Why Not Have These at Ingersoil Would it not be a good idea to establish monthly cattle fairs at Ingersell, at which liberal prizes would be given for the best fat beast exhibited for sale? This would attract sellers and buyers and be of considerable benefit to the town. There has been a great improvement in stock in this district during the last few years, and a little judicious enterprise would make Ingersell a first-class cattle market. At present when a dealer wants a number of beasts he has to scour the country at random to procure them, and as this absurd method incurs considerable expense and loss of time, the butcers would, no doubt, be anxious to co-operate with both town and country in trying to ate with both town and country in trying to establish a periodical market for the sale of live-stock. When an abuse or bad custom is continued it generally happens that some one is interested to prevent its reform, but in the present case all concerned would alike benefit by the change. It is therefore to be hoped that an early meeting will be called to devise the best means for establishing a monthly cattle fair in Ingersoll, and to this end a circular should be sent to the members of township councils and to the leading farmers of the neighbourhood, inviting them to attend, to give their advice and help in any other way their experience may suggest to carry this long-neglected project into practice. At the Woodstock Xmas Fair a large mumber of the finest stock was purchased by our lngersoll butchers. In most places the fairs are held monthly or for contact and numbers this may be said to equal nightly. Now, who will lead off? Perhaps

This is a large decrease for a single year, and the causes which brought it about must be serious ones. The proper way to look at it is to compare the decrease in receipts with the decrease in receipts with the decrease in account of the total exportation from New York. which brought it about must be serious ones. The proper way to look at it is to compare the decrease in receipts with the decrease in exports. By doing so it appears that the decline of exports is five times as great set that of receipts, so that the lessened amount of receipts can by no means be accepted as a reason for the decline of exports. There are, however, two causes which are probably the chief ones for this condition of things. Canada has been able to send out a much larger amount of cheese during the past year than ever before, and its quality has been quite equal to the general run of "states" cheese. It is quite natural that England ese. It is quite natural that England should prefer to patronize her own dominion whenever she can do so satisfactorily. And Canada is making rapid progress in the manufacture of cheese. During all the past Canada is making rapid progress in the manufacture of cheese. During all the past year an expert maker, salaried by the government, has been travelling among the factories, examining their cheese and their methods, and publishing each week the results of his examinations. Each factory was called by name, its stock was criticised, and the faults of manufacture of machinery are called by name, its stock was criticised, and the faults of manufacture, of machinery, or of buildings, were pointed out without fear month. But last year they became convinced that, except in the case of dairymen who lived near the towns, and could get their milk to market quite fresh and at a slight expense, there was more money in good cheese. As a result, they turned back to cheese making in many instances, and the reports of the cheese fairs held threy the assent at different points. held thro' the season at different points, show a considerable increase in the amount manufactured, as well as an improvement in show a considerable increase in the amount manufactured, as well as an improvement in the quality.

These are the principal reasons for the decrease of our exports. But coupled with them is the fact that the quality of "states" cheese has not been up to the proper standard through the past season, so that exporters ere have found a great deal of fault with it. If we are to compete with Canada, and especially with the cheese made by the English themselves, our makers must take more pains with their product. It will not do to rely upon former reputation. Not in years has so little cheese been taken on its name, or so much sold by the test of the tryer. This fact testiles that exporters want quality, and that all brands must ultimately stand or fall by it.

Gentlemen, I beg to submit the following report:—That there was three fires during the year 1883 with losses amounting to $15,380 and insurance on same amounting to $10,380 which is the lowest fire loss that we have had for many years. I have also to report that the brigade has noticeably increased in efficiency and has made some re-ROBT. VANCE, Chief of Brigade.

the Army to speak, not only unkindly, but untruthfully and slanderously of Christian churches. This is well known to any who have been in the habit of attending their meetings, and it is even better known to persons who have been intimate with them in private life. How common it has been to hear them speak of ministers as lazy, indifferent about the souls of the people, as working for money, &c., and how often worthy Christian people who have been doing self-denying work for Christ for many years, have been spoken of as lifeless, dead, frozen up, &c. I read in the good book that Michael the archangel would not bring even against the devil a railing accusation, but our friends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our friends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing accusation, but our firends of the Army seem to take a pleasure in the British grain trade, says: The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: The Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: The Mar Irreinds of the Army seem to take a pleasure in railing against Christian ministers and Christian churches. If these are the fruits of a higher Christian life I am free to admit that I never got that far in the Christian life. Indeed I find the nearer I get to the Lord the farther I get from evil speaking. They should also remember that such talk is still more objectionable when it comes from people whose characters and religion are things of yesterday. And what is worse still, some of those who were as ready and apt as any at this kind of thing, have in a few short weeks returned "like the dog to his vomit and like the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." It should be remembered by those new made soldiers that those ministers and people of whose piety they speak so lighly, fought hard battles for the Lord before they enlisted and indeed before many of them were born, and will be likely to continue in the field and in the battle when they have thrown away their colors. The good book says "Let not him that girdeth on the harness boast as that pulleth it off." The Christian ministers of this town and of the surrounding county, have given the best of evidence for years that they are consistent and worthy Christian men, and the most of them work hard for little pay, and many of the things that have been said of them by the Army leaders have been not only unkind, but untrue. Indeed it speaks well for them that they have had grace enough to go steadily on with their work without stopping to "render evil for evil or railing for railing." I wish the Army success in every good work, but shall never be able to give them credit for very much religion until they manifest more of the kind and loving spirit of their Master.

SIR,—I have taken some interest in the Salvation Army. I have often said "God speed them in their work," but I have to admit there are some things about them that I cannot reconcile with the superior devotion and sanctity which they profess to have.

Their strange performances and odd sayings I can look over. They would never make me more devotional, judged I fail to see that they are in keeping with holy things. At the same time they seem to be attracting to acertain class of people, and by them I have no doubt some have been reached and brought within the circle of religious influences, so that, unlike some of my fellow christians, I can excuse these things. But there are other things practiced by the Army that I cannot excuse and things that cortainly cannot be reconciled to the pure and holy teachings of the Lord Jesus. It has been the constant practice of members of the Army to speak, not only unkindly, but not the since in the same time they seem as a manufactured $50,000 worth this season, nearly all being white choese.
