BEAUTY TALKS FOR WOMEN:

A Professional Gives a Few Hints on Preserving Your Appearance.

EARNING THEIR DAILY BREAD.

American Women Have Entered Various Fields of Industry.

Every one adds to the number of women who are entering new fields of industry and winning success.

Mrs. Laura Alderman, of New York, D., owns the largest apple orchard in the northwest. It is known all over the country, and has been in its present hands for twenty-four years.

Governor duck ranch marks the successful struggle of a woman at Chazy, N. Y., near Lake Champlain. Miss Ellen Wheeler was thrown upon her own resources, and her health failing under the strain of typewriting, she experimented with apple farming.

A blacksmith's shop with several assistants led to the lot of Celia Holbrook, of Sherborn, Mass., when she was but 17. At her father's death she undertook to run this, and has done so for two years, supporting her mother and a large family.

The Southeastern Wheelposters' Association of Moultrie, Ga., recently suspended its rules in order to admit a woman, Miss Cora Kimball, an efficient bilposter.

Mrs. Emma and Miss Strye, of Mont Clare, Ill., have been made captain and assistant-marshal of the fire department. The places are no sinecures, and it is no new thing for women to fight fires in Mont Clare, as most of the male population is in Chicago.

Mrs. Bissell has entire charge of a carpet sweeper factory at Grand Rapids, Mich. It is even rumored that the invention was hers rather than that of her husband, now deceased.

Miss Belle McKinnon, is superintendent of a big manufacturing plant of Little Falls, N. Y., which employs 1,200 hands, is trained in business, and is especially noted for having amicably settled several disputes which threatened strikes.

A young woman of Syracuse is paying her way through college by a domestic occupation on a large scale. Even as a child her spare time was spent in fruit canning and jelly making, and this work she has found more lucrative than undergraduate teaching in order to secure money for her university expenses.

Miss Elvira Miller, a southern writer, has just been engaged as passenger agent upon the Louisville and St. Louis road, and it is confidently expected that she will present the superior attractions of this railroad in a way to interest women travellers.

WOMEN ON FARMS.

Large Army of Them Employed in Western States.

It is said that fully half a million women are employed in the Western States as harvest laborers and general farm hands. This is accounted for by the numerous improvements in agricultural machinery, which enable a woman to do the work as easily as a man, and also by the large number of women who own farms and manage them themselves.

A woman, lately returned from Kansas, said yesterday: "It is really a pretty and interesting sight to see the women in the fields raking hay, binding grain, driving the horses attached to the moving and other machines. It cannot be harder work than to slave in a kitchen or stand all day behind a counter, and it is certainly so much more healthful! One of them said to me when I asked her how she came to take up that work: 'Why, it was all because of the Spanish war, you know. All the young men were away, and the field work had to be done or we would starve. So we got about it, and we women, and it is so well that we do not mean to give it up. I have been in a big store in Chicago, and you do not catch me going back. We have more freedom, and are not watched as if we were pickpockets. The men who work with us are often more civil than the shop clerks.'

"It may seem a little early to rise time enough to feed the horses before the 6 o'clock breakfast, but it is the pleasantest part of the day, after you get used to it. About 7:30 o'clock we are in the fields beginning work. At noon we have an hour for dinner and a little loafing spell under the trees, and we stop work at 5:30 o'clock. Even in the busiest season, when we work as long as it is light. We do not care for that, however, for the overtime when the busy season is over. We get good wages, ranging from $1.50 to $2.50 a day, and I've heard of girls earning a good deal more than that in harvest time, when hands are scarce.

"Lots of young women have come out on farms this summer and last for the change. They enjoy the change. It is good for their health, and they go back with money enough to last while they learn a trade, such as dressmaking or millinery, or typewriting. There was one girl here last summer who earned enough to pay her way through college in the winter. I think it would do lots of them good, after being shut up in shops and factories all winter, to come into the country for the summer, and do healthy work in good, pure air. There are always men employed to do the hardest work."

HEALTHY BABIES.

Watchful Mothers Can Keep Their Babies Healthy, Rosy-Cheeked and Happy.

Nothing in the world is such a comfort and joy as a healthy, hearty, rosy-cheeked, happy baby.

Babies can be kept in perfect health only by having at hand and administering when needed some purely vegetable, harmless, and of all this class of medicines Baby's Own Tablets are conceded to be the best.

For constipation, colic, diarrhoea, simple feverishness, teething troubles, indigestion and sleeplessness, these tablets are a really wonderful cure. You can give them to the smallest baby without the slightest fear, misadventure or injury. They will be taken readily. They contain absolutely not a particle of opiate or other injurious drugs. They are mild, sweet, lozenges that any baby will take without objection, and their action is prompt and pleasant. They will tone up the whole system and make the little one as hearty and free from infantile disorders as any mother could wish.

