MABEL PARKER GUILTY.

Her Husband, Also a Forger, to Serve Ten Years in State Prison.
Jury Pitted Her and Recommended Mercy—Two Have Affectionate Meeting and Caress Each Other Through the Bars.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Mabel Parker, whom the police call "Queen of Forgers," was convicted last night, before Judge Warren W. Foster, on the charge of uttering forged paper. She was recommended strongly to the mercy of the court, and Judge Foster sentenced her to the Reformatory for Women, at Bedford. A few moments later James Parker, her husband, was called to the bar. He pleaded guilty to the indictment of forgery and received the maximum sentence—ten years at hard labor in state prison.

MABEL IS SATISFIED.
"Never mind, Jim," replied Mabel, "I am satisfied with what I got. Why, the judge told me that I might have been sent to state prison for ten years. Don't you see that I got off very easily. I have no protest to make."
"With the good time you'll be out in six years and a half," replied Parker. "It'll be a model prisoner to earn that commutation of sentence."
"When you come out again," said the judge, "I will be waiting for you and you will go where they don't know us and we will be happy again."

Pouting the fearful part of the farewell she said with a laugh.
"While I have no kick coming, Jim, I'm glad we gave them a hard run for their money. But I don't see why I should have been committed. As for the judge, he was kind to me after all. That is why I thanked him after he had passed sentence."

As soon as husband and wife were seated in the prison pen Mabel thrust her arms through the iron bars and patted her husband on the cheek.
"Never mind, Jim, dear," she said, "I will get out long before you will, and I will be all in my power to win liberty for you."
"Mabel," said Jim, caressing his wife, "I feel very sorry for you. If it were not for me you would not be in this position tonight. I made you what you are. You have always been a good wife to me, but I am afraid I have not been a good husband, and the guilty party and you should be free."
"Then the sheriff stepped up and led the prisoners across the Bridge of Sighs to the Tombs. At the bottom of the stairway leading to the cell room Mabel threw her arms around her husband's neck and kissed him.
"Good-night, Mabel, dear," said Jim. "I am glad to see you again and pleasant dreams," was the response.
"Then the woman was locked up in her cell, where she lost her courage for the first time and wept.
"I am coming back at 4 p. m. yesterday. Earlier in the day ex-Assistant District Attorney Le Barbier had summed up for the defense, pleading for acquittal. After anything, the attorney had summed up for the prosecution, insisting that the young woman should be convicted. After the judge's charge, which leaned toward conviction, a long discussion followed. The jury was called and the verdict was returned for conviction and three for acquittal.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE.

Shortly before 6 p. m. the jurors entered court and announced that they had failed to agree. The foreman asked that certain portions of the testimony given by Detective Sergeant Lebody be read. This was done and the foreman announced that an agreement would be reached in five minutes. But the jurors failed and Judge Foster sent them out for dinner. They returned at 8:30 p. m. and went back to their jury room.
After eighteen ballots had been taken the three jurors who had voted for acquittal announced that they would vote for conviction, provided that she should be sentenced to the reformatory on condition of the indictment, that of uttering the forged check. Two more ballots were taken and at the twentieth ballot the jury returned a strong recommendation to mercy.
Mabel Parker was leaning against the railing when the jury returned after their five hours' absence. She watched the twelve as they filed out, as if trying to read their sentence.
The woman stood speechless. After a while she shook her head and leaned over the railing as the jury was being led away.
Lawyer Philip Waldheimer, assistant counsel with Mr. Le Barbier, asked that the prisoner be recommended to the mercy. The judge said that she must be disposed of there and then.
"I don't see why there should be any further delay in this matter," said Judge Foster. "Then he addressed the woman's prisoner.
"Mabel Parker," said Judge Foster, "after a fair trial you have been convicted of the crime of forgery. You have been a very dangerous person in this community. You are very skilled in imitating the handwriting of others. The jury have coupled their verdict with a recommendation for mercy. I am seldom disposed to set up my own judgment against that of the jury, and for that reason I will accept their recommendation. Now, instead of sending you to state prison, I shall send you to the Reformatory for Women. If you behave yourself there you may be discharged after you have been there some time, but let me tell you that if you are thus released, no parole should you at any time believe that parole can be re-earned and sent back to serve the full penalty, which is ten years in State prison. STARRYING AND SICK, SHE STOLE.

