

The following paragraph from an exchange speaks for its self.—“Some of the priests of Canada are disobeying the orders of the Pope and Archbishop Taschereau commanding them to remain neutral in elections. A priest in Warwick told his people from the pulpit that they were bound to vote for the Catholic and French candidate.”

At a meeting of the general Synod of the Church of England in Australia, held in Sydney, a resolution was passed thanking the revisors of the New Testament for their labors and expressing satisfaction with the “faithfulness of the revised translation to the authentic Greek manuscripts.”

The General Synod approves the use of the Revised Version in the service of the various congregations.

LITERARY NOTICE.

Practical Guide to Housekeeping in all its Departments, comprising a Repository of valuable information designed to promote Domestic Happiness and Comfort.—Published by R. A. H. Morrow, St. John, N. B.

This is a neatly paper bound household manual, just published. It is evidently all that its title implies. No hint conducive to home comfort, happiness and even beauty, seems to be omitted. It contains the cream of many volumes, as well as much useful information never before published. The time spent on the preparation of this book must have been very great. The alphabetical list of contents occupies three pages, and one can hardly think of a subject or matter connected with the home or household that is not treated. After a careful examination we can heartily and conscientiously recommend it as a healthy and valuable publication, calculated to do much good. We are convinced, were its directions faithfully followed in the household, the labours and perplexities of each day would not only be lessened, but every member of the family would become happier and wiser and better. The work is mailed by the publisher to any address on receipt of 25 cents, and those who procure a copy will find it a good investment.
