Miss Myrtle Haney returned to Essex after spending her Easter holidays at her home, London road.

Mr. Don Trisisky, Detroit is visiting his uncle Mr. E. B. Donnelly "The Wilkows."

Miss Jeanette McEwen spent the week-end with her friend Miss Amy Cameron, Watford.

A large crowd attended the debate between the representatives of the Young People's Society of Knox church, Warwick, and South Plympton on Friday evening, April 25.

The subject of the debate was: Resolved that it is easier for a young person to be a Christian today, than at any other time in the world's history.

The affirmative was upheld by Miss Catherine MacDougall and Mr. Barrett Forbes of S. Plympton, and the negative by Miss. June Band and Mrs. Lloyd Cook of Knox. This was the final debate of a series and judges decided in favour of the negative, thus making Knox Y. P. S. the champion debaters of the group which comprised the Presbyterian Young Peoples' Societies of Plympton, Watford, West Adelaide, Alvinston, Inwood, Petrolia, Wyoming, Knox, and South Plympton. Mr. Arnold McEwen president of South Plympton society was chairman for the evening. The meeting opened with singing, scripture reading, and prayer by Rev. H. V. Workman. In addition to the debate there was a short programme, solos by Miss Mary McPhedran; quartettes by Messrs. F. Bolton, S. O'Brien, K. McCormick and Dr. Houghton; reading by Miss Jeanette McEwen and community singing. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

Tell us not in mournful numbers that this town's on the bum; rouse up from your peaceful slumbers; get out and make things hum. If we go to work in earnest, we can make things hit in high; "Just thou are, to dust returned," is a song of by and by. All the past is done forever you can't call one moment back—and the future may come never, this is true, so help me Mack. Now's the time to do your boosting, do not wait tomorrow's dawn, in the grave you may be roosting, all your boosting gone. Lay away your little hammer, grab a horn and toot a few; squelch the kicker's dad-blamed hammer with a joyful blast or two. This old town is sure a pippin', and we ought to boost it big; when we hear some growler yipin', we should smite him on the wig. Mighty oaks that grow and flourish came from acorns plain and small; with your boosting you may nourish something that may help us all; something that may prove a blessing to the toiling sons of men—that's the point that I am stressing—boost and boost, then boost again. People love the smiling rooster, for him they loudly cheer, but they hate the knocking rooster, long to gild him on the ear. Boost your country and your business, boost the people in your town, they will dub you wise and witty and you'll gain a wide renown.

AN EDITOR'S DISCRETION
"Keep it out of the papers," is the cry which the local newspaper publisher frequently hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting scarcely worth a "thank you." A newspaper is a peculiar thing in the public's eye. The news-gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of one item and is abused because he does not get another. Young men and young women, as well as older persons, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper office and beg the editor not to notice their escapades. The very next week they condemn the same paper for not having written up another party doing the same thing, forgetting apparently their late visit to the printing office. The discretion of a country editor is a wonderful thing and many are the stories upon which he turns his back, because of a good wife or mother who would be grievously hurt to see the thing in print. Don't blame the editor for keeping some things out of the paper, but be thankful that he has a heart and is not as indifferent to the feelings of others as the cold and calculating chap who sits at the desk on the big city papers.

One Flies to the North

"Contact!" "Contact!" The last audible words between pilot and mechanic are spoken, and with stentorian roar of engine and propeller the giant, human and baggage freighted plane, glides swiftly over the surface of the Quinze. One feels the churning waters tumbling at the bottom of the boat until momentum has increased to such extent that a touch of the "stick" causes the Vickers Viking to slowly rise.

Two turns in as many minutes and the passenger, having adjusted his goggles and seated himself more comfortably, peers, at first cautiously, over the side of the pit, and far below him lies the little town of Angliers, the head of the Canadian Pacific steel which twists and turns in and out of the forest to the south like a living thing. The earth is as a map below, lakes and rivers shining in the distance and beneath, and ragged patches of bush and arable land smudged here and there like a child's attempt to depict relief.

Turning east the plane heads down Lake Quinze, following the water course to Lake Expanse, — one sees from the air how appropriate is its name, — thence north for some fifteen miles up the Ottawa River and further north over one of its tributaries to Lake Fortune and Rouyn, upon nearing which the plane leaves the glorious rolling clouds and gradually sinks until once more the water tumps the bottom of the hull, checking it with sudden jerks which tend to slow the boat until it stops within a few feet of tie-up. One wonders how the pilot could, at such a speed, have judged his distance so well. But then he does the same thing more than once each day bringing to the new Gold Fields of Quebec, in fifty minutes, passengers and supplies which, before the air service was started took two days at the least to arrive.

Commencing May 18th the Air Service to the Gold Fields will be regular on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, large flying boats capable of carrying five people being scheduled to meet all Canadian Pacific trains at Angliers. This service, which will eliminate the hardships of the past and enable prospectors and tourists to travel to the Rouyn Mining District in less than an hour will include regular stops where they are required and accommodation is available.

King Tut's Telephone

QUITE naturally, effective work by the Howard Carter party at the tomb of King Tutankhamen in the valley of the Kings, was out of the question without the aid of the telephone. The problem of an operator was solved by arranging for the services of the turbaned gentleman shown on the left. The contrast between him and the alert, intelligent young lady of the type we know so well, is striking, but it is averred that, under the conditions imposed by the excavators, the Egyptian filled the bill very well.
