Nerves Are Sore and Painful
Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, ticdoloreux, and in the chest, intercostal neuralgia.
The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigor of health.
While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

Trains in Two Sections—The Grand Trunk in its endeavor to keep the International Limited on schedule time last night ran it in two sections, but it was to no avail. The first section arrived in London 1 hour and 45 minutes late, while the second section ran a little over the two-hour mark. Few trains on any of the steam roads running into London arrived on time. They were running from ten minutes to three hours late. After an all-day's work the rural Independent telephone companies had their lines in working order.

CITY BUSINESSMAN FACES DEATH AT SEA

Jose Gaste, Passenger on the Threatened Esperanza Off "The Keys."

THE WIRELESS USELESS

Giant Waves Hit Ocean Leviathan Staggering Blows, Causing Consternation.

"It was the most thrilling experience I ever had," said Jose Gaste, cigar manufacturer, of this city, in describing his return trip from Cuba, to The Advertiser, last night. "The waves crashed against the sides of the vessel, while the spray dashed over even the upper decks. Throughout a day and night the storm increased, and for more than 28 hours we were cut off from the world, our wireless operator being unable to 'pick up' on-shore stations or passing vessels. No one on board expected to set foot on dry land again."

Storm Isolates Boat.

Mr. Gaste was returning after a month's buying trip in Cuba, on the steamship Esperanza, from Havana to New York, When the vessel was off "The Keys" a storm broke, which completely isolated the vessel from all communication. At times the waves threatened to swamp the ship, and none of the passengers were able to sleep because of the tossing of the boat, and the fear that disaster might lie in the wake of every huge roller that swept toward the vessel.

"Through it all the captain never left the bridge," said Mr. Gaste. "His actions were the pluckiest I ever witnessed. He not only looked after the safety of his vessel, but buoyed up the spirits of the passengers as well. For more than 48 hours we lay off 'The Keys,' and it was during that time that our wireless failed us. We were cut off from the world completely.

An 102-Mile Gale.

"The gale hourly increased, until at one time a blow of 102 miles an hour was recorded. The waves swept the decks, drenching any of the passengers who had the courage to remain outside the cabins. We were 64 hours late when we sighted Sandy Hook. At the termination of the voyage a resolution was circulated for the signatures of the passengers, commending the bravery of captain and crew."

In speaking of the Mexican situation Mr. Gaste stated that the feeling seemed unanimous among the residents that Great Britain should be allowed to step in. Little sympathy was extended to the Americans, who were not regarded in a friendly light by the Mexicans.

Villa Capitalists' Tool.

"As near as I could gather," continued Mr. Gaste, "the general feeling was that Villa was being paid by American capitalists. The money market is tottering. The Mexican dollar at present is only worth one-fifth of its current value, or, in other words, 20 cents of American or Canadian money is equivalent to their dollar."

FUTURE REPUBLIC SOCIALISTIC STATE

John Cooper Powys Declares Human Race Will Be Vast Industrial Army.

SEES MONEY'S ABOLITION

Work Coupons Will Succeed It in Socialistic Utopia, Conjeered Up by Lecturer.

That the republic of the future will be a socialistic state with government by commission, the human race formed into a vast industrial army, and the unit in society composed not of a man and his wife and children, but entirely of the individual, were some of the conclusions arrived at, and convictions voiced by John Cowper Powys, M. A., in his lecture last night on "The Republic of the Future."

Mr. Powys reached this climax by asking his hearers to consider first the great world movements of the day. That there were these movements and continual changes politically, morally and socially, no one could deny. It had been the case since the world began.

"In history there have been great movements existing for a time; they have played their part and then vanished completely away, leaving, so far as one can see no trace on the future of the world. It is therefore quite conceivable that there are even now existing great moral, political and even revolutionary movements that will in time disappear and leave no trace," said Mr. Powys.

"So in discussing the republic of the future, we must consider what particular currents now existing are going to be master. Obviously, they are in embryo now, for nothing ever sprang out of the void all at once.

Religious Movements.

"Look abroad over the world. You see certain great religions—Christian, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, Confucianism and so on. A great many people realize that Christianity is not making the headway that they would have hoped. Is the coming into the Christian fold of the Buddhist, Mohammedan and all the rest so great and so rapid that we are compelled to think that within a limited space of time all the world will accept Christianity? I do not know," said Mr. Powys. "But if there happens to appear simultaneously among Christians, Mohammedans, Confucianists and Buddhists—among every conceivable kind of race the world over, in fact, a similar movement, is this not what we are in search of? I do not see how anybody can deny that in every country in the world at present there are two forces at work. One is socialism, the other individualism or philosophic anarchy."

Of these two, Mr. Prowys, deemed socialism by far the greater influence, and averred that the socialistic ideal would govern the republic of the future, although philosophic anarchy might dominate later. The tendency of the present age was commercialism, industrialism and competition. This latter phase of commercial life was rapidly becoming eliminated, however, by scientific organization. One by one certain "Napoleonic-Bismarkic" brains were taking up the threads of commerce and high finance, and in the organization of trusts competition was becoming less and less.

"What is this pooling of capital and labor but socialism in the germ?" asked the speaker.

Experts in Finance.

In his ideal state with government by commission, Mr. Powys would have his commissioners experts in finance, who should each be in power for ten years. The representative system of government was strongly urged by the speaker. "Government by parties must come to an end; it is a most unsatisfactory thing, and has encouraged graft, rescality, and meanness, and has hindered over and over again the will of the people."

Would Give Leisure.

Under the new system of things as forseen by Mr. Powys, the republic of the future will give much leisure to the people. The working day shall be of no more than four hours' duration. Coin of the realm shall cease to exist; and in place of money, mankind will obtain food and clothing at a great state department-store by presenting coupons stating the number of hours which he has worked. In this state there will be no chance for the "man higher up" to grind down the man beneath. The pinch that is felt by the unskilled laborer of today will be a thing unknown. "I would rather be a slave in the courts of Nero of old, than an unskilled laborer under present conditions," said Mr. Powys.

Woman's Standing.

Woman's standing in the new republic will be a much more independent one than is at present the case, according to Mr. Powys. A husband will not dare beat his wife, because she will be considered as a distinctive unit by the state, and as such receive the state's protection. "A mother and wife will be units—not dependent upon the man. For every child born into the world the mother will receive a stated sum from the government, and this will render her independent."

With a vision of free theaters, free music of the best kind, free picture galleries, and plenty of leisure for the human race, Mr. Powys concluded his picture of the Republic of the Future.
