United States Agents Seize Wet
Goods Valued at $80,000
—Car Worth $3,500—

30 MEN IN CUSTODY
Affair Pulled Off in Detroit
Suburb Like Raid on Western Front

WINDSOR, Feb. 26.—Almost like an answer to his prayer, six hours after his release, Rev. J. O. L. Spraklin, had been on the American side of the river across from his home, might have seen the federal prohibition officers closing in on Ecorse, headquarters of the largest rum-runners' ring in the United States. When they were done, 30 men, 450 cases of liquor valued at $80,000, several automobiles, and a speed launch worth $3,500, were in the hands of the officers, who were obliged to discontinue their efforts through inability to handle more prisoners and confiscated stocks.

Sixty Officers There.
It was like a raid on the western front. Warned by their agents that they might expect violence, 60 federal prohibition officers, most of them from the force that cleaned up Chicago, armed to the teeth, swept quietly into the down-river suburb of Detroit. Under the leadership of James W. Jordan, chief of the federal prohibition forces of Detroit, the officers entered the town from different sides in automobiles, surrounded more than a dozen of the chief centres, and at the given minute delivered their attack. In almost every instance the inmates were taken completely by surprise. Along the south side of West Jefferson street, where it passes through Ecorse, the houses project over the river on piles. In most of the lower-story boathouses, cases of whiskey were seized. In other places blind-pigs were in full swing. Loads being distributed in automobiles were seized by other squads on the streets.

Plans Well Laid.
A month ago Frank D. Richardson, prohibition enforcement officer for four states, John A. Logan, who had cleaned up Chicago, and A. C. Graham chief of the prohibition officers in Michigan, conferred about the condition of the outlying suburbs of Detroit. Agents of the government secretly worked their way into the heart of the whiskey rings, learning all the details and carefully laying plans for the raid.

Detroit papers have big headlines telling the details of the raid. Deputy revenue inspectors and enforcement agents brought the 30 men arrested to the central station. The whiskey was taken to the federal building. In the loads were every brand of American, Canadian, Scotch and Irish whiskey stocks. More confiscations and arrests are expected to follow the cross-examination of the prisoners this afternoon. Among them are many saloon keepers, but all occupations are represented, such as bookbinder, molder, iron worker, metal plater, ship builder, and laborer.

PITHY NEWS NOTES

Clever Folks In That Vicinity
Charm Audiences By Their Performances.

REDNERSVILLE, Feb. 28.—If there was a word "full-on" that would be the best word to describe the past week in our vicinity.

The school concert at Victoria planned and directed by Miss Arkila was given to a full house on Tuesday evening and showed very faithful and efficient preparation. The dialogue "A Book Agent" has received special commendation and the efficient and varied assistance, the sister of the teacher who is also teaching at Tuesday night school, was noted as an entertainer in the Colborne district, won popular favor.

Then on Wednesday evening, the 28th inst., the drama given by twelve of the Mount Pleasant school, "And Old Fashioned Mother," attracted a very large audience. The acting was good and the scenic preparations and equipment are worthy of more than a passing notice. The company will play at Demorestville next week.

Thursday evening's "At Home" at "The Ridge" the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Spencer, under the management of the Women's Institute here drew forth about eighty guests and while the ladies proved their ability to excel in the matter of hospitality by the bountifully laid tables, the gentlemen showed excellence in the conducting of ceremonies. Mrs. D. T. Stafford acted as Toast Mistress and proposed the toast to "Our King" in well-chosen words. Mr. E. O'Flynn, of Belleville, responded, paying fitting and loyal compliments to our beloved sovereign, King George V. and his late honored father and said he had no wish to enter our hearts in the "Accredited Herd" list, for the purpose of building up and maintaining what is known as an "Accredited Herd."

It is a well known and established fact that tuberculosis is very prevalent among cattle and horses, and that there are very few herds of cattle that are not, more or less, affected with this disease. Something over a year ago the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, introduced this "Accredited Herd" regulation in Canada. (In the United States a similar regulation has been in force for some years.) Under this regulation a registered, pure-bred cattle, may make application to the Department and if the breeder will agree to abide by the rules of the department as set forth they will send, free of all charge, a qualified Veterinary Inspector to your barn to test your herd for tuberculosis. The first test given is known as the subcutaneous test, and is applied about as follows: After taking the temperature of the animal, about four times, at intervals of about two and a half hours, the vaccine is injected under the skin. The animal is then allowed to remain quiet for about nine hours, when the temperature is again taken, and continued at regular intervals for about six tests. Any rise in temperature, after the injection of the vaccine, is supposed to indicate the presence of tuberculosis in some form, and these animals are known as re-actors. The regulations then call for these re-actors to be separated from the main herd. If the breeder so chooses, he may send these re-actors to the packing house to be slaughtered. If he chooses the latter course the department will place a valuation up to $250.00 each on pure bred and up to $80. each on grades, and compensation to the extent of two-thirds this valuation will be given the breeder. For many years in Canada all animals slaughtered for human consumption in all abattoirs are slaughtered under the government veterinary inspectors. In our case we choose the latter course and consigned our re-actors to the Canadian Packing Co., Toronto, and from whom we received as much if not more, than had we sold them as drovers under ordinary conditions, and this in addition to the compensation as above mentioned, as it is not usual, we believe that carcasses are diseased to an extent that makes them wholly unfit for beef. However any diseased part would be condemned, and we are told that the Packing Houses are annually under a heavy loss, by having parts of animals, bought from shippers and drovers, and in some cases whole carcasses condemned, by this inspection for the purpose of safeguarding the public.

