DR. EMMONS, the Collector of Customs at Ounslasks, who arrived down from that ports day or two spe, is on a fair way to becoming a very rich man. Several months ago, while prospecting in the near neighborhood of Ounslasks, he discovered a mountain of what appears to be almost solid sulphur, of which the United States is st present compelled to import over $9,000,000 worth per annum. Huge blocks broken out of the new mine with a pick show it to be 90 per cent, pure, and the supply is practically inexhaustible and easily got at the mine (which has stready been bonded) being high enough up the mountain side to permit of the ore being simply sent down in nances to the water side. It is in connection with the opening of hissulphur mines that Dr. Emmons is now visiting the Sound. Runner has it that the Oregon Land and Improvement Co. will work the mine, allowing Dr. Emmons a royalty of 75 cents per ton.

BEAUTIFUL weather, a lovely spot for picnicking and plenty of good things to est all contributed to make the St. James church sunday school excursion to Sidney, yesterday, enjoyable. The morning train on the Victoria & Sidney railway took out 200 people from town, and 100 more went out in the afternoon. The children had a general good time playing about; the small boys took full advantage of their opportunities to go in bathing, when they were not eating; the older ones strolled about admiring the scenery and, as one of the ladies eaid when she got home, "We just had a lovely time." The railway people were very attentive and obliging, doing everything in their power to help make the excursionists comfortable. The train brought everyone home again by half-past eight delighted with their pleasant day at Sidney.

Details of the Sweeping Conflagration -Men, Women and Children Forced to Flee.

Every Building Burned Down on the Pathway of the Terrible Destroyer.

(From the Slocan Prospector.)

For two or three weeks fires have been burning in the timber along Carpenter creek between New Denver and Three Forks, and on Monday approached the latter place and burned six or eight cabins when a fortunate change of wind carried the fire away from town. All day Monday, and until the time of its destruction on Tuesday, the citizens of Three Forks were ighting the fire to prevent its entering the town. About 2 o'clock Tuesday the wind rose higher than before, and the fire communicated from burning trees to buildings in the neighborhood of Wilson & Burns' slaughter house. Onward the flames swept along and across the marrow street until all the principal buildings of the town were in flames and burning rapidly to the ground. Meanwhile the inhabitance were fleeing for their lives. Most of them made their way through dense smoke and flying firebrands, over burning logs and cinders and flying firebrands, over burning logs and cinders and flying firebrands, over burning logs and binders and hot carth and rocks to the Slocan Star ore house, across the creek below town. Another party of 25 or 30 fled up the road toward Bear Lake pursued by the flames, and were o'biged to seek refuge in a tunnel, after travelling two and a half miles. Geo. Hughes, J. W. Lowes and possibly a few others got through to Bear lake by dashing through the flames.

There were women in both parties. Mrs. Bowen's children's clothes were burning at times, and it was with difficulty that they reached the ore house without being cremated. Mrs. McHale, a guest at the Bowen house, fainted, and was carried to a place of safety. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, who kept the bath house, were driven into the creek, and remained submerged to their necks in water for more than an hourhelf of death. They were scorched and their eyes, who lived near, also saved himself by jumping into the creek. His eyes were so badly injured that it was feared that he would lose his sight entirely.
