

A GOOD SPORT.

Hunting With Camera Instead of Rifle.

Thanks to modern science, a man can enjoy all the delights of hunting nowadays without wetting his hands with blood. Equipped with a camera, a good lens and various helpful devices, in which he takes the same pride as a hunter does in his modern rifle, he can bring home magnificent trophies for the walls of his den without doing butchery's work to secure head or pelt. He can engage in a war of wits with the wild creatures, taking a little longer odds, no doubt, for it is far easier to get within shooting distance of game than it is to get within camera range, and as for the danger, the man who goes after lions or other vicious beasts with a camera surely requires as much nerve as the other man who takes an arsenal along and murders the unsuspecting brutes at long range. The hunt for dangerous animals need not be discussed, however, as the average man has no chance to indulge in that variety of sport. Few of us can afford the outlay of time and money required to reach the haunts of the jungle beasts, but all of us are near enough to some bit of woods or field to go camera hunting most any day.

That is one of the beauties of this coming sport, that all game is fair game for the camera. There is no close season for the man with the little black box and no limit to his bag. He requires no hunter's license, no membership in an expensive gun club and ordinarily no guide. In fact, the amateur has a good chance to perfect himself in the sport without going very far afield, and this practice, by the way, is an essential. Camera hunting must be learned just the same as hunting with shotgun or rifle. The beginner at the sport must learn how to judge distance even more accurately than the marksman. He must study the problems of light and speed if he is to catch his game on the wing or running. He must learn to think quickly and act promptly in focusing and regulating the stop, and he will find camera target practice at the less shy and difficult subjects near home quite as fascinating as popping away at tin cans or clay pigeons with firearms.

Morover, he must study the ways of wild things quite as carefully as the man who means to kill them, and, approaching them with no murderous intent, he is more likely to learn intimately of their habits than the sportsman who is planning to destroy them. One of the most fascinating of camera sports is a night hunt from a canoe. The problem is to ascertain by the tracks and other signs where game is in the habit of coming to the water's edge to drink. There, after dark, the approach is made to that spot very stealthily, without noise, and, of course, with no light in the canoe. The hunter can be guided only by twinkling stars, and must judge his distances by the slight noises made by the game, and when he believes himself within range and has the camera pointed, the flash is exploded and the whole water's edge with its background of forest is suddenly illuminated.

A good negative of such a scene with deer or moose starting at the flash makes an enlargement which is as beautiful a thing to hang upon the library wall as the branching antlers of the game itself, and is quite as convincing a trophy of the owner's skill.—From "Camera vs. Rifle," in December Technical World Magazine.

GROWTH OF PRINCE RUPERT.

From information received from official sources, it is evident that Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, is going ahead rapidly. Work is being pushed on the waterworks system, the cost of which is estimated at $550,000, $100,000 of which will be spent during 1911. The city is also spending the sum of $500,000 this year on the sewerage system, $500,000 on grading, and $100,000 on plank roads.

SIMPLICITY.

We love to speak and play with children because of their simplicity, the simplicity of their nature. Simplicity is without similarity or similitude as opposed to duplicity. Duplicity is duplex, not simplex, as is simplicity, simplicity can neither be added nor taken from because it is the unit of its own farmed existence, natural, simple, nothing more, nothing less. It is simplicity, simply, because with God there are no complexities, no intricacies, no assumptions. God is like to Himself in the supreme perfect ideal of His own grand and uncopied simplicity.

TREATING.

Into a saloon six men go in company and the first man orders beer for all. They drink. The second man buys. They drink. The third man has the glasses filled. They drink. "Six beers," calls the fourth man. Again they drink. "Hey's the fifth man to the bartender. The same all around. For the fifth time they drink. It is the sixth man's turn. They drink. This is strictly in accord with the law of treating, and there is nothing remarkable about it. But what a scandal it would be if six women should enter a drug store and drink thirty-six glasses of soda water!

CHINA'S POPULATION.

