

Rosland Weekly Miner.

Rosland Weekly Miner Publishing & Printing Co. Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

LONDON OFFICE: S. J. Walker, 40 Coleman Street, London, E.C. 4.

TORONTO OFFICE: CENTRAL PRESS, 40 Queen St. W., Toronto, Ont.

BARRETT AGENTS: 100 St. James St. W., Toronto, Ont.

AMSTERDAM & Co., Advertising Agents, Room 101 National Bank Building.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE OF THE WEEKLY ROSLAND MINER for all points in the United States and Canada is Two and One-Half Dollars a year.

Subscription Rates: Daily, per month, by carrier, 70c; Daily, per month, by mail, 80c; Daily, per year, by carrier, $7.50; Daily, per year, by mail, $8.50; Weekly, per half year, $4.00; Weekly, per year, $7.50; Single copies, 10c.

THE EAST KOOTENAY LICENSES: The Miner has secured reliable information from Victoria to the effect that a number of coal and petroleum licenses will be granted early next month.

This will be good news to those locators who have complied with all the requirements of the law but have, nevertheless, been denied their rights for the past year or two, owing to the rashness of the McBride government.

It is safe to say that there will be much development in the neighborhood of Lodge Pole creek and the upper Flathead river as soon as the licenses are issued, and it is more than probable that operations there will assume important proportions before the end of the present year.

But for the past policy of the government in this matter Southeast Kootenay would now be the scene of great industrial activity, but now that there is reasonable assurance that justice is to be done to all bona fide locators, there is consolation to be found in the old adage, "Better late than never."

The Miner will take considerable satisfaction in seeing the Flathead district opened to the public, for it was this journal that first exposed the deal between the railway company and the government, by which the people were to be robbed of 65,000 acres of the richest plain lands in British Columbia. It was The Miner also that forced the matter into such prominence that it became a provincial issue and the talk of Canada from Halifax to Victoria.

PREMIER AND BOOSTER: The government of British Columbia has come to a pretty pass when the premier of the day becomes a tout for an Eastern Tory newspaper, but that is just what "Chum" McBride has done. He is lending the influence and dignity of his high office to boost the circulation of the Montreal Star.

The Star, with an eye to the main chance, has declared its intention of making a more or less elaborate write-up of the natural resources of this province. As a preliminary center, the Star has turned loose a smart and pugnacious representative, and he is "working" the provincial press, the several boards of trade and every other kind of beneficial influence for a first class bunch of free advertising. We may rest assured that a corps of ad. canvassers will follow without unnecessary delay, and a systematic campaign will be inaugurated with a view to separating British Columbians from as much of their money as is possible under the circumstances. In return, the Star will give them some illustrations and lots of hot air.

The benefits of all this may be questionable, so far as the people of this province are concerned; but the Star is tolerably certain to finish ahead of the game.

Just why McBride should find it necessary to mix up the premier's office with the government with the affair is a mystery, save and except for the fact that it is like him to prostitute his office from time to time. If McBride wants to boom British Columbia he can do it best by giving us an honest and progressive government and indignantly cease his shameful bargaining with the railway companies.

ON WITH THE DANCE: "Assuredly the 'world do move,'" and if the conclusions of certain eastern physicians are to be accepted, mankind must move with it in two-step time if health and happiness would be the portion of the race from childhood to extreme age.

In short, dancing is recommended by the physicians in question as an almost universal panacea for the ills that afflict humanity.

It may be said, in passing, however, that the idea is not as yet endorsed by the entire body of the disciples of Esculapius, possibly because it has not been fully demonstrated, and whether they ever will do so is a matter of doubt, for much prejudice will have to be overcome before the world in general can be brought to accept leisure of healing from between the covers of a music book.

Children dance from instinct, and to frisk and gambol is the natural expression of the exuberant spirit of youth.

but to the mind slow to cast out old in favor of new ideas the most rhythmic gyrations devoid of the charm of spontaneity, performed by elderly persons in search of health, would take on some of the attributes of the dance of death—but that is neither here nor there.

