

THE COMFORTER.

I KNOW not how, I know not when
Death's fingers shall unlock the gate
That holds thee prisoner, heart of mine,—
Come that dread hour soon or late.

But this I know. God strength will give
To thee, poor heart, and cheer the way,
And comfort bring and hope secure
When Night shall flower into Day.