COUNTY OF BEAUBIEN CONSTITUTIONAL ASSOCIATION.

GENERAL MEETING OF THE BEAUBIEN CONSTITUTIONAL ASSOCIATION, AT THE HOUSE OF THE VILLAGE OF BERTINGDON, ON MONDAY, THE 20th MAY, ONE O'CLOCK IN THE AFTERNOON, FOR THE PURPOSE OF ELECTING TWO ADDITIONAL MEMBERS TO THE GENERAL MEETING TO TAKE PLACE AT MONTREAL, ON THE 24th JUNE next.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

MONTREAL, FRIDAY, MAY 5.

We have looked over the Report of 1835, of the Montreal Convention, in which, besides the present revenue and its prospects, we find an explanation of the defalcation alleged by Mr. Mackenzie to have taken place in the funds. The interest which has been excited in the public mind relative to the affairs of this Company, as well as the public importance of the Canal in a public point of view, demands attention to the statements of the Report.

The Canal has cost, up to this time, upwards of £240,000. Its annual expense for repairs, compensations for damages by water to the lands on its right, and other contingencies, exceed very considerably its annual revenue, notwithstanding this has been rapidly increasing every year since the Canal was in operation.

The stock is held very largely by the Government of Upper Canada, by that of this Province to some extent, and by American capitalists. Loans also, to a considerable amount, have been obtained both from the Provincial and Imperial Governments. We are not, however, without some disappointment, that the stock owned by private individuals in the Province, does not exceed £27,100.

Of the magnitude and importance to the Province of this Canal, nothing need be said; and that it will ultimately prove profitable to the stockholders, little doubt, we presume, can be justly entertained.

It may be, however, worthy of notice, in passing, that the "Welland Canal" by its nature, and the expenditure of public capital, in the way of increasing internal communication. A canal or a railway is not made to excite the wonder of posterity, as the Pyramids of Egypt, or to commemorate some glorious achievement or the virtues of a fellow mortal, as are ordinary monuments; but for its usefulness—for the purposes of transport. It does not of itself add to the productions of a country; it manufactures nothing; it grows nothing; although it stimulates production in the district within the verge of its influence. It makes the application of capital profitable in places, where it could not possibly have been so, had there been no railroad or canal within a reasonable distance. It attracts capital and population to its neighbourhood, upon the most cogent of those reasons which cause the settlement of the banks of a navigable stream before the lands beyond them; and these reasons are the facilities of intercourse which it offers with other parts of the country. Besides the effect of a Canal or Railway, generally to create employment for itself, and to open up new channels for the investment of capital, in its immediate vicinity, and indeed in the most remote districts which its measure come within its influence, its more obvious use, is in the transportation of heavy and bulky products from the one extremity to the other. If there be little to be transported, the advantage to be derived from a will of course be small; and if the cost of its construction, from the capital expended on it. An increase of business, which indeed indirectly tends to create, in these circumstances, alone render the undertaking profitable.

The condition of the country which lies within the influence of the Welland Canal, must have precluded the idea of this work becoming immediately profitable upon its completion. Both population and capital are scanty on the side of Canada, and of course the demand for transport proportionably limited. The canal has also had to contend from its commencement with a powerful rival in the Erie Canal, in securing a share in the transport of products between American ports. As to the future, however, this may be confidently relied on, that as the increase of population and capital in the western parts of the United States, has not only rendered the Canal profitable to the Stockholders, but is now rendering necessary additional means of transport between them, and more eastern portions of that country, so the same case in Canada, operating under circumstances even more favourable than in the States, must eventually make the Welland Canal profitable. The reason why it is not so now, is not because a great number of the productions of the country could not be transported on it, but because the productions to be transported are not abundant enough. It has been constructed a little time before it was needed.
