

toil and drudgery which our fathers and mothers carried, we would like those in other lands to lighten their own loads and we would like to help them do so. If we have fought for our own freedom, against tyranny and oppression, we cannot turn away our face when freedom anywhere is threatened.

In the future, as in the past, we must be the high champions of freedom — freedom of thought and religion, freedom from hunger and fear. We have a way of life that seems good to us. We wish to live and let live; to choose who shall rule over us; to lead our private lives with our families without fear of dark faces at our windows or midnight knockings on our doors; to be able to move as we choose from place to place and from job to job; to take a pride in our work and to feel that our own families, and others too are each year able to lead a fuller life. And we are determined, at this time, to build up our united strength so that we may have confidence that we can protect our free way of life against any challenge. In this way we of the Atlantic community will go forward, not alone but with our brothers now beyond our borders, looking to the day when "nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more".
