

SHINDLER GETS BACK

From Winter Vacation on the Outside

CAME BY VALDEZ ROUTE

Says Seattle Is Running Four Boats to Valdez and Thousand Men Have Started

D. A. Shindler, dealer in ready instruments and sporting accessories, went from here on October 5th to his winter vacation and returned yesterday, well bronzed and with a nose that is peeling like a healthy onion. Having had all the fun that the effete east could show him, Mr. Shindler determined to come home by way of Fairbanks, so as to form some opinion of the Tanana gold fields that were being so loudly exploited on the outside.

Mr. Shindler came in to Dawson by way of Valdez and lives to tell the tale. He also has many good things to say about the trail.

"There are four steamers running from Seattle to Valdez," said Mr. Shindler yesterday, "the Portland, the Bertha, the Santa Clara and the Santa Anna, and all seem to have all the business they can handle. I understand that a thousand people have left Seattle to go to Fairbanks by way of the Valdez trail.

"I know it is thought here that the trail from Valdez to the Tanana is something fearful. There is a huge glacier that has to be negotiated right at the start. Well, that glacier business is the route that was so much talked of in '98. It is not used now at all. You go from Valdez town along the coast a short distance until you reach a river bed, and start up that to get over the summit—something like getting up Moosehide mountain right back of here. Then you go down the other side, and the rest of the trail is no worse in any respect than the trail from Fairbanks to Circle. There are roadhouses all the way, and it is about one hundred miles shorter than the trail from Dawson to Fairbanks. I made the trip in eleven days, or nine days of travel."

Mr. Shindler's opinion of Fairbanks and the Tanana mining camp generally does not materially differ from what has been told by others who have returned from there to Dawson. There are, he says, only two producing creeks, so to speak, Fairbanks and Cleary, on both of which, particularly the latter, there are big dumps out and a large number of them.

Gates City, the new town some 20 miles from Fairbanks on Cleary, he describes as a wonderful place taking into consideration the brief period since it started. It has now nineteen saloons, several hotels or roadhouses, barber shops, stores and so on.

But what Mr. Shindler wanted to talk about for publication was in the interest of Dawson, where he still remains in business and has no intention of leaving. He thinks some thought might be done to lower the rates by this route so as to bring all the travel via Dawson.

Professor Freimuth has been remarkably successful with his concerts this season, but he announces another at the Auditorium a week from tonight only from an artistic craving. He received in the last two mails all the latest popular songs and musical facts from the outside and naturally he wants to tell all about it to somebody—a large audience preferred.

He has not yet selected his soloists nor arranged his program. The latter will consist of several of the struck the popular fancy, intermingled with the old time classics that people never tire of hearing. He will have an orchestra of twelve pieces, and will make this concert the effort of his career from a musical standpoint.

SMALL CARGO OF PASSENGERS

White Pass Stage Brings in Four Hundred Pounds of Mail and Five Voyagers.

The White Pass stage got in at half past three yesterday afternoon with 400 pounds of mail and five passengers. They were J. Heacock, of the public works department, J. C. Scougale, the Second Avenue merchant, W. F. Thompson, erstwhile editor of the defunct Yukon Sun, and his wife, and S. Gravidahl.

FIREMEN ON THEIR METTLE

Were up on Third Avenue Yesterday Within a Minute After Alarm Was Turned in.

Dr. Isadore McWm. Bourke is a relentless critic of public administration generally, but yesterday he had something good to say. There was a small blaze on the roof of the Westminister house on Third Avenue yesterday morning, and an alarm was immediately turned in. Dr. Bourke noted the time, and he says that in less than a minute the fire brigade was on the spot and ready for work. The fact that the chambermaid had doused the fire just as soon as it could be done after it was discovered, and by the time the firemen had arrived, does not in any way depreciate the promptness that was displayed by the department.

CHANGE IN THE TIMBER OFFICE

Major Wood, upon receiving advice from Ottawa yesterday, caused Mr. D. A. McLae of the timber office to be notified that after the end of the fiscal year his services will be no longer required.

Mr. John F. Sugrue, formerly mining inspector on Dominion, will enter the timber office.

Mr. McLae is at liberty if he so desires to take leave of absence from the first of next month and draw his salary till the end of the fiscal year.

Mr. McLae has been in the north for seven years, where he is well known and has a large circle of friends. He has been in the government service since he came north. He has also considerable property interests in Dawson.

OLD SOURDOUGH STRUNG 'EM UP

Editor of World's Work Writes as to How Their Funny Article of the Yukon Appeared.

Some time ago the Yukon World published an article from the World's Work magazine on the Yukon district. The article was full of the most amusing misstatements and glaring inaccuracies, and among other things spoke of the railway from Hudson's Bay to Dawson and the railway from Dawson to Fairbanks. In a recent mail the editor of the World received a letter from Mr. Walter Page, the editor of the World's Work. He remarked that he saw the criticism of the article in the World. He said that the article was written by a man who was reliable but apparently he got into the company of some old sourdough who was doing New York, who strung him up pretty badly. The information was thought to be correct and it was only after the article was published that they heard they were "done."

