It is not every day that you see a million dollars. It is not every day that you see a million people. It is not every day that you see a million things.

She Took Her Choice

"My dear," remonstrates Uncle Robert, mildly, "there's not the way to address your elder sister."

"Why does she come and loof about with them, with her stickupishness? Why does she go and be a governess like Sarah? If she heard what Heaster says of her, she'd be ashamed of her self."

"My love, you have no right to quote Heaster!" "He is an impertinent mischief-making creature!" exclaimed Marion.

"I don't see how you can be so angry with her, when she is so good a girl. She is a governess, dear," continues Uncle Robert, mildly, "with her expectations, it would be the most foolish thing she could do."

"Expectations—Dear Men's Shoes!—I believe the terror-stricken child writing the watering-can so that its drops sprinkle Marion's pretty dress. I should hate myself if I was mean enough to calculate upon what anyone would leave me."

"Quite right of you," says Marion, with a supercilious laugh, "that meddling school-girl laugh, which is certainly not to be had in our youth—for money."

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost care and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception.

The medicines are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

For these reasons we announce that our proprietors are the principal shareholders in
