AN OUTING

Delightful Canoeing Trip up the River by Members of the Macaulay Club.

Another of those delightful p'c ics, for which the Macaulay Club is becoming famous, was held yester lay, when a party of 14 of the faithful took a pleasant canoe trip up the river and spent a most enjoyable out-

Wilson Taylor, F. D. Laurie, Dr. Musson, W. Poile, Ayers, S. B. Arnold, J M. Pike, Fred. Stone, Thos. Scullard, J. W. Young, W. A. Coltart, Lane, H. D. Smith and R. W. Angus.

The only feature of the evening which created any discomfort was a slight downfall of rain, but no $38.45. amount of rain could dampen the spirits of the party—they were safely corked and placed on ice. In the absence of Mr. Eceston, Mr. Ecullard made the tea, securing the water from the same spring in the centre of the river that he had visited on the event of the last excursion. Mr. event of the last excursion. Maurie made himself the subject Laurie made himself the subject of much adverse criticism by eating all of the apple pie, much to the disgust of H. D. Smith, who, as a result, had to content himself with devouring douple of dozen sandwiches. Dr. Musson was knocked out of the game early—shortly after some feminine voices were heard a short distance away. The doctor was cute, however, and explained to Mr. Roberts—when that gentleman was surprised to find him arriving back so early to find him arriving back so early that he was suffering from a severe headache.

that he was suffering from a severe headache.

Excitement reigned supreme when a sad accident befel the jeweller of the party. That unfortunate gentleman attempted to perform a clog dance or a highland fling in getting out of the cance with the result that he found the water, wet and sticky. Mr. Taylor suggested that Mr. Stone should swim out for him, but Mr. Young remembered an experience he had when a boy of swimming like a stone, and advised against it. Mr. Lane thought that Mr. Pike was the proper one to do the diving, but that gentleman remarked that while he was a fish in name he was by no means of the "sucker" variety.

After the lunch a jolly time was spent on the bank in speech and song and the party arrived back at the boat house at a good hour, perfectly pleased with the outing.

The club is indebted to Mr. Laurie and Dr. Musson, who so ably managed the affair.

scribed as being the greatest in the world.

The total length is 650 feet, made up of a main span of 500 feet from centre to centre of the bearing pins and two side spans. The principal span is in the form of an arch with a true parabolic curve, and was built as a cantilever from each bank. At the southern end there is an ordinary lattice girder span from the bank to the end posts of the arch of 37 feet 6 inches in length, while on the northern side there is a corresponding girder span of 62 feet 6 inches. The width at the springing of the arch is 53 feet 9 inches between centres of booms, at the top 27 feet 6 inches, and between parapets 30 feet. The total weight of steel in the bridge is 1,650 tons, and its approximate cost including erection, was £70,000

ELECTION PROTEST TRIAL

Some Money and Much Whiskey Help to Influence Voters.

Port Arthur, Sept. 13.—The Port

Arthur and Rainy River election protest trial opened Monday before Justices MacLennan and Teetzel. Messrs. Hellmuth, Keefer and Elliott appeared for the prosecution and Messrs.

Aylesworth and McBrady for the defendant, Kennedy.

James Thatcher stated that one Greer had treated him and afterwards took him into a room and asked him how $10 would catch him for voting for Kennedy. He said he would not for Kennedy. He said he would not look at it. Greer stated that he could make a difference of $50 in a contract make a difference of $50 in a contract if he would vote Kennedy.

Several other witnesses were called, each testifying of Aitkens having brought whiskey to Sutherland's coarding house and treating men on the day of election. One man swore that Aitkens and Greer had each paid him $5 for carrying voters. Aitkens, it was proved, was an agent of Kenterland and the statement of the was proved, was an agent of Ken Frank Rowe stated he stayed at Sutherland's boarding-house that night. Aitkens and Greer were there drinking with a number of men in a room, while $3 was slipped in his hand. He stated he was offered $10 to use his influence about half an hour before the opening of the polls. Evidence of the carousal was brought out in court all day. Numerous witnesses admitted that whiskey was distributed freely in Sutherlands all the previous evening.

Kennedy was called and stated that Kennedy was called and stated that he had not asked Altkens to work for him. However, a signed copy of a certificate of agency from Kennedy to Aitkens was produced as evidence. This was given Aitkens by the local Liberal Association.

Aitkens was put in the box last evening. He admitted having given young Sutherland $4 for the use of his team on election day, stating he wanted it for his own use. He also admitted that he had a team of his own, which he had loaned to a voter. He had hired the other team because his team was tired. He admitted giving money to Sutherland, but stated that he was drunk.