Dr. G. E. Hall, of the university at Worcester, Mass., is telling the people of Boston that man is nearer his lost paradise when he is dancing than at any other time, and the people of Boston, who are gregarious in the matter of assimilating new ideas, profess to have discovered reason in the rithm of the new philosophy.

Naturally, time and circumstance may have something to do with a man's conception of paradise, as for instance a man with a painful vertigo would scarcely indulge in dances of bliss, dance he ever so wildly; but again, that is neither here nor there, and it is not at all in the true spirit of investigation to begin to carp with-out giving the dance a trial.

The prescriptions are varied and pleasing: Tired persons are recommended to dance the waltz, those inclined to drooping shoulders should cultivate the Highland fling and drapelets are said to be greatly benefited by the waltz and polka.

It is pointed out that in Bible times, when great age was the rule and not the exception, the dance was indulged in on all occasions of thanksgiving or joy, but it must be acknowledged that in no instance is a record of cuttings by the patriarchs given, and the therapeutic qualities of the exercise, recently discovered, were apparently unknown.

The dancing school may follow the bluegrass and dewdash fads to oblivion, along with a thousand others, if it fails to come up to expectations, it is more than likely it will, for it presupposes an abundance of time at the disposal of patients, and in a bustling nation that persons of a retiring nature will probably continue to take their "bitners" in the same old way, instead of resorting to jigs and quadrilles before meals, "as ordered."

THE LOYAL POLES: Ever since Russia seized upon Poland after a merciless war in which the Polish nobles and peasants fought side by side with a despairing and almost ferocious bravery that astonished the world, she has been using all her powerful methods to make the Poles loyal and enthusiastic subjects of their "little father," the great white czar.

Just how gradual and winning these methods have been and how well they have accomplished their purpose may be guessed from a copy of resolutions adopted at a meeting of the representatives of the Polish organizations and the Polish press in America, including all of any importance.

They represent almost entirely Poles who have emigrated to this country since the war has broken out in Russia, and now that trouble has come upon the czar they wish to testify to the loyalty that he has instilled in them.

After referring pleasantly to "the all devouring and insatiable greed of Russia" and declaring "Russia's" form of government to be to them "abhorrent and repulsive," they remark warmly that for two centuries Russia existed only by robbing and enslaving other peoples "by brutal force and treachery."

The resolutions proceed: "And, whereas, Russia has adopted the same policy of denationalization and persecution to all of the peoples whose misfortune it is to be under Russian rule, as can be shown by her recent action in depriving Finland of her constitutional rights and by the recent cruel persecution of the Jews, and—"

"Whereas, the Russian government, even toward its native population, shows the part of a malevolent step-mother, refusing the laboring rights of freedom, free association and religious freedom, and above all refusing the people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

And further we reiterate with the utmost indignation our protest against the backing the burdens and risks of conducting and operating the whole line. It is fair to argue on these facts, but people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

Rosland Weekly Miner.

Rosland Weekly Miner Publishing & Printing Co. Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

LONDON OFFICE: S. J. Walker, 40 Coleman Street, London, E.C. 4.

TORONTO OFFICE: CENTRAL PRESS, 40 Queen St. W., Toronto, Ont.

BARRETT AGENTS: 100 St. James St. W., Toronto, Ont.

AMSTERDAM & Co., Advertising Agents, Room 101 National Bank Building.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE OF THE WEEKLY ROSLAND MINER for all points in the United States and Canada is Two and One-Half Dollars a year.

Subscription Rates: Daily, per month, by carrier, 70c; Daily, per month, by mail, 80c; Daily, per year, by carrier, $7.50; Daily, per year, by mail, $8.50; Weekly, per half year, $4.00; Weekly, per year, $7.50; Single copies, 10c.

THE EAST KOOTENAY LICENSES: The Miner has secured reliable information from Victoria to the effect that a number of coal and petroleum licenses will be granted early next month.

