DOGS FROM ENGLAND.

The Editor of TOWN AND COUNTRY, who is personally acquainted with nearly all the prominent breeders and exhibitors of dogs in England, will be happy to give advice on the subject of importing dogs. He can recommend agents in England whose word and representations may be implicitly relied upon, and who with his introduction will pay particular attention to American orders.

IMPORTANT SALE OF PRIZE POULTRY.

On account of ill health, I am compelled to give up breeding poultry for exhibition, and now offer my whole stock, Dorkings excepted, for sale without reserve. This is an opportunity seldom presented for obtaining poultry equal to these in quality, at reasonable prices. As the quality of my stock of poultry is so well known, they do not require to have all their good qualities advertised; it is sufficient to say that there is not one inferior specimen among them, nearly all being suitable for high competition, most of them having taken prizes.

They consist of Dark Brahmas; Black red, yellow and silver duckwing exhibition game; Black red, brown red, duckwing; red pyle and white game Bantams; and a few odd birds of some other breeds. Since last August I have taken in prizes, four silver medals, five diplomas, forty one 1st, twenty-five 2nd, and ten 3rd prizes.

All letters of enquiry will please have stamp enclosed to ensure an answer.