Coming back to the testing. At the end of about 60 days after the subcutaneous test, the department will apply what is known as the double or triple, test—subcutaneous, interdermal—eye and tail test. This is much more severe test than the first, and is supposed to discover any animal affected, that the former test had failed to locate. If there are any re-actors as a result of this test, the same procedure as in the former test will be followed. The department will, thereafter, free of charge to the breeder, regularly test his herd, usually about twice a year, and in this way a herd, free from disease is built up, and maintained, and thus known as an "Accredited Herd."

Though this regulation has been in existence scarcely over a year, over 100 pure-bred Ayrshire breeders, about the same number of Holstein breeders and about 80 Jersey breeders, have taken advantage of it, and the applications for entry, are told are being received by the department at such a rate, that it is taxing the ability of the staff to keep up with the work. In the province of Prince Edward Island we are told that every pure-bred breeder has

Thursday last resulted in the loss of a house belonging to A. E. Phillips, Cove Cottage Farm. The fire began in the upper story, and was not noticed until it had gained a good deal of headway, as it was Mr. Phillips and neighbours succeeded in saving most of the furniture of Mr. G. Smith and family, who assist on the above named farm. Mr. Smith has now taken up abode in part of the house occupied by Mrs. Trotter on Water St.

Culmer's, Church St., "Willow View"; D. W. and Douglas Redner's, Church St., "Willow Dale"; E. Spence's, East Avenue, "The Ridge"; Wesley Culmer's, Church St., "Pleasant View"; D. T. Stafford's, Maple Ave., "Fairbank Home"; W. S. Fox's, Gore St., "Hillcrest Farm"; Ray Fox, Gore St., "Maple View"; D. W. and Willoughby Fox, Gore St., "Maple Grove Farm."

Letter to the Editor

February 28, 1921

Mr. Editor.—I was somewhat amused to read in the recent issues of the Toronto and Belleville press statements concerning our Herd of Pure Bred Ayrshire Cattle, that were, to say the least, misleading. However I am not at all surprised, as I feel the general public are not conversant with the regulations, and it is with the idea in view that an explanation of those regulations, and it is with this idea of interest to your readers that I address you this letter.

Shortly before the close of last year, we made application to the Veterinary Director General, Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, to enter our herd in the "Accredited Herd" list, for the purpose of building up and maintaining what is known as an "Accredited Herd."

It is a well known and established fact that tuberculosis is very prevalent among cattle and horses, and that there are very few herds of cattle that are not, more or less, affected with this disease. Something over a year ago the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, introduced this "Accredited Herd" regulation in Canada. ## SUFFERED DAY AND NIGHT

The Tortures of Dyspepsia
Relieved By "Fruit-a-tives"

LITTLE BRAS D'ORS, C. B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches and did not sleep well at night. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. In a week, the Constipation was corrected and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous." ROBERT NEWTON.

applied for the accredited herd. We are also told that the province of Quebec is leading Ontario in this work.

A few of the disadvantages are: The breeder must at all times keep his herd from coming in contact with his neighbors or other cattle, which have not been tested and found free from disease.

Again, the breeder may have animals which will re-act, whose value is in excess of the compensation given, and in this way the breeder is liable to suffer some financial loss. However, I feel the department are giving quite liberal assistance, and have adopted a regulation that will go along ways toward assisting to stamp out a disease, that is all too prevalent, belching the cattle of Canada, and can only be detected through such testing.

Some of the advantages are: (1.) A certificate from the Dominion Department of Agriculture declaring your premises, and etc., free from infectious and contagious disease.

(2.) The satisfaction of knowing that your herd is free from tuberculosis and by co-operation with the department will be maintained in that condition.

(3.) The milk from these herds, is the most desirable, and best obtainable for human consumption, as the inspection and certificate of the department stands behind the health of the animals producing the milk. It is from such herds that a certified pure milk is obtained.

(4.) An increased value of the animals.

(5.) No more selling of animals from your herd, subject to tuberculosis test, as the certificate of the government is accepted forthwith. This certificate will allow the animal to enter the United States, for breeding purposes immediately, while an animal going from a herd not entered in the "Accredited Herd" list, will be held up for 60 days while the subcutaneous and triple test is given.
