The death of Thomas Oulton occurred at his home in Cloverdale, Albert county, N. B., on Monday night. He leaves his wife, who was formerly Miss Sarah Gar- land, of Elgin, also two daughters, Mrs. Currie Gould, of Lewisville, and Mrs. William Geldart, of Cloverdale, also one son, Joseph at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy W. Turner and little son Lewis, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., who arrived in Moncton on last Sat- ury to spend the Christmas season with Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Smith, Lower Cloverdale, were called back to Charlottetown owing to the sudden death of Mr. Turner's father, H. W. Turner.

HOPE FOR DISTRESSED HUMANITY

There has been many times of stress in this old world, but none more wide- spread, nor of greater intensity than the present. All thinking minds are de- grieved of knowing if there is good basis for the hope sometimes expressed that we are entering a new era of blessing which will bring general uplift to all mankind. "The Desire of All Nations" at the Imperial Theatre, Sunday at 8 p. m., M. A. Howlett, it is claimed, will give in his famous lecture the only basis for such good hope. Don't fail to hear him.

BUYS COFFIN, ENDS LIFE.

Despondent Widow Kills Herself After Arranging for Burial.

Depressed over the death of her son seven months ago in Mexico, Mrs. Cassie Rieplinger, a widow, committed suicide by gas in New York after she had ar- ranged for her own burial. Two other women were accidentally asphyxiated dur- ing the day, and last night gas nearly claimed two other victims, both chil- dren.

Earle Rieplinger, employed by an American engineering company in So- nora, died in June last. When word of his death reached his mother she gave up all plans for "a home for my boy." She went into a lonesome, top floor rear furnished room, where the only prospect was a couple of dying trees and the house backs. Mrs. Rieplinger often complained of being "empty-headed," and the other day she called at the home of Mrs. Rose Waite, a friend, and borrowed $100.

That afternoon she went to a Seventh avenue undertaker, and, representing her- self as a Mrs. Watson, said that she wanted to pay for the burial of "Mrs. Cassie Rieplinger of 281 West 132d street, who is about to undergo an op- eration for appendicitis and who is ex- pected to die." The burial arrangements were completed, and today they will be carried out, for beside her body there was a note—"Please don't take me to the morgue."

There will be five Sundays in Febru- ary next year, for the last time until 1948.

"To what purpose is this waste?"

—Matt. 26: 8.

(Daily Telegraph, Monday, December 15)

A man found to be in a dying con- dition from the effects of poisoning, caused from overconsumption of lemon extract, Saturday, was ordered by the doctor, who attended him, taken to the hospital in the ambulance. The driver of the ambulance refused to take the patient saying that he had orders not to take any persons who were under the influ- ence of liquor. As a consequence the man was rushed to the hospital in the police patrol, having to lie on the hard boards of the floor, as he was a stretcher case. Later, on Saturday night, he died.
