AFTER MILLION SIGNATURES FOR PETITION TO THE CZAR

Chief of Russian Revolutionist Party Arrives in America on Educational Mission.

New York, Sept. 28.—The World today says:

Ivan Ivanovich Norodny, chief executive commissioner of the Russian revolutionary party, is here to establish headquarters in America for the revolution. He comes to solicit one million signatures to a petition to the czar praying for liberty, justice and amnesty. He comes upon a mission of education, to disavow the bloody acts of terrorists.

Twenty years ago a happy husband, owner of several estates and a member of the nobility in Finland, the land of his birth—to-day he weeps for his wife, confined in an asylum, the victim of the brutality of the Cossacks. He prays for the repose of the soul of his eldest born, slain by the same Cossacks. Four years in a Russian prison left him a physical wreck. Most of his fortune has been confiscated by the Russian government.

He comes to solicit names," said he last night, while seated in his room in the New Hotel Albert. "I shall present my petition first to the Americans, best known in Russia. They are President Roosevelt, Mark Twain, William Jennings Bryan, Thomas A. Edison and Miss Jane Adams of Hull House, Chicago."

LAWYERS' ASSOCIATION HAS ITS OWN PURPOSES

Will Not Conflict With Present Society—Officers Elected.

The Ontario Bar Association met yesterday and after transacting considerable business adjourned to meet again at Osgoode Hall on Thursday, Dec. 27.

The officers of the association are: A. H. Clarke, K.C., M.P. of Windsor, president; Frank Arnold, K.C., of Toronto; Frank M. Field of Cobourg; and Frank E. Hodgins of Toronto, vice-presidents; W. C. Mikel of Belleville, secretary; Geo. C. Campbell of Toronto, treasurer. The association is entitled to membership in the association on payment of the annual fee of one dollar. At the next meeting the constitution and by-laws, as revised and perfected by the executive council, will be presented for discussion and adoption. The president is empowered to call the association together at any time, but it is not anticipated that any meeting will be called before the regular meeting in December.

Charles Elliott, editor of The Canadian Law Review, and a member of the executive council, was asked how, if at all, the new organization would conflict with the Law Society of Ontario.

"Not at all," he replied. "The Law Society is a business organization, owning Osgoode Hall and other valuable property. It collects its fees from every lawyer in the province, and is charged with the care and maintenance of the law library, the conduct of the law school. This business is entirely transacted by an executive, called the benchers, of whom there are twenty-four. They are elected by mail, and on no occasion do they assemble the members of the bar together."

"Now the bar association will serve another purpose. It will bring into personal relationship, all the practicing lawyers of Ontario. It is a benefit for the doctors, the manufacturers, etc., to meet together, at stated intervals, why should it not be a good thing for the lawyers to do so? These associations exist in every one of the United States, and also in England. They not only lead to an exchange of views but, often important law reforms are pushed thru by their efforts and influence. Here in Ontario there are many subjects of interest like bankruptcy, codification and the law reforms soon to be introduced by the attorney-general. At our meeting in December there will be an address delivered by some eminent jurist, and papers will be read by several members."

A CANADIAN ARMY? Arguments on Both Sides Abridged in "Canada."

In a current number of "Canada" both sides of the question are ably presented in a symposium on the subject of "Canada and Imperial Defence." The questioners appear to be, should Canada maintain a standing army for the defence of the empire, and if so, what number of men?

A. B. Chapman skillfully argues against the maintenance of such a force, contending that any contribution to Canada towards the defence of the empire should be voluntary, and that when it is needed, Canadian contribution will have no measure, but the need of the empire, and no limit but the resources of the Dominion. He prefers to write merely the word "Canada" on the balance sheet of imperial defence, rather than write in cold blood a minimum figure for defence which would not only be a disgrace to the empire, but a disgrace to the Dominion. He points out that the loyalty of the Dominion is left to ourselves, and the occasion," he says, "Britain will get the backbone of our military ability," but he considers the maintenance of a permanent force "would impose upon our public men the necessity of putting down in cold figures what Canada will prepare in time of peace to do in time of war; a very different thing from estimating what Canada will really do in time of war."

The other side of the question is well presented by Mr. E. B. Osborn, who points out that to be of any use in an emergency, a force must needs be trained in time of peace in order to act promptly when their services are required. Time, he says, is a mighty factor in all national struggles and "in a great war for the destruction of the British Empire, the British Empire would occur with electric rapidity. The issue of the struggle would probably be settled in a few weeks and there would not be time enough for Canada to make use of her latent military force." For this reason, he considers that "it would be better, from the strategic point of view if Canada had her minimum force for the defence of the empire, subject to the condition that it was not to be employed without the consent of the Canadian government."

How to Identify the Real Genuine

Trademark in a Coat.

In the City of Ottawa there sprang up several imitation stores of the Semi-ready, and presumably the visitor to the capital of the Dominion can get a

Semi-ready coat in half a dozen different stores. There is only one Semi-clerks in the other stores render themselves liable to prosecution when they is the Semi-ready trademark sewn in the pocket of the coat. Some of the Perfect Manhood

Our "Restorine" CURES are THE TEST.

Neave's Food, July 2nd, 1906.

Dear Sir:—Have finished taking your Restorine, and am in every way improved. I weigh the more, and am much stronger, and my nerves are very much better.

Yours sincerely, E. R.

(Source Testimonial.)

Health of body, strength of mind, steadiness of nerves are the best and most precious gifts man can lay upon the altar of his conjugal love. Restorine operates on the nerves which control the sexual system, and infuse into it, power and vigor. No such thing as failure in life, is possible in perfect manhood; it is the lack of vital force, and the depletion of sexual energies that makes failures of men. Restorine awakens a man to a sense of restored vitality and power. Why be weak when you can so easily become strong? Proofs are the test. Sworn testimonials sent to any one on receipt of name. Five Days' Total Treatment sent absolutely free. Write To-Day. (11)
