Divorced Life

Helen Hassong Fuesle

The Girl Who Wasn't Lonely

The engine coughed impatiently as it paused to let a solitary passenger off the train at the village where Ann Stewart had her studio.

"Greetings!" cried Ann, running up to welcome the traveller. "So glad you came," she added with the warm cordiality of an old friendship.

The two gazed into each other's faces, each with the instinctive attempt to read the record made by the elapsed years since they had met.

Marian looked up into a pair of kind eyes, set in the fascinating face of her class-mate, glowing with the coloring of good health and capital spirits. The artist's handiwork was strong and firm—almost manly. She had known hard work during the passing years. Her struggle for artistic expression was still exacting its hardships. Almost daily she had lugged her painter's traps for miles across country in search of subjects, in quest of certain moods of nature. Also, she had done her kitchen work, along with chores about the house. She had known the pinch of lean years. Even yet she had not won her way out of the wilderness into safe recognition. Now and then, however, she had managed to sell a picture, renewing the fires of her ambition, giving her the incentive to fight on.

"This is beautiful," exclaimed Marian, as they proceeded up the silent, snowy village street of unpretentious cottage homes. The glimmering rays of oil lamps came warmly from some of the windows. The soft, curling smoke of kitchen fires, rising from chimneys, was visible through the gathering dusk. The city's glare and turmoil seemed a thousand miles away.

"It's a good place to work," answered Ann. "There's a wonderful piece of woods off here to the north that only needs a group of masters to make it as famous as the Forest of Fontainebleau. Corot would have raved over it at dawn and twilight."

"But don't you get most awfully lonely!" broke in the woman from the city.

"Heavens no! Not while I have my work. That's why I'm here. The loneliest I've been for a long time was the two weeks I spent in New York last winter. I was dragged around to teas, and dances, and theatres, and exhibits so much that I didn't get a chance to touch a brush. I tell you it felt good to get back here to the work-shop. Wait until you see it. It's the cutest little place!"

"I'm crazy to see a place in which someone doesn't get lonely," replied Marian wistfully. She was thinking of miserable hours she had spent during the past three months in her dwarfish room at the boarding house, hours of consuming loneliness, of regrets for the past, of forebodings for the future.

"We'll have a great time," rejoined the artist cheerfully. "I'm going to try to help you forget your troubles."

Clears The Head, Opens The Nostrils Stops Sneezing, Cures Catarrh.

You Get Instant Relief by Inhaling the Soothing Vapor "Catarrhazone."

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhazone the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhazone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America, who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhazone."

T. W. O'NEILL'S TREATMENT GUARANTEED TO CURE. PRICE $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.
