Room 22, Bank of Toronto Chambers. In the past the rush has been to the cities and towns, but farm life is now offering so many attractions and advantages that we may expect in the future the rush will be back from the cities and towns to the country. Instead of working for others all his lifetime, every man should have an amition to some day engage in an occupation in which he will work for himself and thus become independent, and his own employer. No occupation affords this opportunity so completely as farming in Ontario. There is a good demand and good prices for everything the farmer has to sell.
