

The Motherland

Latest Mails from ENGLAND IRELAND and SCOTLAND

The West Cork League announces an undoubted victory on the Cape Clear Island.

This name. When Lord Ashbourne obtained a grant of arms he was not content to share it with his brother.

A painful emanation was caused in Mitchelstown a few days ago when it was announced that Mr. Thomas O'Mahoney...

The late Mr. O'Malley Doaso, M.P., made an excellent will, leaving to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to the exclusion of his own children...

Such obedience and submission did he exact from the tenants who approached him on any matter...

In reply to a letter from Mr. J. Quinn, secretary of the 98 centenary committee, William O'Brien declines to act as treasurer...

In 1861, when Mr. Parnell issued the No Rent Manifesto, tenantry of the Kingston estate, to the number of 1,400, came together...

The donkeys which were recently purchased in Waterford for South Africa have not, it appears, given as much satisfaction as was expected...

Cardinal Logue has been visiting Donegal and was literally made a prisoner by the priests and people...

The Royal Commission on the Land Acts (of which Sir Edward Fry is chairman) opened in Dublin on Sept. 22...

On the evening of Sept. 21, the Right Rev. Monsignor Kelly, Rector of the Irish College, Rome...

The Queen has addressed a holograph letter and presented a framed portrait of herself to Colonel Warrand of the Light, near Liverpool...

A demented young lady, a Swiss, named Jaggie, tried to commit suicide on the rails on Kililly. Engineer Morgan succeeded in stopping the driver...

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

interests. Early conducted before an impartial tribunal, the tenants would certainly have nothing to fear...

An experiment of an enterprising kind is shortly to be made in one of the congested districts of the Irish Western Highlands...

The donkeys which were recently purchased in Waterford for South Africa have not, it appears, given as much satisfaction as was expected...

Bridget Sheridan, of Killeen, has just died at the remarkable age of 115 years. Her age has been verified...

The death of the Rev. William Loughnan, a distinguished member of the Society of Jesus...

The Queen has addressed a holograph letter and presented a framed portrait of herself to Colonel Warrand of the Light...

They are no more—Some officers of a British ship were dining with a mandarin in a Chinese town.

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

The beaill of aristocracy has made havoc on Irish jugs, whose horns manufactured "costs of arms."

THE PRESS AND THE CHURCH

English and French (Protestant and Catholic) Journalists of No. 10 Great Street an Address to Archbishop Ryan

Monday, Oct. 7.—A unique event was the presentation yesterday by fifty representatives of the newspaper fraternity to Mr. Brocheux of an address of congratulation upon the occasion of his accession to the See of Montreal...

The address was read by Hon. Joseph Roybal, editor of Le Messager. Mr. Brocheux, who had prepared his reply, made the following remarks: Gentlemen! At the time of my episcopal consecration, a day of inveterate and forgotten impressions...

I appreciate beyond all expression this new evidence of sympathy and kindness on the part of the representatives of the English press. As for you gentlemen who belong to the great family, how deeply I am touched to see you gathered around the chief pastor, whom it has pleased God to give to this diocese...

As a pledge, gentlemen, of my kind feeling, I will willingly take upon myself to lay, according to your wishes, at the feet of the common father of the faithful, the assurance of your constant attachment to his infallible ministry.

Even if I had no other offering to present to the immortal Pontiff, of whom I am the elect, the bishop of his choice and his unworthy son, I would have received, I am sure, with the most tender solicitude...

Mr. Richard White, speaking for his English confreres, expressed much pleasure at being present, and after congratulating Monsiegnur wished him a happy trip across and a safe return...

"My lad," said a lady to a boy carrying newspapers, "are you the mall boy?" "You doesn't think I've a female boy, duz ye?"

HOME RULE NAILED TO THE MAST

John Morley Denounces the Liberal Party True to the Policy of the Union of Great Britain and Ireland

Mr. Morley addressed a meeting of the committee on Liberty on Sept. 20th. In the course of his speech, he said: The Liberal Party was often asked for its present programme...

Many people were angry with the Liberal Party not making the best of the Unionist Parliament, but what on our part had the Irish got to do. Only a year ago the Liberal Parliament passed an Act dealing with Ireland's darkest interests—land and agriculture...

Where such levity was shown the Irish would have much respect for our Parliament, or be so respectful as some of us would desire to the tribunals we set up (hear, hear). The Government had planned for the introduction of the new county government in Ireland...

The introduction of this bill would undoubtedly mark an important phase in the Irish question. It might be taken for certain that the Irish members would take it as a sort of instalment of the larger done and for Home Rule...

There were certainly many counties in Ireland where society was normally undisturbed. One of several tests, therefore, which the Opposition would have to apply to the Government proposals for improving county government in Ireland would be the test whether or not these counties were to have any control over their own police...

Your paragraph about the distorted French telegram in your Saturday's issue," writes a correspondent of The Westminster Gazette, "reminds me of a story told by Lord Ouseley some years ago at the Royal Colonial Institute on his return from New Zealand. Many years ago Mr. Gladstone, speaking of Mr. Parnell, made use of the oft-quoted phrase 'marbling through rapine to the dismemberment of the Empire'...

FIRESIDE FUN

The T.I.—"I shall be a home next Saturday." He then said: "I shall be a home next Saturday."

A smart schoolboy said that it took thirteen letters to spell cow, and proved it thus: Cow—See O Double you.

A gentleman having engaged a brick layer to make some repairs in his cellar, ordered the lad to be removed before the bricklayer commenced his work. "Oh, I'm not afraid of a barrel of ale, sir," said the man...

Mrs. Brown had retired to rest, and had been sleeping for a couple of hours, when Mr. Brown suddenly woke up at dead of night to find his wife just blowing out the candle and lying down asleep. "What in the world was that noise I just heard?" he asked. "Mrs. B. (sighs) 'It's all right, dear. The guests of the Guild hall are now coming home, and I slipped down and got my front door a slam, so that the neighbors would think we were there.'"

Some years ago, when the famous Dr. Norman Macleod was minister of the Barmby Church, in Glasgow, a minister from an adjoining parish was called in to see a man who was very ill.

After finishing his visit to the man, he was on the point of leaving the house, when the minister remarked to the man's wife: "You don't attend my church, do you?" "Oh, no, sir," said the woman: "Do you attend my church at all?" "No, sir," said the clergyman. "Well, it was exactly 50 years since the Select Committee strongly recommended that reforms should be made in the county government of Ireland. Two generations had since passed away...

Extraordinary Bulls—A naval dispatch of last century from the West Coast of Africa speaks of a naive vessel which was "entirely manned by women." It was a Scotchman who described a very equable and thickset man as being "just as broad as he was narrow." It was a Scotchman who, at a public meeting, gravely pronounced a solemn for increasing the British revenue by "laying the dog tax on cats." It was an Englishman who said of Napoleon that he might have been a better man if he had not been quite so bad, and it was also an Englishman who declared that the best way to walk down the Thames to London was to go in a boat. A French school teacher, in a fit of rage, threatened to send all his pupils to the foot of the guillotine...

A Tyrone Lobster

Your paragraph about the distorted French telegram in your Saturday's issue," writes a correspondent of The Westminster Gazette, "reminds me of a story told by Lord Ouseley some years ago at the Royal Colonial Institute on his return from New Zealand. Many years ago Mr. Gladstone, speaking of Mr. Parnell, made use of the oft-quoted phrase 'marbling through rapine to the dismemberment of the Empire'...