> on, it is sweet to think of those that have departed. While murmured Aves sink To silence tender-hearted; While tears that have no pain Are tranquilly distilling, And dear ones live again In hearts that love is filling.

Yet not as in the days Of earthly ties we love them; For they are touched with rays From light that is above them; Another sweetness shines Around their well-known features; and with his glory signs His dearly-ransomed creatures.

Ah! they are more our own, Since now they are God's only; And each one that has gone Has left the heart less lonely. He mourns not seasons fled, Who now in Him possesses Treasures of many dead In their dear Lord's caresses

Dear dead! they have become Like guardian angels to us; And distant heaven, our home, Through them begins to woo us; Love that was earthly wings Its flight to holler places; The dead are secret things That multiply our graces.

They whom we love on earth Attract us now to heaven; Who shared our grief and mirth Back to us now are given, They move with noiseless foot Gravely and sweetly round us. And their soft touch hath cut Full many a chain that bound us o dearest dead ! to heaven With gradging sighs we gave you To Him-be doubts forgiven-Who took you there to save you: Now get us grace to love Your memories yet more kindly : Pine for our homes above And trust to God more blindly.

PALESTINE

A Visit to the Plains of Sharon-Dangers from the Arabs-Ramleh and Jaffa as They Strike the Pilgrim.

AND ITS VARIOUS HOLY PLACES.

No Moslem turns his face to Mecca with greater devotion than does the Christian pilgrim his footsteps to Jerusaem. Leaving Jaffa at an early hour, Palestine with all its holy reminiscenses is before you, tinged with the rays of aternal truth which brighten every unfolding prospect. There it lies high above the sea-the Prize of Nations! It is forty-one miles away and may be reached on the evening of the second day. The main road passes over an extensive plain and through a series of hills several hundred feet above the Mediterranean. Though a highway for over four thousand years it has defied all attempts of engineering, but the proposed new railroad will efface many of the landmarks and time-worn footsteps so long familiar to the pilgrim. Few persons make a tour through the Holy Land alone. The Bedouins have been so long noted for brigandage, it is unsafe to travel in out of way places without an escort. Not many years ago few would attempt traveling to Jerusalem from Jaffa without an escort of lancers, for the deeds of Abou Gosh, the noted robber chief, still haunts these bills, and his descendants are not above suspicion today. However, the pilgrim loves company in a foreign land, both on the score of protection and economy. Camping out is the most popular mode of traveling, especially during a pro-tracted tour, and it has many advantages over other ways in a COUNTRY LIKE PALESTINE.

The roads from Jaffa to the environs are making new homes and cultivating their gardens and fields. Eight hundred acres belong to the Universal Israelitish Alliance and similar colonies have been established near Jerusalem, Saphet, Tiberias, Hebron, Sidon, Haifa, Aroo, Sichem and Gaza, by wealthy European lews for their persecuted coreligionists.

The plains of Sharon around which cluster so many holy associations present a sad and lonely aspect. Once the camping ground for millions and the paradise of shepherds, they are now comparatively deserted, and the eye wanders over space and is met with an ocean of flowers. It is said that here grew the emblematic "Rose of Sharou" so precious to all Christendom. And now the narcissus, blue iris, marsh mallows, white, purple and scarlet anemone, besides other beautiful flowers, peep through the long grass, dew-laden and sparkling and without cultivation; a charming contrast to the barren hi.ls of Judea. On the north side is the hamlet of Ono, a miserable cluster of low mud habitations, with two rocky basins to catch rain. You can trace the scores of brown paths through the fields that are treeless and almost shrubless save the gaunt cactus spreading its thorny branches against the sun, affording but inadequate shade to the shepherd and flock during the heat of day. Great clouds of dust rise and encompass you every hour from which

THERE IS NO ESCAPE. Camels, horses and donkeys heavily laden and hundreds of pilgrims on foot, make up the caravans. Other parties well equipped for travelling have taken advantage of the heat and dust and are miles in advance, while others are coming on behind leisurely and taking notes as they go along.

and in later years, between the Crusaders a Grecian temple whose marble walls and arches, on one side, are standing in their walls you see the mutilated gilded pictures of Christ, the Virgin Mother, Sts. Peter and John, which bear testimony of

Ramleh, beautiful Ramleh! the Rose Franciscan convent; hours for devotion and agreeable chat under the vine clad roof, Ramah of the Old Testament and Armathea of the New-the place where loseph lived who besought Pilate for the body of Jesus; the reputed birth place of the prophet Samuel, and the place of the TOWER OF FORTY MARTYRS. Ramleh is a small city, with the usual number of mosques, domes and minarets, groves of palm and a high crumbling tower of the crusaders, a sad monument of triumph and defeat, of chivalry and christian heroism.

A hearty welcome awaits the pilgrim at the Franciscan hospice, and apartments are provided for ladies outside the walls. Fruits, eggs, chickens, cake and coffee, with the indispensible nargilch, made up the noon refreshment. There is a chapel over the house, where Joseph of Armathea lived, and many priests of foreign countries have had the happiness of saying mass in this chapel. But you must see Ramlen at twilight, and the old monastery as the creeping shadows of eve cast their weird spells over the vine clad court. You sit on the terrace drawing scented bubbles through your nargilch, and watching the changing hues of Sharon. No piping music, no song, no laughter, no joyous sounds of hilarity reach the car. The aged Moslem squats at his door step, in the midst of his family, and between long and steady puffs through a flexible tube a yard long, repeats passages from the Koran. And woe to the Christian who would interrupt him at this moment. Stealthily shadows flit across the yard, and mount the stone steps. It is the catechists who come for instruction and prayer to the kind fathers when night's dark mantle shrouds Ramleh .- J. Wallace. in Poor Souls Advocate.

