

rebuild civil society and promote democratic development through projects that create jobs, support cooperatives, and strengthen human rights groups and other NGOs. The second and third phases, emphasizing institutional support (good governance) and economic development will involve Canadian private sector firms and other institutions.

January 1994