This will be good news to those locators who have complied with all the requirements of the law but have, nevertheless, been denied their rights for the past year or two, owing to the rashness of the McBride government.

It is safe to say that there will be much development in the neighborhood of Lodge Pole creek and the upper Flathead river as soon as the licenses are issued, and it is more than probable that operations there will assume important proportions before the end of the present year.

But for the past policy of the government in this matter Southeast Kootenay would now be the scene of great industrial activity, but now that there is reasonable assurance that justice is to be done to all bona fide locators, there is consolation to be found in the old adage, "Better late than never."

The Miner will take considerable satisfaction in seeing the Flathead district opened to the public, for it was this journal that first exposed the deal between the railway company and the government, by which the people were to be robbed of 65,000 acres of the richest plain lands in British Columbia. It was The Miner also that forced the matter into such prominence that it became a provincial issue and the talk of Canada from Halifax to Victoria.

PREMIER AND BOOSTER: The government of British Columbia has come to a pretty pass when the premier of the day becomes a tout for an Eastern Tory newspaper, but that is just what "Chum" McBride has done. He is lending the influence and dignity of his high office to boost the circulation of the Montreal Star.

The Star, with an eye to the main chance, has declared its intention of making a more or less elaborate write-up of the natural resources of this province. As a preliminary center, the Star has turned loose a smart and pugnacious representative, and he is "working" the provincial press, the several boards of trade and every other kind of beneficial influence for a first class bunch of free advertising. We may rest assured that a corps of ad. canvassers will follow without unnecessary delay, and a systematic campaign will be inaugurated with a view to separating British Columbians from as much of their money as is possible under the circumstances. In return, the Star will give them some illustrations and lots of hot air.

The benefits of all this may be questionable, so far as the people of this province are concerned; but the Star is tolerably certain to finish ahead of the game.

Just why McBride should find it necessary to mix up the premier's office with the government with the affair is a mystery, save and except for the fact that it is like him to prostitute his office from time to time. If McBride wants to boom British Columbia he can do it best by giving us an honest and progressive government and indignantly cease his shameful bargaining with the railway companies.

ON WITH THE DANCE: "Assuredly the 'world do move,'" and if the conclusions of certain eastern physicians are to be accepted, mankind must move with it in two-step time if health and happiness would be the portion of the race from childhood to extreme age.

In short, dancing is recommended by the physicians in question as an almost universal panacea for the ills that afflict humanity.

It may be said, in passing, however, that the idea is not as yet endorsed by the entire body of the disciples of Esculapius, possibly because it has not been fully demonstrated, and whether they ever will do so is a matter of doubt, for much prejudice will have to be overcome before the world in general can be brought to accept leisure of healing from between the covers of a music book.

Children dance from instinct, and to frisk and gambol is the natural expression of the exuberant spirit of youth.

but to the mind slow to cast out old in favor of new ideas the most rhythmic gyrations devoid of the charm of spontaneity, performed by elderly persons in search of health, would take on some of the attributes of the dance of death—but that is neither here nor there.

Dr. G. E. Hall, of the university at Worcester, Mass., is telling the people of Boston that man is nearer his lost paradise when he is dancing than at any other time, and the people of Boston, who are gregarious in the matter of assimilating new ideas, profess to have discovered reason in the rithm of the new philosophy.

Naturally, time and circumstance may have something to do with a man's conception of paradise, as for instance a man with a painful vertigo would scarcely indulge in dances of bliss, dance he ever so wildly; but again, that is neither here nor there, and it is not at all in the true spirit of investigation to begin to carp with-out giving the dance a trial.

The prescriptions are varied and pleasing: Tired persons are recommended to dance the waltz, those inclined to drooping shoulders should cultivate the Highland fling and drapelets are said to be greatly benefited by the waltz and polka.

It is pointed out that in Bible times, when great age was the rule and not the exception, the dance was indulged in on all occasions of thanksgiving or joy, but it must be acknowledged that in no instance is a record of cuttings by the patriarchs given, and the therapeutic qualities of the exercise, recently discovered, were apparently unknown.

