that His Majesty's Embassy should be aware of the tenor of this letter in case they heard from the Polish side of its existence. (The inference was that the Poles might make play with the fact that such a letter had been addressed to General Sikorski and imply that it went further than it did. There is, in fact, some reason to think that use of this kind has already been made of the letter. It was no doubt on the basis of the letter that the Polish Ambassador recently told Sir Ronald Campbell that he thought the United States Government were favourable to his Government's ideas on the future organisation of Central and Eastern European States.)

5. Sir Ronald Campbell observed that, as Mr. Dunn doubtless knew, the attitude of the United States Government with regard to commitments on territorial adjustments during the war, as stated to General Sikorski by Mr. Welles, corresponded with that adopted from the beginning of the conflict by His Majesty's Government, and that with regard to the question of the organisation of Central and South-Eastern Europe, His Majesty's Government had viewed with sympathy the action taken by Poland and Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Greece, to promote close mutual relationships.

I have, &c.
