A MEAN SLANDER.

Those persons who do not want to enlist or who wish to dissuade others from enlisting for overseas service are circulating the shameful falsehood that the English are keeping their own men back and sending the Canadians forward to be a target for the Germans, and that the Canadians are doing all the fighting.

The British casualties to Aug. 21 numbered 381,583, and included 4,965 officers and 70,992 men killed, and 9,973 officers and 241,986 men wounded, the balance being officers and men reported missing.

When we remember how small has been the actual number of Canadians in the trenches, in comparison with the total number of casualties, the falsehood of the story that the Canadians are doing it all is clearly perceived.

There is another evidence of its falsity. Lord Kitchener yesterday said that as new armies were trained in England they were sent across the Channel, and that no less than 210,000 men have lately joined Sir John French, and enabled him to take over from the French exactly the same number of front.

The body of that 210,000 was made up of English troops. Only a few days ago there were still 40,000 or more of Canadian troops in England. Some of these have since gone over, including, it is said, the division which included the 26th Battalion from St. John.

It is true Canadians have been in the fighting, where they desired to be, for they are not cowards. It is true they have sustained heavy losses in proportion to their numbers in some engagements, and this has been featured in the news sent to Canada; but they have occupied a very small portion of the line against the German attacks which have been given as full accounts of the struggle along the other and longer portions of the line we would realize more fully the work done and the losses sustained by the other British troops.

The truth is that the Canadian troops were held back longer than they desired. They were eager to go to the front. The same eagerness is expressed by Canadian troops now in England. But they have been held back and trained, and made more fit for the struggle before being sent to the firing line.

What we want today is more men of their calibre—men who are not afraid to enlist, and who do not go casting about for excuses for neglecting the duty that thrusts itself into the consciousness of every man who is fit and free to strike a blow in defence of Canada and the Empire.

As to losses sustained by English troops, see the following London cable of yesterday:

Casualties today include 36 officers, fifteen dead; 2,869 men, 670 dead. The regiment suffering were the Sixth Royal Lancasters, Fifth Royal Irish, Sixth East Lancasters, Eighth Rifle Brigade, Eleventh Manchester Regiment, Fourth Royal Sussex, Sixth Border Regiment.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER? Men of St. John—men of New Brunswick—what is your attitude toward those other men—men you know—who are now in the trenches fighting your battles?

Do you profess to believe that they can perform the task without your help? Read what an Australian soldier writes to a friend in Adelaide—an Australian soldier in the trenches:—

"It seems to me the more I see and think—and hear from those who know—that this war will never be ended until the most vigorous and most virile of our younger male blood is expended. It is all nonsense to think, as most do, and say that men are not needed, and that the war will soon be over. Men are needed—not to form an army to carry on when many, and probably most, of us are dead and stark in foreign soil, not next month, nor the next, but now. Great Britain, and, with her, her dominions—her people collectively and individually—will never, can never, win until she has made sacrifices unparalleled and undreamed of even by the most pessimistic. Mother and widows, too, must give their children, wives their husbands, sisters their brothers, sweet hearts their loved ones. All must go to the altar of sacrifice. I have almost got to think that the war optimist of today is the most dangerous lunatic of all, not only a lunatic, but a traitor, to himself, to his country, and to the men who now lie heaped, and those who will lie heaped, in shallow graves in Flanders, in Belgium, in Poland, and in present fields by windy Troy."

Are you optimistic—men of St. John and New Brunswick? Then in the view of this soldier at the front you are dangerous. Read what another Australian, wounded and in hospital, writes home:—

"We hear out here that there is talk in Australia about conscription, compulsory enlistment of single men, but I think it is a lot of rot, for we do not want compulsory slackers out here. A volunteer is worth ten of them any day. The only thing we are wild about is seeing married men with children falling alongside of us, while there are thousands of single men who ought to have been in their place."

What has Australia done? She has equipped and sent to the front more than 100,000 men, and is steadily sending more, and we know what her navy has done. And yet we find the Sydney Sunday Times saying:—

"We will have to do better than this, and the sooner we realize that just now there is only one task before each of us the quicker the world will be at peace again."

Canada, too, will have to do better. More men are needed, and needed now. We owe it to the men in the trenches. Do we not owe it also to ourselves?

WOMAN'S PART. The offer of a group of members of the Daughters of the Empire to aid in the recruiting campaign is what ought to be expected. There are hundreds of women in St. John who have husbands or sons or brothers at the front, and they have a right to hope and expect that for any reason their loved ones are compelled to fall out of the ranks there will be others ready to take their places and uphold the cause of Canada and the Empire. In Queens county last evening two ladies took part in a recruiting meeting. The tragedy of Belgium should appeal to women even more than to men. Do we want that tragedy repeated in Canada? Mrs. Brown, in the morning appeals she made in this city, emphasized the part women should play, and both she and Sergt. Knight told of what women in England are doing, not merely to encourage their men to fight, but themselves doing men's work that the business of the country may go on. There has been some lack of interest on the part of St. John women in the work of recruiting. Perhaps the men are to blame, for yesterday's meeting in the board of trade rooms very clearly revealed that there are still some business men who are indifferent. They should be ashamed by the women.

