As to Linens and Cottons.

The first we treat of in our next column. The latter demands but little attention.

Bleached Cottons, either Shirtings, Pillow Case width or Sheetings, the bulk of such now sold are made in Canada.

If not all made in the same mill, they are at any rate sold by the manufacturers at a uniform rate. This forbids any advantage of one merchant over another in that quarter.

Having then a fixed cost, the price to the consumer is determined by the rate of profit advanced by the merchant. This rate, on Cottons, is a comparatively low one. It does not, at the best, more than cover the expense of selling. Therefore it cannot be deduced from to any appreciable extent. We cannot offer you any advantage in price, but we may be permitted to claim that our prices are as low as any.

This we have determined on.

Linens.

Suppose you were permitted to visit and buy from the largest makers in Ireland in the quantities you wanted, and at the same prices as a large buyer. Suppose further that your expenses were paid. Now put your loss of time against the pleasures of the journey and what have you left? Simply this: your Linens at the same cost, having added the duty which you can this week, buy them from us.

The explanation of the above makes it easy. The goods which we can sell at such prices are samples—samples that having served their purpose, the manufacturer is very willing to sell at actual cost to himself. This places us in a position to pass the same on to you at the maker's prices, taking his discount as our profit. In this case your gain, not our loss.

The clearing sale of dress goods and ulster cloths is now in progress. We have not more than this parting notice for them not being anxious, simply not anxious, about their sale, and certainly the way in which they are selling now does not give much cause for anxiety in that connection.

The St. John Opera House Company elected their officers last evening as follows: A. O. Skinner, president; A. H. Bell, 1st vice; M. W. Maher, 2nd vice; and the following directors: C. N. Skinner, R. F. Quigley, W. C. Pitfield, R. A. Payne, P. A. Melville, G. A. Hetherington, M. D., and Thos. Keadey. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and the subscription list was largely augmented. S., and produce red hematite ore of a very superior quality. The Company have secured leases on the property covering about two miles of ore vein, which is six feet in width, and contains 62 per cent. of metal.

WE UNDERSTAND that a survey has been made to put in a Y on this end of the Annapolis and Digby railway, it having been settled to build the Station somewhat near the present W. and A. Station. This change will be received with pleasure by the business men of the town especially who would experience the greatest inconvenience from the location of the Station up the line, and will make up in a great measure for the bad effect of the line not running along the river as proposed.—Annapolis Spectator.

The other horse floundered and for a moment was on top of the fallen one, but he quickly regained his feet, and as the reins broke the other horse sprang to his feet. Both horses escaped more injury than a few scratches.

Sudden Death.

A very sudden death took place at the Victoria Hotel this afternoon. Samuel Tomlin, one of the waiters of the hotel died of heart disease. He was in the best of health up to about 10 minutes after two this afternoon, when he was waiting on the table, and began suddenly breathing heavily. He had two plates of soup in his hands at the time and had just time to place them on a table when he dropped on the floor. He was picked up and carried to his room. Dr. D. E. Berryman was summoned, but medical aid could do the man no good, as he expired about ten minutes after he fell on the floor. Mr. Tomlin belongs to Halifax, N. S. but has been working at the Victoria Hotel in this city for the last month. Before he came to this city he was working at the Halifax Hotel. He leaves a wife and one child at Halifax. Dr. Berryman attributes his death to heart disease.

Mice Nested in Her Hair.

Mrs. Madison, a handsome but unfortunate young married woman to whom the Examiner extended alms on Christmas, said to a reporter: "One of the strangest things happened a few nights ago. My husband has been very sick, you know, and I have been sitting up with him, so I sleep like a top when my eyes close. Now there are those two white mice, the loveliest things in the world, but what do you think! The other night they actually chewed a hole in the top of my tidy cap while I was resting, gnawed my hair, which you can see is abundant, and made a splendid nest right on the top of my head. How they did it without waking me I can't explain, but my husband, sick as he is, suggests that I wear some sort of helmet at night."

