Acadia Street Man Says Car Was Stolen From Garage

OFFICIALS CAPTURE
CASKS OF LIQUOR

Car Occupants Escape After Spirited Pursuit From Spruce Lake

An automobile was captured by liquor officers early this morning in Douglas street and found loaded with 10 casks of rum. A wild chase in from Spruce Lake to Douglas street followed the capture. According to William G. Dawson, of 135 Acadia street, he is the owner of the car, and he reported to Detective Sergeant J. J. Power this morning that the machine was stolen from the garage last night.

The detectives and Mr. Dawson examined the auto, which had been left by the offenders in Nelson street after the thrilling breath-taking ride, and Mr. Dawson identified the car as belonging to him. The machine, a seven-passenger Hudson, had changed hands several times. It is license number 15,532.

There is an intimation that there is a fairly good idea of whom the driver of the car was. An investigation is in the hands of G. B. Lockhart, Collector of Customs. His men, he said this morning, were working on the case now.

WAS WILD RIDE.

A party of officers, including Sub-Inspectors Killen and Armstrong and Customs Officers C. H. B. Wright and Fred Nice, motored to Spruce Lake late last evening and took up a position in the rear of the Spruce Lake Station. Toward midnight an auto passed them cityward at a rapid rate. Suspecting it was being used for liquor smuggling, the officers shouted orders to halt, but the driver paid no heed, and then the chase was on. Both cars hit a terrific speed. Nearing the Protestant Orphanage, on Manawagonish Road, one of the three men was seen to step out on the running board as if to leap from the car, but apparently thought better of it.

LIGHTS OUT PART TIME

The liquor-laden car swayed from side to side and how a bad accident was avoided is considered unusual by the inspectors. The rain made the pavements coming into Fairville a treacherous surface but there was no slackening of speed. The lights on the rum runner went out several times adding to their hazard while the street lights also flickered and went out, plunging the roadway into complete darkness. Coming into Douglas street, the officers crowded the car into the side and the law-breakers halted abruptly.

OCCUPANTS FLEE

By the time the officials' car had been brought to a halt, the three men who, it is believed, were riding in the front seat with the rear packed with rum, jumped out and ran down Prospect road toward Chesley street. The officers fired several shots but the men did not stop.

The liquor seized is valued at more than $2,000, including duty. Under the new smuggling act, a serious penalty is provided for goods smuggled into the country over the value of $200. The usual fine, in addition to less than one year and not more than seven, behind bars, also is imposed without option by the magistrate.
