Botha's Opponent Admits Placing Poison in Wells

Col. Francke, Replying to Protest, Candidly Stated That No Water Supplies Would Be Allowed To Fall Into Enemy's Hands.

LONDON, May 5, 8:25 p.m.—In support of charges that the Germans poisoned wells in the southwest African campaign, Lewis Harcourt, secretary of state for the colonies, tonight issued a communication, in which he says that when Gen. Louis Botha, commander of the Union of South Africa forces, occupied Swakopmund he discovered that six wells had been poisoned with an arsenical cattle wash.

As a rejoinder, Gen. Botha sent a communication to Col. Francke, commander of the German forces. This elicited a response, according to the statement of Mr. Harcourt, that the German troops had been ordered that "if they possibly can prevent it, not to allow any water supplies to fall into the hands of the enemy in a form which allows it to be used for man or beast."

Offence Admitted. When Swakopmund was evacuated, the reply of Col. Francke continued the officer in charge had several bags of cooking salt thrown into the wells, but it was found that this "could in a short time be rendered ineffective."

The communication says that despite Gen. Botha's protest the practice continued. A message said to have been from Capt. Kruger of the German Protectorate troops, intercepted March 22, is quoted in the communication as saying:

"The patrol at Gabbi has been instructed to infect with disease the Ida mine. Approach Swakop and the Ida mine with extreme caution. Don't water the animals there any more."

In the evacuation of Warmbad and other places Gen. Botha says in a letter: "The German troops have cunningly and systematically poisoned all wells along the railway line in their retreat."

OTTAWA, May 5.—Although few details have been received, the news conveyed in a cable from France that the Canadians have again been in action near Ypres is confirmed at the militia department. The troops had to contend with stupefying and poisonous gases, and while this caused them to lose some ground, the German losses were heavy in killed and wounded.

"What they have done they will continue to do," said General Hughes in an exclusive interview. "It is utterly amazing to me this magnificent fight our boys put up against such overwhelming odds. Under such leaders as they have I fear nothing."

Judging from the announcement that Meut. Helmer of Ottawa has been killed in action it is likely that the Canadian Artillery was in action in the recent battle.

Already seven thousand Canadians who have been held in reserve at Shorncliffe are now on the firing line filling the gaps of the fallen.

Reinforcements to the number of 8000 will cross the channel every month.

FOE SEES SURE DEFEAT
Use of Gas Admission That Artillery is Inferior.

LONDON, May 5.—The British eye witness, dealing with the fighting around Ypres, concludes as follows: "In regard to the recent fighting on our left, it is desirable that the German offensive should be viewed in its true perspective and that it should neither be belittled nor exaggerated. Effectively in the first instance by the standard of trench warfare, the greater part of which has so far been maintained by such bodies of fresh troops as were available in the neighborhood of the operation."

A Local Action.
"There seems to have been strong local counter offensive undertaken in reply to the allied offensive at other points and made with the same object as previous attacks delivered during the last few months, such for instance, as those made in February in the southeast of Ypres, at St. Eloi on March 14 and at other points on the front."

Initiative Not Lost.
"There is no reason why we should not expect similar success in the future. They do not mean that the allies have lost the initiative in the western theatre, nor that they are likely to lose it. They mean, however, and the fact has been repeatedly pointed out, that the enemy's defensive has been strengthened and that he is still unshaken and that he still is able to strike in some strength where he sees the chance of where local advantage can be secured."

War of Attrition.
"In the form now assumed by this struggle—a war of attrition—the Germans are bound ultimately to lose, and it is the consciousness of this fact that inspires their present policy. This is to achieve as early as possible some small, but sufficient magnitude to influence the neutrals, to discourage the allies, to make them weary of the struggle, and to induce the belief among the people ignorant of war that nothing has been gained by the past efforts of the allies because the Germans have not yet been driven back. It is being undertaken with a political rather than a strategical object."

Signs of Weakness.
"It is to that extent from a military standpoint a sign of weakness. Another sign of weakness is the adoption of illegal methods of fighting, such as spreading poisonous gas. It is a confession by the Germans that they have lost their former great superiority in artillery and are, at any cost, seeking another technical advantage over their enemy as a substitute."

Nevertheless, this spirit, this determination on the part of our enemies to stick at nothing, must not be underestimated. To that they are not only men in the long run, it renders it all the more obvious that they are a foe that can be overcome only by the force of overwhelming numbers of men and guns."

Austrians Driven Westward From Right Bank of Nida

Battle Involving Enormous Numbers is Beginning, and German Line is Being Filled.

PETROGRAD, May 5.—All the German movements in the east now are of immense forces from Cracow and especially southward. Since Sunday there have been sharp, desperate engagements at Tarnow and Gorlice, Galicia, and Bartfeld, Hungary. The Russian army has driven the Austrians westward from the right bank of the Nida. A battle involving enormous numbers is now beginning. It is believed that Litzingen's Bavarian army, which last week abandoned an attempt on the Strzy road is now hastening westward to fill the Russian wing of the German line.

The demonstration is intended to detain the large Russian force available for battle between Cracow and the Carpathians. This German line has completely failed. Cavalry were turned back on Monday from a point south of the line from Libau to Mitau, abandoning a number of light guns, which the Russians have sent to Riga. Neither the German fleet nor transports had been seen off the coast, although a Russian torpedo squadron searched for them.

PARIS, May 5.—(11:20 p.m.)—An official note was issued tonight giving details of aerial raids by the allied aircraft, the information being obtained from the aviators themselves and from prisoners. The note says:

"On March 22 a bombardment of the railway station at Briey took place. Damage was done to Confrans, Briey and Metz, where provision depots were destroyed and the railway line was cut."

"On April 15 the station at St. Quentin and a central depot of munitions was completely destroyed by fire, which lasted fourteen hours. Explosions were heard throughout the night. Twenty-four soldiers were killed."

"On April 28, in a bombardment, the Friedrichshafen hangars were damaged and a Zeppelin was destroyed. Bombs were also dropped at Leopoldshöhe and Lorrach, and on the station at Hattigen. Two locomotives and express trains were disabled and all traffic between Leopoldshöhe and Hattigen was suspended."