Mrs. Walter Brown, Milby, Que., says: "I have never used any medicine for my baby, but I have used good Baby's Own Tablets. I would not be without them." This is the verdict of all mothers who have used these tablets.

They cost 25 cents a box. All druggists sell them or they may be secured by sending the price direct and the tablets will be forwarded prepaid. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Dept. T., Brockville, Ont.

Duchess of Westminster's Coat.

A beautiful gray long coat of corded silk is being fashioned for the young Duchess of Westminster. It is to escape the floor all the way around and will be a walking coat, not a driving coat, but one that can be worn in the street. Its trimming will be a paler shade of gray and a much deeper shade of the same color, making three grays in all. A lining of lustrous black will set off the exterior.

Very serviceable long coats can be obtained without great expenditure of money. These coats are not difficult to make, but if the fashioning of them be beyond the skill of the home dressmaker, then let her purchase one ready-made, and, if necessary, select the cheaper styles, such as the brilliantines, the poplins and the light weights in cloth. A perfectly plain long coat can be made very dressy by the addition of a lace collar or sailor collar shape, square in front and back and fastened with a brooch under the chin, and if to this be added a handsome pair of cuffs of lace little more can be desired in the way of beauty.

The long coat, while not so cheap at first cost, is particularly acceptable to treatment and can be dressed up at small cost. Adjustable lace collars, adjustable collars of taffeta and satin, collars of velvet and even revers and wide lapels can be added by clever fingers. The long coat is also a salvation to the wardrobe, as it prolongs the life of a dress skirt and saves the fancy waists, allowing plainer ones to be worn.

The first long coats of fall are single-breasted, though one sees the double-breasted varieties, but it is pleasant to know that the added warmth is not demanded for some time yet.

To those who would ask about the coats of the coming winter, the only most indefinite of answers can be given. Fashion's finger indicates that there will be no between styles; coats will either be very long or very short, either dragging upon the ground or chopped off at the waist line.

Should the patience of the reader permit, it may be mentioned that the first fur coats of winter have arrived in the unpacking departments of the large houses. They show long coats in fur and they also show the fur Etons. One of the prettiest novelties is the straight little English box in fur.

Shutting Out Older Girls. "I never see you anywhere nowadays," some one remarked to an attractive young woman recently. "Do you never go anywhere now?" You used to be the gayest of the gay. Why have you given it all up?" "Because I am neither fish, fowl nor good red herring," she laughed. "I have to place in society. I ought to be married and have my own establishment, and I have not. You see, it is this way with girls whose people entertain much. The first year they come they are feted and made much of, and have a beautiful time; the next year or two their glory pales a little, but they still feel it is their prerogative to go about and have a good time. Then comes a period of toleration, which also lasts a year or two. This brings a girl to her fifth or sixth winter. If she comes out at 18 they will be about 24 or 25. Still young enough to enjoy life, one would think, but society has had enough of her. She feels it herself very keenly, her invitations grow fewer in number, her partners fall off, her father no longer pays for her ball dresses with alacrity, her mother's attention is now absorbed in her own affairs, and she feels that her day as a social butterfly is practically over.

BROTHER'S KEEPER.

George S. McLaughlin, Lives to Rejoice That He Took His Brother's Advice.

For Twenty-Five Years Crippled with Backache—Finally Advised to Take Dodd's Kidney Pills—What He Says About His Cure.

Economy Point, N. S., Sept. 16.—Mr. G. S. McLaughlin lives in this quiet little Nova Scotia village. His brother keeps the grocery store here. But for this seemingly unimportant fact, unless death had mercifully relieved him of his sufferings, Mr. McLaughlin would in all probability have been a helpless cripple to-day. For it was through his brother keeping store that he came to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Economy Point is thirty-seven miles from Truro. The only connection is by wagon road, and in the spring when the roads are impassable, the hamlet is isolated completely. But nevertheless the fame of Dodd's Kidney Pills found its way to Economy Point, and Mr. McLaughlin's brother in response frequently qualified praise for which his customers spoke of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the brother recommended them to Mr. McLaughlin. "They might help your back," said he.

That is the story of Mr. McLaughlin's cure—or all of that varies to any extent from that of thousands of others. He followed his brother's advice, "I will try them, anyway," he said. That's all Dodd's Kidney Pills want—a trial. After the first trial there is no more hesitation. Mr. McLaughlin says it was wonderful the way his pain left him and his back strengthened. He was a free man ever since.

"I was troubled with lame back for twenty-five years or more. I couldn't turn myself in bed. Wonderful to say, I have had no return of the trouble since using the Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to a number of persons with Kidney Trouble. All without exception have been benefited or cured. I can never be too thankful for the benefit I received from these wonderful pills.

LIFE OF PRESIDENT M'KINLEY A Standard Historical Work.