DAWSON DEAD EASY

What "Biddy" the Blower Has to Say

TROTS OUT HIS STRING

Has All the Boxing Talent of the World Engaged for Dawson and Alaska

"Biddy" Bishop, who came here with Billy Woods and Millet last summer, seems to be making a large amount of capital, or at least newspaper puffery, out of what he knows of the people and conditions here, and is claiming that he is in constant communication with the sports here and is doing all the business of that kind for this northern country between here and Nome.

In the last number of the San Francisco Bulletin, a very excellent sporting newspaper, appears the following, which will cause at least a few of the readers of the Yukon World to broadly smile:

"The boxing game will be run in full blast in Alaska this summer. Biddy Bishop received lengthy communications through the mails yesterday instructing him to arrange a series of matches to take place at Dawson, Skagway, Whitehorse and Fairbanks, and the young manager is looking about to select the best material in the light and middleweight classes.

"The first big matches to take place in the far north will be held on the Queen's birthday, May 24, and the season will close with another big contest on Dominion day, July 1st. Sandwiched in between these dates will be the big Fourth of July celebration, which is a big day at all the camps, and on the 13th of June is when the union miners have their big time, and a fight on either of these dates will draw the money.

"It is estimated that a fight on either of these four dates will draw at least a $10,000 house. Last summer Bishop took Billy Woods to Alaska and the pair cleared up everything in sight. Bishop says that it takes a fellow that season to learn the ropes in that country and this time he figures that he will be able to come out of the gold camps with a fat purse.

"It's the greatest country I ever been to," remarked Bishop, "and I will surely make the trip again if I have to send East to get the fighters to go along with me. Joe McDonald tells me that Nick Burley is still in Dawson, and that he is as big a favorite this season as he was last."

"McDonald wants me to bring a good man to pit against Burley, and he says I can get all kinds of betting and that we will draw a big house. I think Twin Sullivan, Dave Barry or Billy Woods would be the man to match against Burley in Dawson."

"Then they have a light weight in there who fights at 135 and I want to get some good boy to meet him. I thought first that Young Corbett would be the fellow to tackle him, but I think it would be best to get some one who would weigh perhaps 138, and I may send Charley Neary or Buddy Ryan."

"I have a little friend at Fairbanks, E. Strother Bunch, a clever little newspaper man, and he is to handle the fights there this summer, and he wants me to bring two good middleweights, and I think Joe Wolcott and Young Peter Jackson would do for the heavy fellows, and I had in mind for the light weight match a contest between Aurelio Herrera, who I have always considered one of the best 128-pound men in the business, and Eddie Hanlon."

"I will sign up the fighters within the next few days and then we will arrange to go into the country. Say, it's a swell trip up there in the summer, and I am stuck on it. The weather is grand and the people can't do enough to make your trip a pleasant one."

COW MILLER MAKES A STAKE

Something Like Five Thousand Dollars an One Trip from Valdes to Fairbanks.

"Cow" Miller, well known to everybody in Dawson, seems to be prosperous as a freighter on the Valdes trail. At any rate his first trip was a successful one from a financial point of view. Mr. Shindler, who has just got in from Valdes, having taken the Valdes route for Dawson as part of his winter vacation, says that Mr. Miller brought into Fairbanks over the trail from Valdes ten tons of nails, whisky and cigars, at 50c per pound. The profit on the trip would clear him at least $5,000.

Then, when he got to Fairbanks he sold one of his teams for $1200 and another for $1000, and these horses had been purchased on the outside for about $150 apiece.

MRS. BERGHOLZ LECTURE SATURDAY

The tickets for the lecture by Mrs. Bergholz on the Holy Land next Saturday night are selling very well, and the crowd at the lecture promises to be a large one.

Mrs. Bergholz leaves on Wednesday next for her new home in China and the occasion will be in the nature of a farewell to her.

The lecture will be interspersed by solos given by Mrs. J. Hatmon Caskey, Mrs. Herbert and Mr. McAdam. The tickets are one dollar and are on sale at Crabb's drug store and by any of the ladies of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Methodist church.

STREET CROWDS AND SUNSHINE

Any Little Incident Will Collect a Big Crowd on First Avenue Nowadays.

One might reasonably ask if the people of the Klondike hibernate as do the bears, for the crowds that now congregate on First Avenue are the same as have been seen in former years as soon as the spring sunshine began to get in its work. But a few days ago and the avenue was practically deserted; yesterday there was quite a crowd on the street during business hours.

And what a trifling incident will serve to attract a crowd on this avenue was well represented. Just when the sunshine was at its brightest two fox terriers got into a friendly play for the possession of a piece of old sacking. There was nothing to it at first, but the two dogs got a good hold and they both showed grit. Neither would give way.

Soon there was a big crowd, five to seven deep, forming a circle about the two dogs. Whether it was this popular appreciation and the cheers and applause, or what it was, those two little dogs put up a tremendous fight. They dragged one another over the ice, and soon both were bleeding from the nostrils and abrasures on the side of the head. But as long as the crowd laughed and cheered they held on, until at last one of the owners stepped in and separated them.

It is simply an incident to show how easily a crowd is collected in Dawson, and what a little thing will serve to amuse it.

