

MAJOR ANDRE'S DEATH FORESEEN

Perhaps the most interesting letters in Mr. Lucas's delightful "A Swan and Her Friends" are those of the gallant and unfortunate Major Andre, whom Washington had to hang as a spy. These letters were written to Miss Seward, but obviously for her pupil, Honora Sneyd, with whom Andre was desperately but hopelessly in love. Before quitting England Andre re-visited the scenes made sacred to him by his passion, and was there introduced by Miss Seward to a poetic friend of hers named Cunningham. Cunningham was startled at first sight of Andre, whom he recognized as the hero and victim of two dreams he had had the preceding night. In the first he dreamed that he was alone in a great forest and perceived presently a horseman approaching at great speed. Before, however, the horseman reached the spot where the dreamer seemed to stand, three men, springing suddenly from their ambush, seized and bore him away. On waking from this first dream Cunningham felt greatly depressed, so interesting was the face of the captive, and so sad and certain seemed the fate in store for him. Soon falling asleep again he was yet more depressed by a second dream, in which this sad fate of the captive was disclosed to him. In this vision he found himself one of a vast multitude outside a great city, all gazing intently on the man he had seen captured in the forest, who was being led to a gibbet, whereon he was presently hanged. Andre, as my readers will remember, was seized by three American militia men on the lookout for stragglers, precisely where and how Cunningham had foreseen his capture, and was hanged in the manner foreshadowed by the second dream. These dreams were told to Mr. Newton, a friend of Cunningham's, next morning, and upon the appearance a little later of Andre he was at once identified as the doomed man.—T. P.'s Weekly.

In reply to an advertisement for a messenger boy one of the applicants was a dull youth. "How far is it from the earth to the moon?" said the lad. "I say, guv'nor, if you're going to put me on that route I don't want the job."

GOSSIP.

Every employee of the Bank of England is required to sign his name in a book on his arrival in the morning, and, if late, must give the reason therefor. The chief cause of tardiness is usually fog, and the first man to arrive writes "Fog" opposite his name, and those who follow write "Ditto." The other day, however, the first late man gave as the reason, "Wife had twins," and twenty other late men mechanically signed "Ditto" underneath.

SOME GOOD JERSEY SALES.

At the auction sale on Oct. 21st of the Kinloch Farm herd of Jerseys at Kirksville, Mo., the entire 87 head sold for an average of $151.97, going to 32 buyers from six States. Cows sold up to $525, three others bringing $400 to $495, and two bulls sold for $660. The lowest price was $60, for a young bull calf. On the day previous, at Kirksville, Mo., 52 head from the herd of C. A. Robinson, sold for an average of $97.40, going to 24 buyers, in three States. The top price for females was $265. Twenty-five females over two years old averaged $121.60. On October 21st, at Bynum, Md., J. T. Hooper sold 104 head for an average of $94, the highest price being $350, for the bull, St. Omer's King.

AYRSHIRES AND HEREFORDS AT AUCTION.

As announced in the advertisement in this paper, the Isaleigh Grange herd of 60 head of high-class Ayrshire cattle will be dispersed by auction at the farm at Danville, Que., on November 12th, including the imported bull, Netherhall Robin Hood, and a number of excellent young bulls, besides the large stock of breeding cows, a number of which have creditable records of performance, and a fine lot of heifers and heifer calves. In the sale are also nine pure-bred Herefords, male and female, most of which have been prizewinners at important fairs. A number of Yorkshire pigs will also be sold. The sale will be without reserve, as the farm has been rented, and possession must be given Nov. 15th. Danville is on the G. T. R., 90 miles east of Montreal, and the farm is close to the station.

Every Farmer Needs a Reliable Telephone.

Nowhere is a telephone more needed than in the farmer's home. It's really only in the country and small villages that the many advantages of the telephone can be fully appreciated.

But, to be of practical use, it's absolutely necessary that the telephone you have installed be reliable.

A telephone that refuses to respond at some vital moment is not only useless but positively dangerous.

Such a telephone is expensive at any price.

What every farmer needs is not a "fairweather" telephone, but one that he can rely upon under all conditions and in all weathers.

Remember that a telephone must do more than be a mere ornament in your home—it must be useful and reliable.

The cut illustrates one of the most popular and most reliable telephones made for use in country homes—a telephone that has never failed to make good—a telephone that can be absolutely depended upon under all conditions and circumstances.

Write and say that you would like to know more about private telephones and we will mail you some interesting facts, with particulars as to cost of installing, etc.

You can build and operate your own telephone line.