From the Guelph Herald of Sept. 16. The World Publishing Company of Guelph, Ont., have arranged to issue in Canada the best of all the forthcoming books on the life of the late President McKinley. It will be a magnificent work, profusely illustrated, written by Murat Halstead, the celebrated war correspondent, the man that was selected by the Government of the late President McKinley to write the official report on the Philippine Islands. Murat Halstead has been a life-long friend of President McKinley, and it will be a labor of love for him to finish this book, which has long been in preparation.

It will be complete in its boyhood, social life, assassination, full account of the assassin and the Anarchist's conspiracy, complete therewith, medical treatment, death, burial and state funeral. The book is so cheap and so excellent that every family should have a copy.

We understand that a magnificent portrait of President McKinley, 18 x 22 inches in size, on cardboard, will be given with each copy of the book.

The work will be sold by subscription, and agents will find an announcement of interest to them in another column.

HARD-PAN TALK.

Should There be an Oath Affecting Religion?

Every man, be he king or beggar, has an indefeasible right to be of the religion he seems best to him. The State has no more to do with his beliefs or disabilities than with the out of his coat. Since the days of Charles II. an English Sovereign has had to swear that he is a member of the Church of England, and that he disbelieves various dogmas that are believed by Roman Catholics. That eminent saint Charles II. died a Roman Catholic. That equally eminent saint George IV. married a Roman Catholic, and evaded the law by the simple expedient of denying his first marriage and committing bigamy. That worthy but pig-headed man, George III., prevented Catholic Emancipation during his reign, because he thought that it conflicted with his Coronation oath. The imposition of an oath on our Kings affecting religion does not, therefore, seem to have been a marked success. At present the majority of those over whom the King reigns are not Christians. Some parts of the Empire are almost exclusively peopled by Roman Catholics, and of the King's Christian subjects the majority do not belong to the Church of England. Why, therefore, should he be a Coronation I do not know. There seems to be a good deal connected with it that implies that the Sovereign occupied his position by some sort of divine right, whereas we know that our Sovereigns have only a parliamentary title to their throne. The King is Emperor of India. But as Emperor of India he is not crowned, and yet this does not render our tenure of India insecure. As King he already occupies the throne, and a Coronation next year can in no way alter the relation between himself and the people over whom he reigns. Except as a pageant, the whole thing is an absurdity, dear to doubt to heralds and court flunkies, but hardly in accordance with practical common-sense.—From "Truth."

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper. Another "Fool Idea." "Well, I'll be dinged," said Ebenezer Bunkley after he had looked at the letter for the seventh time. "What's the matter?" his wife asked.

"You see," the old man replied, "there was a feller advertised in the Farmer's Friend a little while ago to send on $2 and learn how to get a fortune without investing anything or runnin' any risk. So I done it—sent the $2—and here's the answer. It says: 'Rob a train. There's no risk in that. They'll never catch you. I vow, it does beat all what a lot of blame fool ideas people keep gettin' up nowadays.'"

CHARLES WHOOTTEN. Port Mulgrave.

QUEEN CHAMPIONS A DOG. Royalty Comes to the Rescue of a Canine Victim.

The Paris Figaro tells an interesting anecdote of the Queen of the Belgians. While Her Majesty was driving the other day in a pony chaise in the environs of Spa she met a rick-packer's cart drawn by a dog, which was being cruelly beaten by the two occupants.

The Queen drew her carriage across the road and requested the rick-packer to cease ill-treating the dog. Their only reply was a volley of insulting language, while they thrashed the unfortunate animal more brutally than before. Her Majesty thereupon turned her carriage round and followed the men to Theux, where she had them arrested for cruelty.

On the police authorities wishing to take the charge of insulting the Queen, Her Majesty asked them to strike it out, as she made her complaint solely in her capacity as a member of the Society for the Protection of Animals.

"An Autumn Trip." There is no season of the year which affords the tourist a better opportunity of studying nature, than "Autumn," and the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company is offering to the travelling public one of the finest autumn trips that can be taken, viz. leaving Hamilton at 1 p.m., the steamer goes via Toronto, Bay of Quinte, Thousand Islands, Rapids of the St. Lawrence, arriving in Montreal following second day at noon.

The scenery which is viewed by the tourist along this route, especially at this season of the year, cannot be surpassed by any other trip on the continent, and this beautiful trip can be taken at a very low rate.

The steamers Hamilton, Spartan and Algerian which are in commission on the above line are well known to the travelling public as first class steamers in every respect. On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday they leave Hamilton at 1 p.m. and Toronto at 7 p.m.

Owing to the great success of the new steamers "Toronto" and "Kingston" this season, the company have decided to keep these steamers in commission through the month of September, and will therefore leave Toronto daily, except Sunday, at 8-30 p.m.

The two above steamers are the finest on inland waters, being built at nearly half a million dollars each.

For further particulars, apply to G. T. R. or C. E. R. agents, or write to H. Foster Chaffee, Western Passenger Agent, 2 King Street East, Toronto, Ont.