The dancing school may follow the bluegrass and dewdash fads to oblivion, along with a thousand others, if it fails to come up to expectations, it is more than likely it will, for it presupposes an abundance of time at the disposal of patients, and in a bustling nation that persons of a retiring nature will probably continue to take their "bitners" in the same old way, instead of resorting to jigs and quadrilles before meals, "as ordered."

THE LOYAL POLES: Ever since Russia seized upon Poland after a merciless war in which the Polish nobles and peasants fought side by side with a despairing and almost ferocious bravery that astonished the world, she has been using all her powerful methods to make the Poles loyal and enthusiastic subjects of their "little father," the great white czar.

Just how gradual and winning these methods have been and how well they have accomplished their purpose may be guessed from a copy of resolutions adopted at a meeting of the representatives of the Polish organizations and the Polish press in America, including all of any importance.

They represent almost entirely Poles who have emigrated to this country since the war has broken out in Russia, and now that trouble has come upon the czar they wish to testify to the loyalty that he has instilled in them.

After referring pleasantly to "the all devouring and insatiable greed of Russia" and declaring "Russia's" form of government to be to them "abhorrent and repulsive," they remark warmly that for two centuries Russia existed only by robbing and enslaving other peoples "by brutal force and treachery."

The resolutions proceed: "And, whereas, Russia has adopted the same policy of denationalization and persecution to all of the peoples whose misfortune it is to be under Russian rule, as can be shown by her recent action in depriving Finland of her constitutional rights and by the recent cruel persecution of the Jews, and—"

"Whereas, the Russian government, even toward its native population, shows the part of a malevolent step-mother, refusing the laboring rights of freedom, free association and religious freedom, and above all refusing the people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

And further we reiterate with the utmost indignation our protest against the backing the burdens and risks of conducting and operating the whole line. It is fair to argue on these facts, but people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

ROSSLAND WEEKLY MINER

Rosland Weekly Miner Publishing & Printing Co. Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

LONDON OFFICE: S. J. Walker, 40 Coleman Street, London, E.C. 4.

TORONTO OFFICE: CENTRAL PRESS, 40 Queen St. W., Toronto, Ont.

BARRETT AGENTS: 100 St. James St. W., Toronto, Ont.

AMSTERDAM & Co., Advertising Agents, Room 101 National Bank Building.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE OF THE WEEKLY ROSLAND MINER for all points in the United States and Canada is Two and One-Half Dollars a year.

Subscription Rates: Daily, per month, by carrier, 70c; Daily, per month, by mail, 80c; Daily, per year, by carrier, $7.50; Daily, per year, by mail, $8.50; Weekly, per half year, $4.00; Weekly, per year, $7.50; Single copies, 10c.

THE EAST KOOTENAY LICENSES: The Miner has secured reliable information from Victoria to the effect that a number of coal and petroleum licenses will be granted early next month.

This will be good news to those locators who have complied with all the requirements of the law but have, nevertheless, been denied their rights for the past year or two, owing to the rashness of the McBride government.

It is safe to say that there will be much development in the neighborhood of Lodge Pole creek and the upper Flathead river as soon as the licenses are issued, and it is more than probable that operations there will assume important proportions before the end of the present year.

But for the past policy of the government in this matter Southeast Kootenay would now be the scene of great industrial activity, but now that there is reasonable assurance that justice is to be done to all bona fide locators, there is consolation to be found in the old adage, "Better late than never."

The Miner will take considerable satisfaction in seeing the Flathead district opened to the public, for it was this journal that first exposed the deal between the railway company and the government, by which the people were to be robbed of 65,000 acres of the richest plain lands in British Columbia. It was The Miner also that forced the matter into such prominence that it became a provincial issue and the talk of Canada from Halifax to Victoria.

PREMIER AND BOOSTER: The government of British Columbia has come to a pretty pass when the premier of the day becomes a tout for an Eastern Tory newspaper, but that is just what "Chum" McBride has done. He is lending the influence and dignity of his high office to boost the circulation of the Montreal Star.

