PRESIDENT IS WELL GUARDED

Secret Service Men Always on Watch

TAKE NO CHANCES

Vigilant Eyes Watch Every Move of Chief Executive of United States and Every Person Who Approaches Him

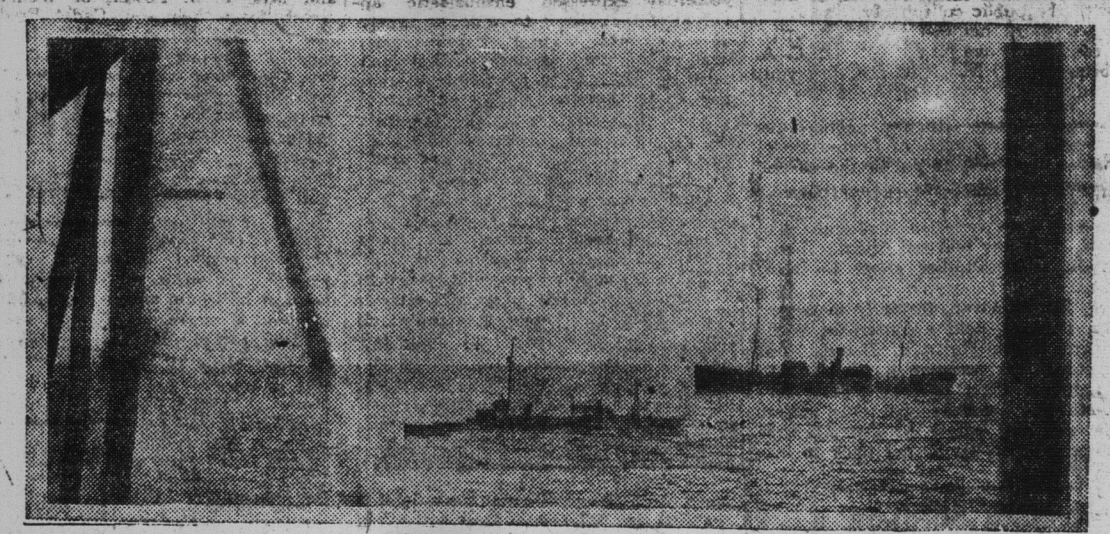

Having lost two of his war presidents by the assassin's bullet, Uncle Sam is taking no chances with the third. Never before was the occupant of the White House so vigilantly guarded as is President Wilson nowadays. As long as he is in the White House he cannot be approached by a stranger, and when he appears in public he is unostentatiously surrounded by a number of keen-eyed men who watchfully scan the faces of those who come near him. Even when he plays golf at the Country Club he is under surveillance, and it is said that he secret service men regret that there is not a more private place for him to play the game, a bath-room, for instance, or something like that. Every president is carefully watched by picked men from the moment he assumes office, of course, much to their annoyance sometimes. On one occasion before the war President Wilson is said to have eluded the vigilance of his warders and got as far as his bank before being overtaken by them. Since the war began, however, he has made no effort to evade the men whose duty it is to protect him.

Roosevelt's Game.
When Col. Roosevelt was president the warders had a difficult task, for the Colonel, a man remarkably well able to take care of himself, used to greatly enjoy to escape from the secret service men. On many a foggy night has he played hide and seek with the detectives, with every policeman in Washington anxiously on the lookout for him. If he were in Washington today and felt impulsively inclined he would find it impossible to repeat his old manoeuvres. It is almost as hard to get into the White House as it is to get out. At night the gates, which used to be hospitably open so that anyone who cared to do so might walk up and peek in at the front door, are guarded by policemen, who have orders not to leave them in any circumstance. At the Washington correspondent of the New York World points out, it would be useless for a band of plotters to start a riot outside the gates in the hope of luring the defenders of the citadel from their posts. They would simply use the telephones at their elbows to summon help from the guard-room.

Scattered through the grounds are other policemen with fixed posts also equipped with telephones, and it would require only a few seconds for a man, or perhaps fifty, or even a hundred armed men to concentrate at any point. At the west side of the White House grounds one gate is left open to admit visitors to the executive offices, but one must either enter the offices or stay out. When he enters he walks into the arms of two more policemen, who enquire as to his business and then convey him to the proper official. These are the precautions in day-time, and at night a new force of guards comes on duty and a detachment of United States regulars is thrown completely round the White House. These men patrol with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets, and so close are they that a cat could hardly pass without being seen. The system they employ works out so that they are advancing upon everyone who approaches the line, and if he is not personally known he cannot pass.