(From the London Globe.) According to the latest official returns the number of inhabitants in China proper, Manchuria and the new dominions is 425,000,000. And as we have pointed out before, ourselves, the National Review (China), the estimates of China's population have always had a tendency to exaggeration, and even if 400,000,000 be added on for Mongolia and Tibet the total is far below that usually quoted. In 1901 Mr. Rockhill, then United States Minister to Peking, after careful inquiry, came to the conclusion that the number of inhabitants of China proper was probably less than 300,000,000. That makes the total population of the empire something slightly under 300,000,000. If something be allowed for natives, increase since that time it does not seem as if the 425,000,000 of the latest census erred on the side of understatement.

DIDN'T WORK.

A company of Edinburgh students were starting for Glasgow on a football excursion and meant to have a carriage to themselves at the hotel, but, however, just as the train was starting in hastened an old woman. One of the young fellows, thinking to get rid of her easily, remarked: "My good woman this is a smoking car don't you know?" "Well, well," answered the woman; "never mind; I'll make it do." And she took a seat. As the train started the word was passed around, "Smoke her out." All every student produced a pipe, and soon the windows were closed accordingly, the car was filled with a dense cloud of tobacco smoke. So foul was the air that at last one of the boys began to feel ill. As he took his pipe from his mouth and settled back into his seat the old woman leaned forward to him. "If you are done, sir," she said in a wheedling tone, "will you kindly give me a bit draw? I came aw' in sic a haste I forgot mine."

A REMARKABLE YOUNG WOMAN.

(Buffalo News.) Hetty Green of New York is a remarkably young woman. On Tuesday she was 77 years old. "Still young and still happy," she said, and then proceeded to deny the authenticity of reference books which say she was born November 21, 1833. She declares 1834 was the year. What other woman in these days would claim a greater age than she was requested of? Nor is the only respect in which Mrs. Green is remarkable. She is worth anywhere from $70,000,000 to $100,000,000, and enjoys the proud title of "the richest woman in the world." She believes in the simple life and compound interest, but will accept the latter straight if there is nothing better in sight. Mrs. Green did not start poor. In 1865, when she was 31, her father died, leaving her with a fortune of $100,000. During the past forty-six years with unflinching persistence she does not allow a penny to be lost. Her favorite diversion is to accumulate ready cash against contingencies when she helps out the fortunes of her financial salvation and her own profits in many ways she has made a fortune. BREAKING IN A PIPE.

"Hang it," remarked an old commuter, dropping into a seat in the smoker, beside his daily companion, "I've busted my pipe and now I've got to go through the torture of breaking in a new one." "Let this railroad break it in for you," remarked his friend. "What? You don't understand that trick? It's an old smoker's recipe. Fill your new pipe—but wet the inside of the bowl first—light it, get it well started and then hold it out of the window with the mouth forward. The draft will keep it alight as well as you could by puffing it. That will take the raw newness out of it. Try it and see."—New York Tribune.

WOMEN'S VOTES.

(Niagara Falls Journal.) The impression is conveyed that women are not to be trusted in matters of this kind, because of their inexperience. The idiot, the drunkard, the thief, the social parasite, the gambler, the illiterate forger, the vote seller, the grafter, "boss," and the hundred other evils of our present system of male franchise have never given capital a moment's business. But a woman! All the financial disasters conceivable to the human mind instantly spring its life with the mere thought of allowing a woman a vote. But women are going to vote, and "capital" will have to bow to the inevitable.

THE EYE OF THE CAT.

The pupil of a cat's eye ordinarily appears as a long narrow oval, or in abnormal vertical shape. The animal seems to be looking through more than one of its eyes. One is accustomed to regard the mechanism of the pupil as the ordinary mechanism of the eye of a cat. All animals of the cat family share this peculiarity. Yet the natural shape of the pupil of the cat's eye is circular. It varies the quantity of light entering the eye by contracting and dilating the pupil of the eyes of cats and tigers change from straight lines to perfect circles while under the influence of aropane, which suspends for a time the muscular control of the eye, they are always circular.

