William Faversham's "Othelle"
Monday.

The commanding feature of the second and final week of William Faversham's notable engagement at the Alexandra Theatre in Skaksperian reservoire will be his premier presentapertoire will be his premier presenta-tion of "Othello," scheduled for next Monday evening, with succeeding per-formances during the week. The same illustrious assemblage of distinguished stars that have supported Mr. Faver-sham in his mammoth revivals of "Ro-meo and Juliet" and "Julius Caesar" evidence next week including Mr. Fa-versham, Cecilia Loftus, Julie Opp, Odette Tyler, Mrs. Thomas Wise, R. D. MacLean, Pedro De Cordoba, Ar-thur Elliott and a superb company of was Mr. Faversham's original intention to present "Othello" for the enbut in response to the numerous requests for repetitions of "Romeo and Juliet" and "Julius Caesar," from persons who were unable to procure seats during the present week, he has arranged for single representations of three plays next week. "Romeo and Juliet" will therefore be given at the Saturday performance and "Julius Caesar" will be the attraction on Friday evening. At all the other performances of the week "Othello" will be the bill including the Thursday

From many standpoints Mr. Faver sham's "Othello" is expected to be his crowning achievement. Scenically it is more massive and lavishly beautiful this week, or the epoch-marking pre-sentation of "Julius Caesar" that has Paversham's assemblage of stars to the very finest advantage. Mr. Faverlago, one of the most interesting and lery and one that seems particularly suited to his versatile abilities. The Desdemona will be Miss Cecilia Loftus, whose interpretations will be eagerly awaited after her triumphing rendition of Juliet last Monday. Mr. MacLean will appear as Othello, which many critics the country over declare to be his finest achievement in classical roles, which is a real distinction when one remembers that Mr. MacLean is "letter perfect" in more than sixty of the most arduous parts in the realms

"Why Is the Ocean So Near the Shore?" another hit, which is being classed with her famous "Yip-I-Addy," "Rings on Her Fingers" and "Bedella." Before the second verse is over Miss Ring invariably has her audience singing the refrain with her.

Miss Ring's vehicle this season is a musical comedy, "When Claudia Smiles," written especially for her by Anne Caldwell, who wrote "The Lady of the Slipper" for Elsie Janis and Montgomery and Stone. It is said to give Miss Ring the greatest opportunity of her career. After playing Toronto Miss Ring will go into New York for her annual engagement.

Another feature of the bill is Chris Richards, the eccentric English chap. His songs are absurd and his crazy appearance and cleverness always makes him one of the attractions on any bill Violinsky is the eccentric genius on the violin and the plano. He is a young man of graceful stage appearance, his plant of the ordinary and is always sure of a laugh. Burley and Burley, the Dude and the Scot, are quaint comedians, who sing much that is original, catchy and tuneful, and as there are forty people in the cast it is safe to say that the Star Theatre will have one of the really big shows. The chorus, which is of course indispensible in the presentation of burlesque, is composed of a score of youthful misses who can sing and dance as well as appear attractive. The production of this elaborate extravaganza and burlesque requires much in the way of stage setting and costumes, and the management have been careful in supplying this. Notwithstanding that the burlesques are live with music and specialties an ollo of exceptionally strong vaudeville numbers is an imstrong vaudeville numbers is an important feature of the bill. Mr. Black has only been in Toronto a short while, but he has earned warm praise every time he appeared in pub-lic and met with great favor among music lovers. In preparing for the operatic stage and the concert platform Mr. Black studied many years in Italy and Germany and had the honor of appearing with some of the world's greatest artists.

A most important addition to the musical organizations of the American continent is the formation of the Hambourg-Leginska trio. comprises Jan Hambourg, violin; Boris Hambourg, 'cello, and Ethel Leginska, piano. It will be remembered that these