The Star, with an eye to the main chance, has declared its intention of making a more or less elaborate write-up of the natural resources of this province. As a preliminary center, the Star has turned loose a smart and pugnacious representative, and he is "working" the provincial press, the several boards of trade and every other kind of beneficial influence for a first class bunch of free advertising. We may rest assured that a corps of ad. canvassers will follow without unnecessary delay, and a systematic campaign will be inaugurated with a view to separating British Columbians from as much of their money as is possible under the circumstances. In return, the Star will give them some illustrations and lots of hot air.

The benefits of all this may be questionable, so far as the people of this province are concerned; but the Star is tolerably certain to finish ahead of the game.

Just why McBride should find it necessary to mix up the premier's office with the government with the affair is a mystery, save and except for the fact that it is like him to prostitute his office from time to time. If McBride wants to boom British Columbia he can do it best by giving us an honest and progressive government and indignantly cease his shameful bargaining with the railway companies.

ON WITH THE DANCE: "Assuredly the 'world do move,'" and if the conclusions of certain eastern physicians are to be accepted, mankind must move with it in two-step time if health and happiness would be the portion of the race from childhood to extreme age.

In short, dancing is recommended by the physicians in question as an almost universal panacea for the ills that afflict humanity.

It may be said, in passing, however, that the idea is not as yet endorsed by the entire body of the disciples of Esculapius, possibly because it has not been fully demonstrated, and whether they ever will do so is a matter of doubt, for much prejudice will have to be overcome before the world in general can be brought to accept leisure of healing from between the covers of a music book.

Children dance from instinct, and to frisk and gambol is the natural expression of the exuberant spirit of youth.

but to the mind slow to cast out old in favor of new ideas the most rhythmic gyrations devoid of the charm of spontaneity, performed by elderly persons in search of health, would take on some of the attributes of the dance of death—but that is neither here nor there.

Dr. G. E. Hall, of the university at Worcester, Mass., is telling the people of Boston that man is nearer his lost paradise when he is dancing than at any other time, and the people of Boston, who are gregarious in the matter of assimilating new ideas, profess to have discovered reason in the rithm of the new philosophy.

Naturally, time and circumstance may have something to do with a man's conception of paradise, as for instance a man with a painful vertigo would scarcely indulge in dances of bliss, dance he ever so wildly; but again, that is neither here nor there, and it is not at all in the true spirit of investigation to begin to carp with-out giving the dance a trial.

The prescriptions are varied and pleasing: Tired persons are recommended to dance the waltz, those inclined to drooping shoulders should cultivate the Highland fling and drapelets are said to be greatly benefited by the waltz and polka.

It is pointed out that in Bible times, when great age was the rule and not the exception, the dance was indulged in on all occasions of thanksgiving or joy, but it must be acknowledged that in no instance is a record of cuttings by the patriarchs given, and the therapeutic qualities of the exercise, recently discovered, were apparently unknown.

The dancing school may follow the bluegrass and dewdash fads to oblivion, along with a thousand others, if it fails to come up to expectations, it is more than likely it will, for it presupposes an abundance of time at the disposal of patients, and in a bustling nation that persons of a retiring nature will probably continue to take their "bitners" in the same old way, instead of resorting to jigs and quadrilles before meals, "as ordered."

THE LOYAL POLES: Ever since Russia seized upon Poland after a merciless war in which the Polish nobles and peasants fought side by side with a despairing and almost ferocious bravery that astonished the world, she has been using all her powerful methods to make the Poles loyal and enthusiastic subjects of their "little father," the great white czar.

Just how gradual and winning these methods have been and how well they have accomplished their purpose may be guessed from a copy of resolutions adopted at a meeting of the representatives of the Polish organizations and the Polish press in America, including all of any importance.

They represent almost entirely Poles who have emigrated to this country since the war has broken out in Russia, and now that trouble has come upon the czar they wish to testify to the loyalty that he has instilled in them.

