Effervescent Draughts. There are many effervescent draughts, but there is one particularly which commands attention and respect for its excellence wherever it is introduced. In a recent issue La Revue Medicale says:"Abbey's Effervescent Salt is prepared to meet the requirements of the times. An effervescent draught is acknowledged by the Medical Profession as one of the most agreeable and effective vehicles whereby to administer medical agents; especially as the carbonic acid gas, generated during its administration, is in itself a sedative and is particularly soothing to a sensitive stomach." Bear in mind always that a teaspoon-