PHILLY Story of Montreal girl in New York—Just Out of Hospital, With No Money, Hunger Drove Her to Crime.
NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The Herald this morning says: Frail and weakened by a long struggle against hunger, her body racked by serious fits, a young woman was a prisoner in Jefferson Market police court yesterday afternoon, charged with the theft of $15 and a pocket book containing a diamond ring valued at about $50. The woman, who was arrested in the street, testified that she had been called into a tailor shop on East 15th street, where the young woman had been for one day only the woman had been employed with fifty other girls in the tailoring shop. None of the other girls paid particular attention to the new comer, although they commented on her pale face. Nella O'Connell, one of the employees, returned from her luncheon at noon yesterday and as she entered the cloak room she saw her chainless bag, containing her money and a diamond ring, on a table near by. When she came out of the cloak room the bag was gone. The Schneider girl was arrested and it was said that the money was found hidden in her hair.
"I was very ill and very hungry," Miss Schneider said in court, her voice choked with sobs. "I have not been strong lately, having undergone two operations for appendicitis while in Bellevue hospital, and, unable to obtain employment, I could get very little to eat. I do not know what possessed me, but when I saw how much money there was in the book I took it. My home is in Montreal, where I have two brothers, but I have no father or mother."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

Effected a Complete Cure in the Case of MRS. H. H. HUTTON, Morrisburg, Ont.
She says: "It affords me great pleasure to speak about my Heart and Nerve Pills. About a year ago I was taken ill with heart trouble and got so bad that I was unable to do any work for four or five months. I felt so weak and miserable that my friends thought I was going to die. The doctor attended me for some time but I continued to grow weaker. I then tried Dr. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking two boxes they made me well and strong again. I cannot praise them too highly. I feel as if I have never been so well and happy as I do now."
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers.

LORD DUNDONALD Did Not Linger in Boston to Attend Luncheons.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Any impression entertained by Bostonians that the Canadian militia department had any objection to a luncheon given by the announcement that the Earl of Dundonald, Sir Frederick Borden and the other military men here from Canada, was not holding a council of war and did not come here especially to transact business. The presence of Lord Dundonald and his staff at the same hotel at which a minister of militia was staying led to the report that the dining saloon which relieved Lord Dundonald had come to Boston to confer with Sir Frederick on military affairs.
While the latest plans of a stay at Ottawa were talked over it is learned that Lord Dundonald came principally to see the city and he having never visited Boston before.
The minister of militia has been here two weeks and expects to remain another fortnight. Sir Frederick's object in his visit to Boston is to see the militia here and to see the business life of the city.
The Victoria Club had planned to entertain Lord Dundonald at a luncheon last Thursday, but he was unable to attend. The Canadian Club, however, had its regular dinner yesterday at the Trade Club rooms, where quite a number of former Canadian militia officers were present. The business life of the city, attended.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST'S HEAD.

The English Catholic colony in Rome says the correspondent of The Daily Telegraph is considered to have been especially severe by the pope regarding his behavior in a seasonable compromise under the form of the restoration of a relic which is claimed to be the head of St. John the Baptist. It is the gift which the Church of San Silvestro, in the Vatican, claims to possess. A head which was demanded by the daughter of Herodias as a reward for her dancing was carried from Palestine to Rome. It reached the Vatican by the hands of a young girl, who deposited it in the Church of San Silvestro in Capua, which at that time was a monastery.
The relic was stolen was brought by the agency of the head of the relic and in such estimation was the relic held that regular pilgrims carried it away from the church. The relic was carried by the hands of a young girl, who deposited it in the Church of San Silvestro in Capua, which at that time was a monastery.

Gloss of Springdale, 5 years, offered by Geo. A. Perrott, Sackville, sold to R. A. Snowball, Chatham, N. S., $85.
Fifteen three year ewes brought from 7 to $13 each. R. A. Snowball, Chatham, got seven of these.
Some older sheep went cheaper, and a few ewes were sold. R. A. Snowball got a three year imported ram at $28. Alder Eiderkin, Amherst, got a yearling at $20.50, and five ram lambs sold below $10 each. These sheep were a good uniform lot and were excellent value for the money paid for them.
The cattle were all well bred, but few of them had been fitted for sale. They were sold in breeding condition. Some would have brought more money if they had been better fitted. Messrs Sharp & Phillips of Carleton County are to be congratulated upon the condition in which their stock showed and upon the prices they received.