After referring pleasantly to "the all devouring and insatiable greed of Russia" and declaring "Russia's" form of government to be to them "abhorrent and repulsive," they remark warmly that for two centuries Russia existed only by robbing and enslaving other peoples "by brutal force and treachery."

The resolutions proceed: "And, whereas, Russia has adopted the same policy of denationalization and persecution to all of the peoples whose misfortune it is to be under Russian rule, as can be shown by her recent action in depriving Finland of her constitutional rights and by the recent cruel persecution of the Jews, and—"

"Whereas, the Russian government, even toward its native population, shows the part of a malevolent step-mother, refusing the laboring rights of freedom, free association and religious freedom, and above all refusing the people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

And further we reiterate with the utmost indignation our protest against the backing the burdens and risks of conducting and operating the whole line. It is fair to argue on these facts, but people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."

Rosland Weekly Miner.

Rosland Weekly Miner Publishing & Printing Co. Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

LONDON OFFICE: S. J. Walker, 40 Coleman Street, London, E.C. 4.

TORONTO OFFICE: CENTRAL PRESS, 40 Queen St. W., Toronto, Ont.

BARRETT AGENTS: 100 St. James St. W., Toronto, Ont.

AMSTERDAM & Co., Advertising Agents, Room 101 National Bank Building.

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE OF THE WEEKLY ROSLAND MINER for all points in the United States and Canada is Two and One-Half Dollars a year.

Subscription Rates: Daily, per month, by carrier, 70c; Daily, per month, by mail, 80c; Daily, per year, by carrier, $7.50; Daily, per year, by mail, $8.50; Weekly, per half year, $4.00; Weekly, per year, $7.50; Single copies, 10c.

THE EAST KOOTENAY LICENSES: The Miner has secured reliable information from Victoria to the effect that a number of coal and petroleum licenses will be granted early next month.

This will be good news to those locators who have complied with all the requirements of the law but have, nevertheless, been denied their rights for the past year or two, owing to the rashness of the McBride government.

It is safe to say that there will be much development in the neighborhood of Lodge Pole creek and the upper Flathead river as soon as the licenses are issued, and it is more than probable that operations there will assume important proportions before the end of the present year.

But for the past policy of the government in this matter Southeast Kootenay would now be the scene of great industrial activity, but now that there is reasonable assurance that justice is to be done to all bona fide locators, there is consolation to be found in the old adage, "Better late than never."

The Miner will take considerable satisfaction in seeing the Flathead district opened to the public, for it was this journal that first exposed the deal between the railway company and the government, by which the people were to be robbed of 65,000 acres of the richest plain lands in British Columbia. It was The Miner also that forced the matter into such prominence that it became a provincial issue and the talk of Canada from Halifax to Victoria.

PREMIER AND BOOSTER: The government of British Columbia has come to a pretty pass when the premier of the day becomes a tout for an Eastern Tory newspaper, but that is just what "Chum" McBride has done. He is lending the influence and dignity of his high office to boost the circulation of the Montreal Star.

The Star, with an eye to the main chance, has declared its intention of making a more or less elaborate write-up of the natural resources of this province. As a preliminary center, the Star has turned loose a smart and pugnacious representative, and he is "working" the provincial press, the several boards of trade and every other kind of beneficial influence for a first class bunch of free advertising. We may rest assured that a corps of ad. canvassers will follow without unnecessary delay, and a systematic campaign will be inaugurated with a view to separating British Columbians from as much of their money as is possible under the circumstances. In return, the Star will give them some illustrations and lots of hot air.

The benefits of all this may be questionable, so far as the people of this province are concerned; but the Star is tolerably certain to finish ahead of the game.

Just why McBride should find it necessary to mix up the premier's office with the government with the affair is a mystery, save and except for the fact that it is like him to prostitute his office from time to time. If McBride wants to boom British Columbia he can do it best by giving us an honest and progressive government and indignantly cease his shameful bargaining with the railway companies.

