

summer resort, especially when one finds, not brass bands, electric lights, pavilions and the like, but green fields, blue sky, cool, fragrant, spicy woods, and fresh, invigorating air, the breath of which means a new lease of life. Those in search of the former must go elsewhere, but those who seek "fresh woods and pastures new" are welcomed to Campobello's hospitable shores with open arms. First of all, then,

Where is Campobello?

Campobello Island lies in Passamaquoddy Bay, about seventy miles north-east of Mount Desert, and is nearly three miles from Eastport, in the State of Maine.

Campobello Island is under the Canadian Government, although the land is owned by the Campobello Land Company, which is composed of several well-known Boston and New York gentlemen.