The Bath Habit.

In the eighteenth century the bath was a season's event, and soap was almost a thing unknown. It was scarcely ever used, or at least infrequently. It was by no means indispensable as a toilet necessity. And most of us can recall the time, mused an exchange, when Saturday night was religiously dedicated to the weekly bath. That is why we all appreciate the story of the woman who wrote her friend: "We just moved into a new apartment. It has the cutest bathtub. I can hardly wait until Saturday night."

Learn When to Be Silent.

The union of good talker and listener is irresistible. Tact should teach us when to be silent. We have made progress when we realize that it is unnecessary to continually be explaining everything in detail. We see from the statistical field, and the too personal "I" in conversation, personally reiterating the "I have done" and "I have not done"—an attitude significant perhaps of women's penchant for falling to grasp ideas in a large way.

Learn to Do Without.

One of the arts of life is to learn how to do without. Few of us have everything we consider desirable and if we grumble at every little deprivation, we make ourselves miserable and our associates uncomfortable. To learn to do without far yet be cheery and happy, goes to toward making life a success.

Proverbs Circulate.

Proverbs undoubtedly have a tendency to travel. They are carried from one land to another by emigrants, tourists, missionaries, traders, men and women; but many which are clearly similar doubtless owe their origin to no common stock, but to the common experience of mankind.

Original Source.

Examine—You are quite sure that this is a purely original composition you have handed in? I must say the wording sounds strangely familiar.

Examine—Took my eye, you have my score some of the words in the dictionary.

Not a Bad Description.

"I see where seven Francophones, on trial in Paris for espionage claim they are 'journalists,' but show no ability to write." "Ahem!" said the practical newspaper man. "That seems to describe a journalism pretty well."

Elephant Most Useful.

Parrots are playful, but eaglets are not, and no one has ever been able successfully to tame an eagle. Among sea mammals, seals are very playful, sea lions are not, and trained seals are among the cleverest performers of the vaudeville stage. Of the larger animals, the elephant alone possesses playful character in youth, and thus, while the rhinoceros and hippopotamus can only be seen from the safe side of strong barred cages, the elephant can be utilized for a thousand purposes, from that of a derrick to a nursemaid.

Costly Law Proceedings.

The folly of rushing to the law to settle every little dispute is demonstrated by an action between two partners for a sum of £2. After being in court for 11 years, it was put an end to by being referred to arbitrators, who decided in favor of the defendant in the case, and ordered the plaintiff to pay all the costs incurred in the proceedings, which were assessed at £1,000.—London Tit-Bits.

Dead Locusts Valuable.

Locusts are plentiful in Uruguay, and the farmers of that republic are compelled to keep up a constant war against them. Millions of these destructive insects are killed every year. Recently it was learned that soap, fertilizer and lubricating oil may be obtained from the dead locusts, and in the future they will be utilized for that purpose.—Popular Science Monthly.

Connie Meant Business.

Connie takes very practical views of her parents' promises. The other day to silence a fit of crying, her mother promised her a new doll. "What shall we call her, Connie?" she said, taking the little girl on her knee. "Never mind her name, mamma," cried Connie, looking at her mother out of the corner of her eye. "We'll find a name for her when."

Forestalling Visitors.

Said the near-cyclic: "Women seldom get credit for taking any precautions other than looking under the bed, but did you ever notice that they usually put on their hats a couple of hours before it is time to start to the place they have set their hearts on going?"