DRUGGED AND LEFT ON TRACK

Dangerous Characters do Desperate Crime in the Wilds of Newer Ontario.

FORT FRANCES, March 10.—A "lumber jack" by the name of John Frayland was struck by the east train yesterday near Mine Centre and instantly killed. The unfortunate man was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident and was lying across the track. It is supposed that he had been drugged and robbed and left in the position in which the train struck him. He had been working for H. H. Wood and was a Swede by birth. It is likely that an inquest will be ordered, as the circumstances surrounding his death would indicate foul play.

AGAIN A BIG HOUSE

Pygmalion and Galatea Last Night

WORK OF LOCAL ARTISTS

Splendid Dramatic Work Shown. Not a Single Hitch or Unevenness

Again a large audience enjoyed the performance of Gilbert's mythological Greek comedy, Pygmalion and Galatea, which was reproduced by request at the Auditorium last night. There were many box parties and the house in every part was comfortably filled. And the applause at the efforts of the players was even more pronounced than on the first occasion of the presentation of this favorite comedy.

In the first place, Reginald P. Willson has for the past four years been giving recitations and been at the forefront as an amateur entertainer, and has also appeared in operatic and dramatic entertainments given from time to time by amateurs. But it would seem that not in any one of the many roles he has played has he filled the bill so completely as he does in that of Pygmalion. In his make-up, in his every gesture and trick of voice, he is the Greek sculptor, proud of his fame but discontent that his ideals of manly and womanly beauty, surpassing those of the gods even, are not endowed with life. When, as a punishment, the gods give life to his statue of Galatea, then he has a trouble in his household, and the many trying episodes of the humor of the play were last night as well portrayed and sustained by the amateur Mr. Wilson as they have ever been by any professional who has made Pygmalion his particular role.

Mrs. J. L. Sale, as the wife of the sculptor, was far and above the amateur class in her work last night. In this charming scene, where she bids goodbye to her husband and asks him to pour out his love to what she believes to be an inanimable block of carved stone, there is a lifting lightness in her tones that struck a sympathetic chord in her audience, and her scene where she calls down the curse of blindness upon a husband who she believes to be unfaithful was one of the strongest of the evening's representation.

As to the portrayal of the character of Galatea, Miss Alice Gertrude Crawford has to be treated from a slightly different standpoint. She is a professional; she has played with some of the leading theatrical combinations of the United States. It may be said of her performance last night, which was criticised at length on her first appearance in the part last week that it showed the work of a consummate artist, in this particular, that the few little crudities and unevenness then presented by her support and by herself on the first night had been smoothed out, and a more artistic finish than she displayed last night could not be wished. She was applauded at the close of every one of her scenes and had several curtain calls.

Mr. J. S. Cowan, who acted the part of Chryso, an art patron, is an art patron in real life. For the purposes of the part he sacrificed a magnificent beard, and with this sacrifice he looked the part and acted it to the life. He was a real Greek and not one playing the part. And this latter part will equally apply to Mr. O'Dell's representation of the Greek soldier, Leucippe, and he made of the minor scene with Myriac, Pygmalion's sister, cleverly portrayed by Miss Hagel, one of the best points in a thoroughly reputable production. Miss Hagel seems an actress by intuition and might well essay with confidence higher roles.

Mrs. J. Langlois Bell as the wife of Chryso has a really difficult bit of acting, and last night she so carefully shaded and interpreted the part that she was applauded as warmly as some of the principals. H. A. Weld and J. H. Arden took the minor part of slaves, but both are clever comedians and they made the best of their roles. Weld, perhaps because he had the better opportunity, particularly distinguished himself. It reminded the old timer of two plays, in one of which, against the idea of the

JUVENILES IN FANCY DRESS

All the papas and mammas in town will be seated at the D.A.A.A. rink tonight at 8 o'clock sharp, or a little earlier to avoid the rush, in order to see how their young hopefuls distort themselves on the ice in bal masque costumes. These costumes have taken a lot of study in many households, and the little princesses and princes, and even those who go as dairymaids and as Five-Finger Nick, and as the Bad Man from Texas, will all be worth going that far to see.

At any rate there is sure to be a great crowd of spectators for the reason that there are so many young people entered for the contests for prizes. And there will be the full military band. It seems as if the D.A.A.A. will tonight entertain one of the largest and merriest crowds that it has had to handle in all its varied experience.

BOOM CANADA IN ENGLAND

LONDON, March 12.—Mr. Preston, the labor commissioner in London for Canada, has arranged an interesting motor wagon tour through the out-of-the-way places in England and Wales.

The wagon was one of the exhibits at the St. Louis exhibition, and is 20 feet long. It will be loaded with grain, fruit, straw, and other samples of Canadian produce, and lettered with information as to the openings in the Dominion free grants of land. By this means the men in charge will be able to provide an object lesson to people who would be missed on an ordinary "train and town" tour, and the wagon, opening outward at will, provides quite a large area for the display of the produce.

If the first experiment proves as great a success as is anticipated, other wagons, costing $4000 to $5000 each, will be sent on similar journeys.
