"I, a game, I" answered George, an expression of the deepest pain spreading itself over his ugly features. "No, marm—and when one has wanted to help a friend, too. Well, if you think that—and no doubt misfortune hev made you suspicious—the best way I can do is to bid you good-day, and to wish you well out of your troubles, workhus and all, marm, which I do according," and he rose from his box with much dignity, politely bowed to the hag on the mattress, and then turning walked toward the door.

RIDDELL, Secretary, St. John Street, Mo ntreat irtin House

Mr. Quest, sitting in state as clerk to the magistrates assembled in quarter sessions at the sessions house at Boisingham, little guessed that the sword, at whose shadow he had tremiled all these years, was even now falling on his head, or that the hand that cut the hair mat held it was that of the studid bumpkin, whose warning he had despised.

HE SWORD OF DAMOCLES.

Some clocks.

For Colds or Pain.

Yellow Oil is the best remedy I ever used. I had a bealing breast fifteen months ago, which was very sore. I got no relief until I tried Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which gave instant relief.

HE SWORD OF DAMOCLES.

"Spare him!" she snarled; "I'll make him sit up: I'll have his blood. But look here, if he's put in chokey, where's the tin to come from?"

FUN, FACTS AND FICTION. A Judicious Compound of Wit and Wisdom.

The saloon keeper is fortunate in that his customers never feel above carrying home their own loads.

their own loads.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills, as they are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority "Hide behind our blushes" is the headline in an exchange. Well, what of it? Did anybody suppose there wasn't hide behind them.

A may wife cheek!

"As for being afraid, marm," heanswered,
"Tve told you Laryer Quest is a long sight more frightened of you than you are of him. Then as for money, why, marm, I'm going down to Boisingham myself by the train that leaves Liverpool street at 1:30, and that's an hour from now, and it's proud and pleased I should be to take a lady down and be the means of bringing them as has been in holy matrimony together again.
And as to what you should do when you gets there, why, you should just walk up with your marriage lines and say, 'You are my husband, and I cail on you to cease living as you didn't oughtter, and take me back;' and if he don't, why, then you swears an information, and it's a case of warrant for bigamy."

The Tiegr chuckled, and then suddenly. A man's wife should always be the same especially to her husband, but if she is weak and nervous and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person." at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too. "What makes Jackson look so awful sober this morning?" "Because he was so awful drunk last night."

The great lung healer is found in excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption. for bigamy."

The Tiger chuckled, and then suddenly seized with suspicion, looked at her visitor seized with suspicion, and sharply.

"What do you want for me to blow the gaif for?" she said; "you're a leery old hand, you are, for all your simple ways, and you've got some game on, I'll bet my davy."

"I a game. I" answered George, an exbe far advanced in consumption. If man could see himself as others see him he would pull down the blinds.

"Hair Magic'

Is a good name of Dr. Dorenwend's German preparation for the hair. It really works like magic. All who have used it pronounce it to be unequaled for remedying the lot vitality of the hair roots, restoring gray hair, removing dandruff, etc. Just try it. It is first-class. All druggists sell it.

senting such a picture of abandoned rage and wickedness that even George, whose nerves were not finely strung, inwardly shrank from her.

"Ah, marm," he said, "no wonder you're put out. When I think of what you've had to suffer, I own it makes my blood go b'iling through my veins. But if you are a-coming, perhaps it would be as well to stop cursing and put your hat on, for we have to catch the train," and he pointed to a headgear chiefly made of somewhat dilapidated peacock feathers, and an ulster which the balifish ad either overlooked or left through pity.

She put on her hat and cloak, and then going to the hole beneath the board, out of which she said the woman Ellen had stolen her jewelry, she extracted the copy of the certificate of marriage which that lady had not apparently thought worth stealing, and put it in the pocket of her piak silk peignoir.

Then George, having first secured the remainder of the bottle of brandy, which he put into his capacious pocket, they started, and, finding a hansom, drove to Liverpool street. Such a spectacle, as the Tiger looked upon the platform, Georgewas wont, in after days, to declare he never did see. But it can be easily imagined that a flerce, dissolute, hungry looking woman, with half dyed hair, who had drunk as much as was good for her, dressed in a hat made of shabby peacock feathers, dirty white shoes, an ulster with some buttons off, and a gorgeous but filthy tea-gown, presented a sufficiently curious appearance, especially when contrasted with her companion, the sober and melancholy looking George, who was arrayed in his pepper and salt Sunday suit.

So curious indeed was their aspect that the people loitering about the platform collected round them, and George, who was heartily ashamed of the position, was thankful enough when once the train started. He had, from motives of economy taken her on a third class ticket, and at this point she grumbled, saying that she was accustomed to travel like a lady should, first; but he appeased her with the brandy bottle.

Altie pourney through he talked to her About her wrongs, till at last, what between the position and a first should be trained to have been also and the time spent in doing hath a comfort that is not for the idle.

All the journey through he talked to her about her wrongs, till at last, what between the liquor and his artful incitements, she was inflamed into a condition of savage fury against Mr. Quest. When once she got this point he would let her have no more brandy, seeing that she was now ripe for his purpose, which was, of course, to use her to ruin the man who would ruin the house he served.

affected. He could neither rest, work, ne get relief from any medicine he tried. Some time ago he got Hagyard's Pector Balsam, and after taking six or eight bottles his cough is entirely cured, the asthma greatly relieved, and his lung greatly seemelied.

to George's intense relief he found himself upon the platform at Boisingham. He was a pretty tough subject, but he felt that a very little more of the company of the fair Edithia would be too much for him. As it happened, the station master was a particular friend of his, and the astonishment of that worthy when he saw the respectable George in such company cannot be expressed in words.

"If you mean me, you dirry, wheel greashing steam boss, you," said Edithia, who was by now in a fine belicose condition, "I'm boo more foreign than you are. Shat your ngly mouth, can't you, or "—and she took a step toward the stont station master. He retreated precipitately, oaught his heel against the threshold of the booking office, and vanished backward with a crash.

"Steady, marm, steady," said George. "Save it up, now, do, and as for you, don't you irriste her, none of you, or I won't answer for the consequences, for she's an injured woman, she is, and injured women is apt to be dangerous."

As chance would have it, a fly which had brought somebody to the station was still standim there, aud im an George bundled his fair charge, telling the driver to go to the sessions house.

"Now, marm," he said, "listen to me; I'm going to take you to the man as has wronged you. He's sitting as clerk to the magistrates. Do you go up and call him your husband. Then he'll tell the policeman to take you away. Then do you sing out for justice, because when people sings out for you per him, and only you go you have the sittle one for
