

If such would be the Answer to one Question, which so very few have the Courage to propose, it may not be too presumptuous to form, or anticipate the Answer to another ; whether His Majesty would chuse to give up the Happiness or Welfare of Great-Britain, without the Benefit of securing Hanover ? And the latter might much more probably follow from a Continent War, than the former.

There are some Advocates, among the Few, that have hired out their Talents to these imaginary Subsidies, who claim the Protection of Hanover, as Matter of national Justice, on the Part of Great-Britain, upon this Plea ; that the Danger apprehended to those Dominions arises only from the Rupture betwixt us and France.

If