

new problems, one of which, we notice, is a three mover by W. Atkinson, of Montreal.

The match between Max Judd and the St. Louis Amateurs, which grew out of a challenge offered by the latter through the columns of the Times, is about ended in favour of Mr. Judd. There were only three games more to play, and the score stood: Judd, 7½; Amateurs, 5½. Judd gave the odds of a Knight to each competitor. There is no doubt that he will come out victorious. The Globe-Democrat says: The Amateurs were very confident that Judd could not successfully give them the big odds of a Knight, but this second test will be apt to convince them that they have a giant among them.—Harford Times.

We have already announced that an international tournament will be held at Wiesbaden during the month of July. Among the players of note who have signified their intention of competing for the prizes (1,000, 500, and 200 marks respectively), are Messrs. J. H. Blackburne, and James Mason, of London; Louis Paulsen, of Blomberg; Dr. Schewede (editor of the Leipsic Schachzeitung); and M. Fährdrich, of Pesth. A specimen of whose skill appeared in our last issue.—The Illustrated London News.

The latest news from England gives the following score in the match between Zukertort and Rosenthal: Zukertort, 4; Rosenthal, 1, Drawn, 8.

In the International Correspondence Tourney, the British team have lately gained two games. The following, therefore, is the present score: Great Britain, 28; America, 29, and 13 drawn.

NOTES—(Much Condensed.)

- (a) An extraordinary blunder to make at such an early stage. He loses now a clear P, and must, besides, submit to the exchange of queens. Of course, he ought to have taken the Q P first with the K P (b) An excellent move. Black must take, or else, after the exchange of Pawns, his K Kt P will become untenable. (c) The best move to avoid subsequent molestation. Wherever else the B went, the adverse R could either harass the K with checks, or attack the B. (d) It was altogether hopeless now, and quite irrelevant what he did. Turf, Field and Farm.
