I colored scarlet.

"Yes," said I, as composedly as possible.
"Good morning, Mr. Avery. I shall be obliged if you will examine the fruit as speedily as possible, as I am in a hurry."

"Oh, certainly." He looked as if mipping frost had chilled his enthusiasm in the bud, and I secretly exulted within myself. est in the air, the new moon just dipping ts golden horn behind the maple swamp in the west, and the ground sounding orisply under foot. Mr. Hull bought the load of apples, and said if I had any more at the same price—and of the same quality, he cautiously added—he would be happy to take them. "Just thirty five dollars, counting in the melodeon money," cried Kitty, glee-fully. "And now Mr. Avery may come as thinking, no doubt that we would be thankful to jump at the chance. But Kitcy and I, after taking the matter into consideration, thanked him, and declined politely.

"We couldn't keep house without old Mooley, could we, Addy?" said my sister.

"There are so many nice dishes we can make for poor father, if we have plenty of money?"

"I was not thinking of the money, Addy," said he almost reproachfully. "Do you think one's mind runs always on money?"

"Mr. Avery, this is scarcely business-like," I interposed.

So it happened that on this especial March evening we had just come in from attending to the wants of our live stock.
I was in great spirits, playing with pussy, who came to meet us with her plumy tail erect; but Kitty leaned sadly against the wooden mantel and looked into the fire with mouraful eyes.

"Kitty," cried I, at last, "what does make you so dull?"

I drew myself up slightly.

Tears Teach More Than Books.

—Among other valuable lessons imparted, by this teacher is the fact that for a very long time Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has been the prince of liver correctives and blood purifiers, being the household physician of the poor man, and the able consulting physician to the rich patient, and praised by all for its magnificent service and efficacy in all diseases of a chronic nature, as malarial poisoning, allments of the respiratory and digestive systems, liver disease and in all cases where the use of an alterative remedy is who held the mortgage on our homestead, was the son of a neighbor, and an old play-fellow and a boy beau of my own, who had gone to the prosperous young city a few miles north of us and commenced business on his own business on his own account, and I had a particular aversion to asking aid or help of him in any way. I might be poor, but I was also proud, and Kitty was quite sympathetic enough to understand me.

I sat down on the hearth rug, with my chin in my hands, and stared carnestly at the big crackling black log. Pussy crept away and nestled down in the corner, as if she knew by instinct that there was a heare of temperature. Dr. M. E. "You will, Addy?"
"And why not? Squire Dyson would charge at least 20 per cent. commission, and make a favor of it at that. I can't afford either the price or the patronage. Don't say anything about it to father. He would only fret and raise objections. What must be done, must be, and I am A Brooklyn clergyman says that liquors may soon be sold in skating rinks and then "the result would be disastrous."
We should say so. It is hard enough for a sober man to stand up.

"But, Addy, how? All this seems so perfectly wild and visionary to me."

"Well, it needn't; for, believe me, it's the most practical thing in the world. All we have to do is to sort the apples out in barrels, nice and sound—I can easily do it by lantera-light to-night—and to-morrow morning we'll rise early, harness old Bobbin to the lumber wagon—"

"But how are we to get the heavy barrels up into the wagon?"

"Goosie!" cried I, langhing, "can't I rut the barrels up into the wagon while they're empty and fill them at my leisure? And I'll have them sold at Mapleton before you've got the pork and cabbage boiling for dinner."

"But where will you go?" asked Kitty.

But it wasn's so bad, after all. With pardonable egotism, I supposed that every one would be staring at me; but on the contrary a young woman selling apples might be the commonest sight in the world, so little common or surprise did it apparently excite. Mr. Helloway of the firm of Holloway Brothers, produce and commission merchants, didn't want any apples, I speedily learned.

"Just bought a shipload from Albany," said he, as car lessly as if sniploads of apples were as common a purchase as tenests worth of tape. And I drove on, beginning to feel infinitesimally small.

Mr. Lovejoy could give me a dollar a barrel. "Apples wasn't worth o more at this season of the year!" And I whipped barrel. "Apples wasn't worth no more at this season of the year!" And I whipped Did Dobbin up, determined to carry them home again, sooner than to sell at that
