Other newspapers, however, express the opinion that calm reflection and a respite of four days may reveal new possibilities in the direction of peace. It is stated in some quarters that the actual calling of the strike was deferred until Tuesday night so that it might be possible to bring about a resumpace

The Daily Graphic suspects that the forces of labor are "indulging in their old tactics of sabre rattling," and asserts the action of the Liverpool branch of the national union of railwaymen in declaring against a strike unless a ballot of the men favored such action is regarded everywhere as the first mutterings against the strike.

The executive body of the miners has instructed the miners to refrain from any action endangering the mines.

Frank Hodges, secretary of the miners' union, said the conference with the mine owners had been arranged without any conditions' being stipulated.

London, April 9.—Premier Lloyd George, according to both The Pall Mall Gazette and The Evening Globe, today, has made a new peace proposal to the triple alliance. It is understood he asked that a proposal be submitted to the miners that, where "safety men" were unavailable, the government should be allowed, without interference, to supply the labor necessary to safeguard the coal pits against permanent ruin.

Speeding Up All Preparations.

London, April 9.—Recruiting of volunteer workers and "safety units" was energetically begun by the government today, and other plans were perfected to meet the threat of a widespread industrial tieup next Tuesday, growing out of the miners strike, and involving directly approximately 2,000,000 workers. Meanwhile, however, reports from various parts of England, Scotland and Wales indicate that the triple alliance executive board may have more to do than the mere issuance of its strike decree in order to bring about a general cessation of work by the railwaymen and the transport workers, who with the miners make up the membership of this big labor organization.

Must Return at Lower Wages.

Should the strikers seek to return to work, they will have to accept a wage scale considerably lower than the one they refused when they struck a week ago, it was officially declared this afternoom. This scale was based on output, and on account of the damage already done the mines, and the consequent reduction of their productive power, the original wage offer "cannot stand when any future negotiations are entered into," it was stated.

The government this afternoon was considering the advisability of immediately manning the mine pumps in order to prevent further flooding of the pits.