EXTRADITION TREATY.

TEXT OF THE CONVENTION NOW PENDING BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

"Political Criminals" Not to Be Surrendered—Provisions of the Treaty of 1842 Extended to Cover Embezzlement and Other Offences—Accompanying Letter of Secretary Blaine.

The new extradition treaty with Great Britain, negotiated by Secretary Blaine, and now pending in the Senate, is given herewith in full, together with the letter of the secretary of state, submitting the treaty to the President. The treaty itself differs radically from the one negotiated by Secretary Bayard, in that it does not contemplate, in the remotest degree, the surrender of what are called "political criminals," and also in that it adds a large list of crimes to the ones which, under the treaty of 1842, are declared to be "extraditable." The treaty and accompanying letter are taken from the New York Tribune of Sunday. The text of the treaty is as follows:

INTRODUCTION.

Extradition convention between the United States of America and her Britannic Majesty, supplementary to the 10th article of the treaty concluded between the same high contracting parties on the ninth day of August, 1842.

Whereas, by the 10th article of the treaty concluded between the United States of America and Her Britannic Majesty on the 9th of August, 1842, provision is made for the extradition of persons charged with certain crimes, and

Whereas, it is now desired by the high contracting parties that the provisions of the said articles should embrace certain crimes not therein specified, and should extend to fugitive convicted of the crimess specified in the said article, and in this convention;

The said high contracting parties have appointed as their plenipotentiaries to conclude a convention for this purpose, that is to say:

The President of the United States of America, James G. Blaine, secretary of state of the United States; and Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Sir Julian Pouncefote, Knight Grand Cross of the most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Knight commander of the most honorable Order of the Bath, and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Her Britannic Majesty to the United States:

Who, after having communicated to each other their respective full powers found in good and due form have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:

Article 1. The provisions of the said 10th article are hereby made applicable to the following additional crimes:

1. Manslaughter.

2. Counterfeiting or altering money; uttering or bringing into circulation counterfeit or altered money.

3. Embezzlement, larceny, obtaining money, goods or valuable securities by false pretences; receiving any money, valuable security or other property, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen or fraudulently obtained.

4. Fraud by a bailee, banker, agent, factor, trustee or director, or member or officer of any company, made criminal by the laws of both countries.

5. Perjury or subornation of perjury.

6. Rape, abduction, child stealing, kidnapping.

7. Burglary, housebreaking or shopbreaking.

8. Piracy, by the laws of nations.

9. Revolt, or conspiracy to revolt, by two or more persons on board a ship on the high seas, against the authority of the master; wrongfully sinking or destroying a vessel at sea, or attempting to do so; assaults on board a ship on the high seas, with intent to do grievious bodily harm.

10. Crimes and offences against the laws of both countries for the suppression of slavery and slave trading.

Extradition is also to take place for participation in any of the crimes mentioned in this convention, or in the aforesaid 10th article; provided such participation be punishable by the laws of both countries.

SURRENDER OF FUGITIVES.

Art. 2. A fugitive criminal shall not be surrendered if the offence in respect of which his surrender is demanded be one of a political character; or if he proves that the requisition for his surrender has, in fact, been made with a view to try to punish him for an offence of a political character.

No person surrendered by either of the high contracting parties to the other shall be triable or tried or be punished for any political crime or offence, or for any act connected therewith, committed previously to his extradition.

If any question shall arise as to whether any case comes within the provisions of this article, the decision of the authorities of the government in whose jurisdiction the fugitive shall be at the time shall be final.

Art. 3. No person surrendered by, or to, either of the high contracting parties shall be triable for any crime or offence committed prior to his extradition other than the offence for which he was extradited, and until he shall have had an opportunity of returning to the country from which he was surrendered.