Interesting Facts About Fruit Growing in British Columbia—Butter Delivery at Railway Stations in Canada.
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Some interesting facts regarding the fruit industry in the Prairie Provinces were brought out at the recent meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association. The growing commercial importance of the industry is evidenced by the increased shipments by freight and express, as the following figures show: There were carried by the C. P. R. during 1903 478 tons of fruit, while in 1902 1,587 tons were carried, an increase of 85 per cent. The Dominion Express Co. carried in 1903 79 tons of fruit; in 1902 42 tons; in 1901 43 tons; in 1900 44 tons; in 1899 45 tons. The establishment of a fruit cannery in New Westminster is assured, which will employ forty to fifty hands during the season. This will give growers a market for their surplus fruit.
At the present time British Columbia fruit practically ripens the markets as far east as Calgary. The markets of the Northwest, though vast and valuable, are very scattered; Winnipeg is the great wholesale centre, and is of such importance that it carries into the calculations of fruit over half of the continent, consequently the competition there is keen. Orders are being received from Australia, Hawaii, China and elsewhere. Better prices were made last fall to get a foothold in Britain. On Oct. 26th last Moscow, Stirling and Pitsburgh of Nova Scotia shipped the first carload of British Columbia apples, consisting of Spies, Baldwin, Ontario and Canada Reds, to the British market. They arrived in Glasgow on November 9th in first-class condition and were sold at an average price of about 50 p. per box, while Western Canada apples were selling in the same place at about one dollar per barrel. During three or four months of the season, however, when the extra freight charges to Montreal were deducted, the net returns were hardly satisfactory. Enquiries are being received from other places who saw the British Columbia fruit and learned that it gave first-class satisfaction, so that it is thought that if more and larger shipments were sent forward, better prices would be realized. Concessions in the way of freight rates will evidently have to be obtained if this export trade is to be profitable.
That the British Columbia growers labor under disabilities similar to those of the eastern fruit men is shown by the following list mentioned by President McGowan in his opening address: 1st. The lack of co-operation on the part of our growers in shipping, marketing and maintenance of prices, the purchase of packages, paper, spraying materials and rebates of privileges. 2nd. We suffer, as fruit growers, from the general lack of knowledge or want of confidence as to the benefits of spraying in its opening address: 3rd. The lack of co-operation on the part of our growers in shipping, marketing and maintenance of prices, the purchase of packages, paper, spraying materials and rebates of privileges. 4th. We need canning and evaporating facilities to take our surplus fruit, the ripe and lower grade varieties that will not ship long distances, varieties that are subject to the attack of fungus diseases, thereby relieving the markets of these qualities of fruits, and leaving the higher grades and better fruit to sell at increased prices. 5th. We suffer from the lack of a proper distribution of our fruit in the different markets we are shipping to. 6th. We also require better facilities in transportation and lower rates. The express rates are excessive and the care and attention given to the handling of fruit on and off the cars is not so satisfactory and satisfactory and ought to be discouraged and corrected.

DELIVERY OF BUTTER TO RAILWAY STATIONS.

Every precaution should be taken to see that butter is delivered to the stations at such an hour as to make the closest possible connection with the regular trains. An hour's exposure to the heat of a warm summer day means positive injury to the butter and shortens its life. It would be better to have the butter carried to the station by car, so that some man would have a property equipped wagon with a cover for protection against sun and rain. It would be possible to have a man having a wagon always at the station to deliver butter with authority and control over a contractor, but he has very little over the independence of the contractor who takes the butter to suit his convenience, very often in an unsuitable wagon, dumps it down at the station without any consideration except that of getting rid of the butter as quickly as possible. The cost of hauling the butter to the station should be considered a part of the operating expenses in all operations. Yours very truly, W. A. CLEMONS, Publication Clerk.

The following Indian story, related by the old Missionary, Dr. Silas T. Rand, who used to visit our Sunday school, is a sort of Indian legend, but it is very interesting. It is the story of a little boy named Mookin, who was the son of a chief of the village, long before the English or French were heard of, there lived a poor little boy whose parents had died. He was a very poor boy, but he was a very good boy. He was very kind and very helpful to the other children in the village. Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For five years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me. I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out. Miss Alice M. Smith, 604 Third Ave., North Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Study Club.
Beauty and strength in woman vanish early in life because of monthly pain, or some nervous breakdown. Use Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and your best days fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve youthfulness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire feminine organism healthy. It cures women's monthly suffering through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.
The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief. My menses are now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for some time."

How is it possible for us to make it plain that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low, — all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and ailing, discouraged with life and without hope. It is unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering — all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills that beset woman.
$5000 ROYALTY. It is not for nothing that the original letters and signatures of sick women, which will prove their condition, are published in this paper. Lydia E. Pinkham, Medford, Co., Lynn, Mass.