CONCERNING ELECTIONS. The Standard, incorrectly states the position of the Times in relation to the federal elections. This journal holds that they should be postponed until after the war, but as the supplementary vote does not expire for another year there is no need of talking about it now, nor would there be any justification for postponement for two or three years after the war. While the war is on, we have no politics. When it is over, let the people choose their new rulers. Premier Asquith in the British parliament yesterday pleaded against "the sinister spirit of domestic strife." The St. John Standard today features on its first page a despatch from Ottawa which forebodes an election campaign and an attempt to throw the responsibility for it upon the Liberals. If the Conservatives attempt to run a "flag" election, which would be equivalent to charging with disloyalty the Liberals whose sons are fighting in the trenches, they will deserve to be classed as German sympathizers.

TO AID RECRUITING. The recruiting campaign which is now in progress should be made province wide, and should be kept alive until the end of the war. As long as the war lasts there will be need of men to fill the gaps in the ranks. There should be a recruiting officer for the province, to keep the machinery going, and he should be supported by voluntary committees, such as that now existing in St. John. There is at present a lack of general organization, and a lack of the proper co-operation between the militia headquarters and the civilian committees which are giving their time and effort so earnestly to the task of stimulating recruiting in New Brunswick. The local military officers are doing their part, but there is no proper provincial head. A lieutenant in Halifax cannot attend to the recruiting movement in three provinces, and somebody should have the courage to intimate as much to Sir Sam Hughes, who has a habit of cutting through red tape when the necessity for it is brought to his attention. Proper organization prevents waste of energy and produces the best results. Such organization is at present lacking in this province, and the local committee may very properly invite a more satisfactory co-operation, which, when the conditions are stated will not be denied, since the militia department must be as eager as any individual to have the best results attained.

By all means let us have that Women's Volunteer Reserve Corps. A parade now and then of khaki clad women would remind the young men of their duty.

Do we need recruits? Lord Kitchener said again yesterday: "I am sure we all fully realize that the strength of the armies we are sending out must be fully maintained to the very end. To fulfill this purpose we shall require a large addition to the numbers of recruits joining. The problem of how to secure an adequate supply of men, and thus ensure the field force being kept up to its full strength, is engaging our close attention."

SHE RECOMMENDS "FRUIT-A-LIVES"

Mrs. Corbett Read the Advertisement and Tried It

ATON, Ont., May 14th, 1914. "I have used 'Fruit-a-lives' for indigestion and constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I saw 'Fruit-a-lives' advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory, and I have no hesitation in recommending 'Fruit-a-lives.'" ANNIE A. CORBETT.

Time is proving that 'Fruit-a-lives' can always be depended upon to give prompt relief in all cases of Constipation and Stomach Trouble. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. Dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

LIGHTER VEIN. "The last thing you sent in was good," said the editor. "We all enjoyed reading it very much."

"Well, in that case," said the youthful poet, "I take back what I said in the letter I wrote you yesterday about my determination never to send you any of my work again."

"Of course not," he murmured; "why that letter is what I referred to." "Stray Stories."

Uncle (to nephew playing war game with a chum)—"If you take the fortress within a quarter of an hour I'll give you a quarter."

"Youngster (a minute later)—"Uncle, the fortress is taken. Now let me have the quarter."

Youngster—I offered the besieged 10 cents and they capitulated.

He was a sportsman, and recently, owing to the war, nothing had been coming his way but expenses. One day his daughter informed him in an unfeeling manner that if he did not give her a diamond bracelet worth at least $500, she would drop with the coachman.

"Come to my arms my darling child," he exclaimed, as the tears of joy came down his wrinkled cheeks. "Come to my arms."

"Do I get the bracelet?" she asked.

"Of course not," he smiled gladly. "You get the coachman I owe him eight months' wages."

A young woman helping to poll a rural district to ascertain the political standing of the population, stopped at a big house where a cross-appearing woman answered her ring.

"Does Mr. Smith live here?" she asked.

"He does," was the answer.

"Could you," asked the girl, timidly, "tell me what party he belongs to?"

"I can," answered the woman. "Take a good look at me," she went on, with her hands on her hips. "I'm the party he belongs to and the only one, see?"

PROUD TO KNOW THAT B. OTHER HAS ENLISTED Letter From Halifax Soldier Who at One Time Was Reported Dead The following are extracts from a letter received by Mrs. Travers, of No. 379 Barrington street, Halifax, from her son, Driver Wm. Travers, of the Canadian Artillery, at the front. William was at one time reported dead, but it seems that in action he became detached temporarily from his corps and was missing at roll call. But he turned up later safe and sound: Dear Mother—You know if we never return what we died for. Of course, I know how you would feel—it is a hard thing for you to stand and see three sons out of your four in the ring. But keep up your courage, cheer up, there is a better day to come. If we do not meet in this world again we will all meet in the next. If brother Jack did not join what would everyone say to him when everything was over; why they would not look at him. So I am very glad he did enlist. I am glad to hear that so many of my chums are enlisting. We need them all, every one we can get. Give them all my best regards. I wish them good luck. I have gone through a lot of it myself and I wish them the same luck. Let them do and dare for the British flag. Long may it wave! Don't worry about us, dear mother. Just think well on the fact if we boys and others didn't face the music where would our grand old Union Jack be. Some one has to protect it. When you write to Jack tell him I wish him luck and I am proud of him. NO ELECTION. NO ELECTION TALK (From the Toronto Star.) There ought to be no election during the war. There ought to be no talk