ON WITH THE DANCE: "Assuredly the 'world do move,'" and if the conclusions of certain eastern physicians are to be accepted, mankind must move with it in two-step time if health and happiness would be the portion of the race from childhood to extreme age.

In short, dancing is recommended by the physicians in question as an almost universal panacea for the ills that afflict humanity.

It may be said, in passing, however, that the idea is not as yet endorsed by the entire body of the disciples of Esculapius, possibly because it has not been fully demonstrated, and whether they ever will do so is a matter of doubt, for much prejudice will have to be overcome before the world in general can be brought to accept leisure of healing from between the covers of a music book.

Children dance from instinct, and to frisk and gambol is the natural expression of the exuberant spirit of youth.

but to the mind slow to cast out old in favor of new ideas the most rhythmic gyrations devoid of the charm of spontaneity, performed by elderly persons in search of health, would take on some of the attributes of the dance of death—but that is neither here nor there.

Dr. G. E. Hall, of the university at Worcester, Mass., is telling the people of Boston that man is nearer his lost paradise when he is dancing than at any other time, and the people of Boston, who are gregarious in the matter of assimilating new ideas, profess to have discovered reason in the rithm of the new philosophy.

Naturally, time and circumstance may have something to do with a man's conception of paradise, as for instance a man with a painful vertigo would scarcely indulge in dances of bliss, dance he ever so wildly; but again, that is neither here nor there, and it is not at all in the true spirit of investigation to begin to carp with-out giving the dance a trial.

The prescriptions are varied and pleasing: Tired persons are recommended to dance the waltz, those inclined to drooping shoulders should cultivate the Highland fling and drapelets are said to be greatly benefited by the waltz and polka.

It is pointed out that in Bible times, when great age was the rule and not the exception, the dance was indulged in on all occasions of thanksgiving or joy, but it must be acknowledged that in no instance is a record of cuttings by the patriarchs given, and the therapeutic qualities of the exercise, recently discovered, were apparently unknown.

The dancing school may follow the bluegrass and dewdash fads to oblivion, along with a thousand others, if it fails to come up to expectations, it is more than likely it will, for it presupposes an abundance of time at the disposal of patients, and in a bustling nation that persons of a retiring nature will probably continue to take their "bitners" in the same old way, instead of resorting to jigs and quadrilles before meals, "as ordered."

THE LOYAL POLES: Ever since Russia seized upon Poland after a merciless war in which the Polish nobles and peasants fought side by side with a despairing and almost ferocious bravery that astonished the world, she has been using all her powerful methods to make the Poles loyal and enthusiastic subjects of their "little father," the great white czar.

Just how gradual and winning these methods have been and how well they have accomplished their purpose may be guessed from a copy of resolutions adopted at a meeting of the representatives of the Polish organizations and the Polish press in America, including all of any importance.

They represent almost entirely Poles who have emigrated to this country since the war has broken out in Russia, and now that trouble has come upon the czar they wish to testify to the loyalty that he has instilled in them.

After referring pleasantly to "the all devouring and insatiable greed of Russia" and declaring "Russia's" form of government to be to them "abhorrent and repulsive," they remark warmly that for two centuries Russia existed only by robbing and enslaving other peoples "by brutal force and treachery."

The resolutions proceed: "And, whereas, Russia has adopted the same policy of denationalization and persecution to all of the peoples whose misfortune it is to be under Russian rule, as can be shown by her recent action in depriving Finland of her constitutional rights and by the recent cruel persecution of the Jews, and—"

"Whereas, the Russian government, even toward its native population, shows the part of a malevolent step-mother, refusing the laboring rights of freedom, free association and religious freedom, and above all refusing the people the right to take part in the country's government."

Finally, in order to avoid any misunderstanding of their sentiments, they resolve that: "We do hereby declare our warm sympathy and admiration for the great and heroic Japanese people and wish that their daring and perilous efforts may end in the most complete victory and grand success."