Friday, August 18.—Very hot. Mr. De-Wolf, to save me as much as possible from all avoidable fatigue, proposed that we should go in a canoe to the church at Welford, which is seventeen miles by water, and twenty-five by land, from our inn. cordingly he engaged two powerful Indians, who promised to convey us in four hours. We embarked at seven, but the wind blew so hard and direct down the river, that the first mile occupied half an hour. It was easy to determine that our plan must be changed. I was therefore landed on the opposite bank, and Mr. De-Wolf returned as quickly as possible for his horse and waggon. The road was excessively rough; some large bridges were very much broken and dangerous, which obliged us to walk across them; and although every effort to hasten our drive was made, it was past one o'clock when we arrived at the church of Welford, where the congregation had patiently waited from eleven o'clock. The church (St. Paul's) and the burialground were consecrated; and twenty-five persons, well prepared by their pastor, were confirmed. I preached and addressed all before me, on the services, till now unknown to the people in this remote settlement. All were attentive, and I was much gratified