Art. 4. All articles seized, which were in the possession of the person surrendered at the time of his apprehension, whether being the proceeds of the crime or offence charged, or being material as evidence in making proof of the crime or offence charged, shall, so far as practicable, and if the competent authority of the state applied to for the extradition has ordered the delivery thereof, be given up when the extradition takes place. Nevertheless, the rights of third parties with regard to the articles aforesaid shall be duly respected.

Art. 5. If the individual claimed by one of the two high contracting parties, in pursuance of the present convention, should also be claimed by one or several other powers, on account of crimes or offences committed within their respective jurisdictions, his extradition shall be granted to that state whose demand is first received. The provisions of this article, and also of arts. 2 and 4, inclusive, of the present convention, shall apply to surrender for offences specified in the aforesaid 10th article, as well as to surrender for offences specified in this convention.

MANNER OF EXTRADITION.

Art. 6. The extradition of fugitives, under the provisions of this convention, and of the said 10th article, shall be carried out in the United States and in her majesty's dominions, respectively, in conformity with the laws regulating extradition for the time being in force in the surrendering state.

Art. 7. The provisions of the said 10th article, and of this convention, shall apply to persons convicted of the crimes therein respectively named and specified whose sentence therefor shall not have been executed. In case of a fugitive criminal alleged to have been convicted of the crime for which his surrender is asked, a copy of the record of the conviction and of the sentence of the court before which such conviction took place duly authenticated, shall be produced, together with the evidence proving that the prisoner is the person to whom the sentence refers.

Art. 8. The present convention shall not apply to any of the crimes herein specified, which shall have been committed, or to any conviction which shall have been pronounced, prior to the date at which the convention shall come into force.

Art. 9. This convention shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged in London as soon as possible. It shall come into force 10 days after its publication, in conformity with the forms prescribed by the laws of the high contracting parties, and shall continue in force until one or the other of the high contracting parties shall signify its wish to terminate it, and no longer.

In witness whereof the under-signed have signed the same, and have affixed thereto their seals.

Done in duplicate at the city of Washington, this 12th day of July, 1889.

GRAVE ROBBING MEDICOS.

A Ghastly Sensation at Kingston—A Son's Hunt for His Father's Body, and the Sensational Result.

KINGSTON, Ont., January 24. The Kingston medical students are, everything being taken into account, an orderly and well behaved lot, and notwithstanding a few peculiar happenings have, up to date, enjoyed a good reputation. What has come to light today, however, has revealed such a barbaric spirit on their part that their stock has dropped away below par and the bitter condemnation of their action heard on all sides does not portend well for the future. As is well known, medical colleges are at times short of "material," and in order that the sons of Æsculapius may pursue their calling it is necessary at times to resort to rather dark ways to obtain the required "subs." On the opening of college in October last it was found that in consequence of the increased number of students in the university the supply of aforesaid "material" was not equal to the demand. So the older and more daring medicos put their heads together with the result that in a few days two fresh "subs" were laid on the dissecting table. Just about the same time it was telegraphed the local papers here that ghouls had been at work in Tweed and that the body of Stephen Johnson, who had been buried a few days previous, had been taken from the coffin and carried off. It was stated, too, that the grave robbers, after securing Johnson's body, were about to open another coffin when they were surprised by one of the keepers, who fired several shots at them. One of them it is supposed, had been shot as a trail of blood was found next morning leading from the grave to the road where it is conjectured a wagon was in readiness to receive its ghastly freight. At all events the grave robbers left no clue as to their identity.

