The agitation for Irish Catholic representation in the Cabinet has reached Montreal, and the friends of Mr. H. J. "What makes almost every lady pause at that window?" queried one man to another, as they lounged near The World office yesterday. "Dunno," replied the other man, "unless it is a looking glass." They crossed the street to satisfy their curlosity, and gazed into the handsomely-dressed window of Edmund Schener, Do Yonge-street, where a charming bevy of pretty girls were congregated. "Of course it's a looking glass." said one of the men, "but just look what those diamond rings are ticketed!" They had solved the mystery. It is the low prices for high-grade jewellery that makes Mr. Scheuer's window always crowded round with fashionable women to whom the glowing enchantment of beautiful gems has a peculiar fascination. Fire pails that do not water soak because they are impervious to liquids—that do not burst their hoops because they have none—that cannot leak because they have no joints—that can be used "for fire only" because they have round bottoms—that do not break because they are made of indurated fibreware—are manufactured only by the E. Concerning the prospects there, he says starvation and bloodshed will be rampant this winter. They cannot possibly get enough provisions in to supply needs, food having run short last year with the population at 1500, and now there are nearly eight times as many people in the country. Very little increase has been made in the facilities for getting in food and more than the increase has been used up for whiskey. Means for getting food there are practically nil, and he cannot see anything for it but starvation. Those that took supplies enough to last themselves will suffer with others, for on the Yukon everybody shares alike.

Hon John Dryden spoke briefly, pointing out that for many years he had been the only Government representative that attended these meetings of the Exhibition, but now members of both Parliaments galore are gathering to the tables. He then suggested that the name of the Industrial Fair ought to be changed, for, in looking over the grounds and watching the crowds, he came to the conclusion that it is as much an exhibit of the peoper themselves as anything else. Mr. Dryden concluded by predicting that Canada would some day be the greatest country in the world.

He is a pleasant faced, elderly gentleman, with a rotundity of person that at first glance would lead a stranger to believe he is a son of Old England, rather than one of Uncle Sam. He confessed that Canada is not so well-known to the people of the United States as it should be, but they are fast becoming better to formed of Canada's greatness.