The normal form of the cat's pupil is the same as that of the human pupil, but when submitted to the influence of light its behavior differs. In a bright light our pupils become very small circles, while those of a cat turn into ovals or narrow slits. The general effect is the same in either case, namely, to diminish the quantity of light passing into the eye. In the larger animals of the cat family, such as tigers, the pupil sometimes behaves exactly like a human pupil, and when brightly illuminated contracts into a minute circle instead of becoming linear. In the case of domestic cats, the pupil is the same in either case, namely, it does the pupil assume a circular form. It has been said that so long as a cat is in the house it is necessary for one should consult a watch or clock to ascertain the time, since the animal's eyes being so constantly in motion. The first European to learn of the use of the cat as a time-indicator is said to have been a young Chinese who was left on an account of how he was introduced into the mystery. In the latter part of a party of friends had set out to visit a mission in China, situated at quite a distance from the French headquarters. The young Chinese, who joined the party, time, this newcomer ventured to suggest that he might easily be ascertained how late it was by the position of the cat's eyes. The "harmless, necessary" animal being so constantly in motion, the cat in his arms, pushed up its eyelids with his hand, and asked the Frenchman to look at them, and when time volunteering the information that it was not yet noon. In examining the cat's eyes he gradually narrowed up to twelve noon, when they became particularly across the eye, and that after that dilation recommenced.

A ROBBER'S REAL TERROR.

The only real satisfactory burglar alarm is living ones and the best of all is a crying baby. No man will enter a house or remain in one if he hears a baby crying for the simple reason that he knows that some one will be about. The snail: dog, we may add, is also a burglar alarm, and there is a story told of Sir Walter Scott and a burglar. The author of "Waverley" had defended a veteran cracksmen and in gratitude he gave him counsel a little advice. It he gave him something in this way: "You are a rising sun, but I am going down. The best way to frighten housebreakers is to have a small dog about. He'll always be on the alert and is better than the ordinary watch dog."—From M.A.P.

Natural Cure for Catarrh Obviates Taking Drugs.

It Has Superseded the Old-fashioned Stomach-dosing Remedies, and Invariably Cures Quickly.

It was their inability to reach the real source of catarrh and bronchitis that caused the medical profession to drop liquid cough medicines and adopt "Catharhozone" instead. Catharhozone provides a method of breathing right into the lungs certain rare medicinal vapors which are so healing and comforting—as to entirely banish coughs, catarrh and throat trouble in a very short time. The most wonderful thing about Catharhozone is, that no matter where the germ of bronchitis or catarrh are hidden, Catharhozone will reach and destroy them. "About five years ago I took a cold in the head and catarrh set in. It kept increasing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything until at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, Catharhozone, and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catharhozone to all who have catarrh, etc. (Signed) Everton L. Wassan, "Blair P. O., Queen's Co., N. Y." Catharhozone has made an astonishing record of cures. Its method is right; no drugs; just healing balsamic vapors, that bring instant relief to Catarrh and all throat, bronchial and chest colds. Get the large size, lasts months, is sure to cure you, price $1.00; smaller size 50c; sample or trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catharhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

KISSING.

(Buffalo News.) It would seem that the doctors, if they are able to do it, would rob humanity of all its joys. Not content with harping upon the scullerion of our food and drink, with warning us about the awful germs that ordinary drinking water contains, they are now making a campaign against that most delectable of human pastimes—kissing. THE FLESHPOTS.

It was pleasant to flee from the fret and the heat. To the cool of the countryside's fragrant retreat. It was joyful indeed, to lay worry aside. To loaf and grow fat, and let everything slide. To shun all the sparkle and glitter and sham. For the twitter of birds and the bleat of the lamb. Yet, now we are back to the "revel and waste." The fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste! To flirt with Dame Nature by mountain and shore. Is jolly enough for a fortnight or more. And who wouldn't cheerfully hit for the camp? Where you eat like a wolf, and you look like a tramp? You gain a new zest for the world's bit-ter fight. You get a new tan and a new appetite. And when to the city your steps are retraced. The fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste! We leave 'em behind us, we swear we are sick. Their savors too rich, and the sauce is too thick. We hate them—we say—as we ought to hate 'em. And thus we depart for the summer, but the city pipes up its enticing old tune. And we dance as of old, and we come in our "revel and waste." For the fleshpots of Egypt are good to the taste! —Berton Braley in Ainslee's

LATHS IN CANADA.