Used Bayonet on Attache.
Not long ago an attache of the White House, who did not happen to be personally known to the soldier whom he encountered as he tried to enter the grounds, attempted to proceed despite the soldier's warning. The result was that a bayonet was inserted in his leg. Inside the White House the precautions to give the alarm should any suspicious character contrive to enter the place are most elaborate and consist of electrical devices and telephones, which the ship would not permit any good American to describe if he happened to be familiar with them. This system is backed by the whole police force of Washington, besides the regular and special guards and the soldiers. We suppose it would be just as hard to gain an audience with the Czar of Russia in the good old days as to secure an audience with the democratic president of the United States in war time. This applies as well to the dangerous visitors as to

TOTAL OF 13,138 SOLDIER GUESTS

Wonderful Record of Army and Navy Leave Club in Paris for Four Months

From the time the British Army and Navy Leave Club in the Place de la Republique, Paris, was opened on August 25 last year up till the end of December, 13,138 soldiers on leave from the front registered their names as its guests. After they had done so they were free to use it for the whole time of their leave, and many did so all day and every day. In the same time 88,447 meals were served and 18,040 beds occupied. These figures alone serve to show the great need which the club has met. It has never needed to beg for customers. When it came into existence in August hundreds of Canadians then on leave so crowded it that in the first week almost it became obvious that it must grow. The time the energy and imagination of the honorary secretaries, the committee and the workers have been taxed to satisfy the unexpressed demand of the men for more and more organized amusement and comfort.

40,370 Meals Last Month.
The tables of the meals served and the beds occupied in the four and a half months of the club's existence show something of its growth:
August 25 to Sept. 30, meals served 14,981; beds 2,696.
October—Meals served 10,974; beds 2,297.
November—Meals served 17,642; beds 2,944.
December—Meals served 40,370; beds 5,168.

On other sides of its use and development there are remarkable figures. Since, for instance, the deposit safe was opened in October the men have of their own choice left in the keeping of the club 388,687 francs ($28,546), much of which had it not been so prudently left behind, would almost certainly have disappeared in one way or another from the men's pockets. Every evening of the week some entertainment, concert, or what drive is given, and parties for the theatre, often have some sort of invention which they imagine will bring about peace in a few days, and when they are turned down by the technical experts of various government departments they are convinced that they are the victims of red tape. Naturally they seek to gain the ear of the president or the secretary of the club. The protection against them is ample. Government officials whom they are permitted to interview, have all electrical buzzers under their desks, "nut buttons" they are called, and as soon as an officer enters noisily and the guest is taken in charge. Thus the population of the Washington asylum is swelled and the time of the busy officials conserved.

under the guidance of one of the ladies of the club, are regularly made up. Conducted Tours.

A late development, the charabanc trips and the tours round Paris, conducted by the women guides, has been made use of with just the same eagerness the men have shown in seeking at everything offered to help them to pass their time well. In the five weeks of the existence of the Guide Corps before the year ended 5,000 men had "done" Paris in conducted parties, to their permanent satisfaction. Among the purely useful activities are the dispensary—1,778 patients—and the wardrobe department, which supplied 680 shirts, 708 pairs of socks, 59 pyjama suits, 80 towels, and 21 sweaters in three months.

A comparative table of those who have used the club shows that the Canadians have been most numerous. Of them there have been 6,487, of Australians 8,187, of British troops 2,971, of New Zealanders 867, and of South Africans 6.

WILL VACCINATE ALL IN GLOUCESTER

Frederickton, N. B., Feb. 17.—Four cases of smallpox are reported from Napadogan in the northern part of York county. The cases are well defined. Napadogan is a divisional point on the National Transcontinental railway and about 100 men are employed there at present. This makes the situation serious. The health authorities have acted promptly. Dr. B. M. Mullin, of North Devon, was sent to Napadogan on Saturday to look into the situation and he will remain there until

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is just plain unadulterated coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and all residents of the place have been vaccinated. It also was reported that there was a case of smallpox at Parkers Ridge and Dr. Ryan, of Belletown, was instructed to investigate. He reports that the sickness is not smallpox. The provincial board of health held an emergency meeting here tonight and issued an order for compulsory vaccination in the county of Gloucester. This makes vaccination compulsory on the entire North Shore.