A few days later Johnson's son came to the city and, together with the police, proceeded to the medical college and demanded admittance. This was readily granted and a search instituted, but with no result, they reporting having not a single body—not even the two which had so mysteriously been conveyed to the dissecting room a few days previous, and which, it appears, disappeared just as mysteriously while the search was going on. The son, however, was not satisfied that his father was not in the college. He went home, scoured the neighbourhood from one end to the other and visited several other medical colleges, but all his search availed naught. This he has been doing ever since last November. Yesterday he quietly came to the city, and went to the college accompaned by several policemen. On entering they were met by several of the students who attempted to bar their way, but the police soon convinced them that the majesty of the law was not to be trifled with. Johnson proceeded to the cellar and directly over in the darkest corner of the room, where was piled a heap of rubbish. Shovelling this aside as best he could, he came upon some boards and lifting them up a horrible sight met his eyes. There, thrust into a narrow pit almost out of all semblance to human bodies, the legs bruised and battered, the arms in a terrible state, and the whole bodies fearfully contorted, lay the mortal remains of four men. The sight was sickening and disgusting and even the most hardened had to turn his head. Young Johnson recognized one of the bodies as that of his father by the color of his hair and whiskers, for the face, although not bruised to any extent was unrecognizable. A sleigh was ordered and the body removed to an undertaking establishment from whence it was conveyed home to Tweed by the son. The saddest part of the tale however, is yet to come. If reports be true and if the rectory of medicos may be relied upon it would seem that Johnson's body had been used by the students before Christmas and that the son, although thinking he has his father's body, in reality has that of an old resident of this city who died but a week ago. Whether this story has been got up by the medicos to suit their purpose it is hard to say. But it is thought that the son has indeed the wrong body. Many of the students deny having any knowledge of any grave robbing, and say that the who'e blame may be attributed to an irresponsible few who, when they brought the bodies to the college, claimed that they had received them from one of the public institutions here. Be this as it may, all the students are coming in for a share of the blame.

HALIFAX MATTERS.

THE POLYNESIAN'S STORMY PASSAGE OUT.

Her Chief Officer Fairfull Calls for Volunteers and Rescues the Crew of a French Vessel in Distress.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 28.—The Allan line steamer "Polynesian" arrived this morning from Liverpool having left that port Jan. 16th. The weather experienced during the entire run was of the very worse character, continuous heavy sea and cold weather being encountered. The thermometer at times registered 28° below.

On Sunday morning last while the sea was running mountains high, accompanied by a driving sleet storm, a vessel was seen by the lookout laboring heavily. Her sails, with the exception of the topsail, were in shreds, and the vessel failed to answer her helm. The steamer bore down on the vessel. The weather being very boisterous at times it was thought a small boat could not live.

Chief officer Fairfull, of the "Polynesian," however, cared little or nothing for the weather when life was at stake, and he asked for volunteers to assist him in the rescue of the vessel's crew. After a short time No. 2 boat was launched, and the chief officer and six men were soon on their way through the surging sea to the distressed vessel. After much difficulty captain and crew, six in all, were taken from the sinking ship to the steamer.

The vessel proved to be the French brigantine "Mathilda de Nantes" which lef Martinique, West Indies for St. Pierre Miquelon on 5 Dec in ballast. Three of the crew on the brigantine were badly frozen.

ENGLAND AND SPAIN.

Conciliatory Speeches in the Cortes Yesterday.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

MADRID, Jan. 28.—In the Cortes the Marquis de la Vega de Armijo, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replying to a question of the Republican deputy Labra, said: Portugal could always rely upon the good offices of Spain for maintainance of harmony in her foreign relations. Deputy Labra's speech was exceedingly moderate. He expressed friendship for England and advocated the closer alliance of Spain with that country by means of commercial treaties and reforms in the civil code.

The Marquis de la Vega de Armijo concurred in these views. He said he saw no sufficient ground to fear any danger to Portugal.

AN ATTEMPT AT WIFE MURDER.

The Would be Murderer Escapes by the River.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 28.—Barbara Nawratil a Bohemian woman was shot by her husband John Nawratil this morning while on her way to work in a mill. Three shots were fired all taking effect. The woman's screams attracted attention and the man ran away.

The sole cause of the crime was a dispute over the sale of a house. The woman's condition is precarious.