The Archdiocese of Toronto's Semi-Centennial-An Interesting reminiscence

Under the patronage of his Grace the Archbishop of Toronto, a most important work has been undertaken by a while in his office he was compelled to remain committee of Catholic gentlemen, lay and clerical. Next year that Archdiocese, which was erected in 1842, will with difficulty that he could make his way, have completed its first half century. As well to commemorate that event as to preserve in a lasting form the early history of the Catholics in this Province, His Grace deemed that a memorial volume would be the most useful and fitting work by which the semi-centenary of his Archdiocese should be distinguished. The greater portion of the work has been written, and the first chapter is already in type. In every respect it will be the most important book regarding the Catholics of Upper Canada that has yet been issued from the press. But the year 1892, though notable in many ways, is further of interest as being the silver jubilee year of the consecration of the Archbishop of Toronto; and so the committee availed themselves of all the circumstances to make their volume a com-plimentary testimonial to the distinguished prelate who now

GOVERNS THE ARCHIDIOCESE. The Most Reverend John Walsh was

consecrated Bishop of Sandwich in 1867, and will have completed his first quarter century of episcopal life next year. The volume will contain a sketch of his life large with grace and dignity. It need not be said that a work of this sort will be interesting and useful to the people

THE MIRACLE CITY.

NEW NAME SUGGESTED FOR HAMILTON.

Another Remarkable Case Which Would Indicate that the Name Would be Quite Appropriate.

The number of remarkable cures occurring in Hamilton is causing general comment throughout the country. To those who know the inside facts there is not the leaast cause for wonderment. The remarkable cure of Mr. John Marshall, who was known to almost every citizen in Hamilton, gave the Pink Pills an enormous sale in the city, one retail druggist alone selling 2,830 boxes in the past six months. People whose cases had been considered hopeless as was Mr. Marshall's, took hope from his cure, persisted in the use of the pills, with equally wonderful results in their case. And what is happening in Hamilton in the way of remarkable cures, is happening in proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recelving. Last week the Hamilton Times investigated two more cases, the result of which is told in the following article in the Issue of Nov. 7th :--The account of Mr. John Marshall's wonderful cure, after suffering for years with locomotor ataxy naturally brought to light several other cases of almost equally miraculous cures in this city. Among the many citizens who profited by Mr. Marshall's experience and who have been troubled for many years with the ame affliction was Mr. Webster. For a long time he was in the flour and feed business in in a reclining position on a couch, covered with buffalorobes winter and summer. It was but a short distance from the store. He attributes his trouble to constant exposure at the open door of his store, sarrying heavy bags of grain in and out, and when overheated and perspiring sitting over an open cellar-way in order to cool off. About a year and a half ago he found it necessary to give up his business. owing to the fact that he was becoming utterly helpless from his terrible disease. In June last, on hearing of Mr. Marshall's case, he began to take that well-known remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and has been greatly benefited thereby.

Mr. Webster was seen by a Times reporter at his residence, Machab street north, Saturday afternoon, and was not at all loath to speak about his ease, "With the exception of this trouble with my legs," he said, "I have never been sick a day since I was 17 years old, and now I am 55. This locomotor ataxy is a terrible disease. For years my legs have seemed as though they belonged to someone else. As I have fain a sleep on a winter night, one leg has fallen out of the bed and when I would awaken with the cold. I would have to feel around with my hand before I could tell which leg was out of bed. If I were to try to place my foot on a spot on the earpet within easy reach I could no more do it than fly. The pain at times has been terrible. I have lain awake night after night, week after week, alternately grasping each foot in my agony as the sharp pains like kulfe-stabs shot through various parts of my anatomy. When I was first attacked with pains in my feet some 12 years ago, I tried several physicians but could get no rellef. Paralysis then set in and I immediately consulted a well-known specialist in Buffalo who told me that I was suffering from locomofor ataxy and could not get better. I came home again and on the advice of friends tried several hot springs, but with no effect, except, perhaps, to aggravate my complaint. I finally became discouraged and after two years' dectoring I underwent an operation. I was placed under chloroform, a gash two inches and a half in depth made in the side of each log near the hip, and the doctors put their fingers in the gash and stretched the sciatic nerves !! the valu hope that such would give relief. Since then, over ten years ago, until June last, I took no medicine whatever, and rettring from business, became so helpless that I could no not walk a step without my crutches, and sometimes the pain was something awful. About June, however, I got some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using the first box telt such a beneficial effect from them that I continued to use them ever since with the result that the terrible pains I used to suffer from have vanished, and with the exception of a gentle little dart at rare intervals, I might never know I had suffered with them. Since using these pills I get to sleep early and sleep as soundly and peacefully as a baby all night through. I can also walk a dozen steps or so without my crutches." And to illustrate, the old gentleman got up and walked across the room and back again to his sent alongside the reporter. "Now I couldn't do that at all before last June," continued he, and the pills are cerfainly the pleasantest medicine to take that I ever tried. I would advise anyone who is troubled with an affliction any way similar to mine, or who is suffering from any nervous disease, to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

THEY SELL RAPIDLY. Mr. J. A. Barr, the well-known Hamilton druggist says that the demand for Pink Pills is something astonishing. Last winter he purchased one dozen boxes. This was his first order, Since then he has sold 2,800 boxes of the pills, and every day the demand is increasing. He sells at least two dozen per day. The same story comes from other druggists in Hamilton

Father Cole, Messrs. Joseph Pope, J. B.
Lynch, E. L. Sanders, John Gorman, J.
A. J. McKenna and Dr. Freeland; auditors, John O'Meara and J. A. McCann.