Despite the use of metal lath and patent methods of interior finish, wooden lath production amounted to eight hundred and fifty-two million pieces, worth one million, nine hundred and forty-three thousand dollars in Canada during 1910. This information has been obtained from statistics compiled by the Dominion Forestry Branch, which shows that nearly thirty million more laths were produced in 1910 than in the year before, but that owing to a decrease in the price per thousand, the total value of the industry was thirty-five thousand dollars less. Two-fifths of the total was cut in Ontario, which Province increased its 1909 production by fifty-seven million or nearly twenty per cent. New Brunswick, the second Province in importance, increased its production of the total from one-fifth to one-quarter by cutting sixty-two million more than last year. The production of laths in Quebec and British Columbia during 1910 was considerably more than 1909, amounting with Ontario and New Brunswick to ninety-four per cent. of the total. The remaining five Provinces cut smaller amounts, and with the exception of Alberta, each showed a decrease from the amount produced in 1909. The average price of laths in 1910 was $2.25 per thousand, or 16 cents less than in 1909. The price varied considerably between the different Provinces, British Columbia laths being $1.65 per thousand, while in Prince Edward Island the price was $2.65.—Forestry Press Bulletin, No. 60.

POTATO BAGS. (Ottawa Citizen.) Potatoes on the Ottawa market are being sold in bags not up to the standard of size and weight, chiefly because there is no standard size in this Province for potatoes or for any other similar commodity. At the annual meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association in Toronto on Tuesday, Mr. Thomas Dillworth, the President of the Association, ordered the members to take notice of this anomaly, which is causing much confusion and a decided loss to householders in all parts of the Province. Of course, we are all anxious to blame the seller in such cases, but after all, the latter may be, like ourselves, only the victim of others. The standardization of measures seems the only solution of a difficulty which has an important bearing on the question of household expenses.

ESSENCE OF GOOD COOKING.

The essence of good cooking lies in four things: the ability to preserve, develop, improve and vary the flavor of foods. The French excel particularly in the art of varying the flavor. A small piece of meat suffices them to make a whole pot of vegetables redolent of it. Cooks, they use all sorts of vegetables to impart their unique flavor to meats—in soups, stews, sauces, and the water in which meat or fish is boiled. The combinations in variations are endless. An English epicure declares that the secret of the excellence of French cookery lies in the lavish use made of vegetables. "These we use one kind of French cook use twenty."—From Henry T. THE RESURRECTION.

Very beautiful, is it not?—the picture of the opening of springtime which we gather from our Bible, catching here a glimpse and there a glimpse as it lies reflected in the song of psalmist, and prophet, and of Jesus, who had so often watched it as a boy on the hills of Galilee. Doubtless He used to go out to gather early lilies, and note the green garments of the fresh young grass. Ten million million tiny strugglers on our hills and in our fields to-day are trying to show us that ours, too, is Holy Land. The flowers have begun to greet us in our walks—dumb angels, with faces all a-shine with the glad tidings that the Saviour-season hath arisen. Thank God for the resurrection thoughts which the spring months bring to us! We die to live again. We die that we may live again. Nothing is quickened save it die. Mortality is the condition of all immortality. What echoes we have wakened of this truth! The opening spring prints it off on every hillside in illuminated text of leaf and flower. We find as always with these central facts of Nature, that the best and highest meaning of the truth belongs to ourselves—so completely is man a part of all, so completely is all represented in man. Our word, "Resurrection," seems to concentrate the history of the universe, to whisper the secret of the life of God! —W. C. Gannett.
